

Dr Sir; I do not think the above worth noticing,
if I think of any thing I ~~will~~ about it, I will write
but it is better perhaps not to ~~write~~ it.

You should have by this time an Ella,
I sent in 2^d post at 1/2 past 9 this morning.

Yours
L. L.

8270

might my regular publications. So hard driven was I Mr. Editor this last month (though I do not wish to tell the world to know what poor devils members of the literati are) that I was obliged to mortgage my Folio "History of England" for a time to a near relation of mine who keeps the sign of the Jxxx Bxxx well known to the public at large, and as publicly respected.
But as my fingers tremble so that I cannot hold my pen, and as my friends tell me that I have wasted to a shadow within these 15 days, (and all on account of Delamare's confessions) I hope that as he has produced all my illness, he will become my

~~and it is peculiarly offensive to his delicacy ear.~~
~~and destruction of his health. I hope his Lordship~~