copies of your little pamphlet on Lamb's first volumes, with reproductions of title pages. And could it be possible to obtain a full copy of when Lamb's

To G D North Esq.

Dear Sir, my letters have crossed:
Yours is to hand this morning.
I am sorry to trouble you again but having to convince my part-lishers that any expenditure they make is justifiable, it will be necessary for me to tell them exactly what they would be buying, if they paid you 100 dollars - (it is dollars and not £.). Would you therefore kindly let me have a Talford) was one short passage which recency, & fear, forbid; but that is the only instance of necessary suppression I have yet met with. It might be printed - for Cornwall's sake.

An index I shall certainly have to each volume & to the whole set.

I think you do wisely to retain your Lamb notes - they are best. As for the catalogues, a friend of mine list of the collections which you already possess, or which undertake to get. Please take it words be exact; not omitting nothing but reproducing mistakes of spelling & peculiarities of punctuation. Also, wherever possible, postscripts, postmarks.

To a large extent since has never followed Talford. She has no gift for exactitude & was led for various reasons rather strongly then to omit much.
Among the Cornwall letters to which I have recently had access,
