

Wesley. Sep. 9. 1868.

My dear Sir

I immediately on receiving your note of the first - took steps to make the enquiry of - decided, thro' Mr Brodch. Vice Consul here the result is, that the person named by you is one in all respects. Most worthy & respectable.

He is not deemed a man of large means.

- nor does he deal with the richest class here.

but his character is held in great & his business relations are all creditable.

Yours
Wesley

4/10/68

379

Hope this info will be sufficient for your prepared list of need anything more definite - pray let me know.

I should have gone over to town. but that of my health concerns so precariously
that I cannot leave home.

We have the Medist Squadron here
now & are in the vicinity of Sumell offical vessels & excellent climates with a thermometer at 88°. I used to fancy that nothing could increase the desirability of this place. but the present storm & confusion here made me recant.

Do you know of any one - any where - ^{in Sicily} who would take an exchange with me?

Yours faithfully
Charles Lewis

To R. Peade, Consul at Tripoli