over that Sunday with us by way of a little wait. I meant to bring the miniature along but I must have left it on the mantel or dressing table in the front sleeping room.
Will you kindly post someone here in a message? whichever way you look here you see people in swivel chairs in rows, looking like shaggy animals.
There is no suggestion of individual chairs at Mrs. Evans except the long chairs.
No couches, no holders, no apparent stems. In my love to Somers.

Yours sincerely,

NEW YORK
Sunday afternoon

My dear Mrs. North:

Helen and I had a beautiful morning yesterday; clear, cold, a radiant sky and the woods and fields still are white. We found an enthusiastic welcome awaiting us and Helen was taken in by her mother and I am rooming over the time with her. Mrs. Mahie is simply blooming. Helen said said this morning: "now, Marcella, you may block as much as you choose but, ^{you} are so lovely as simply ^{meat} talk about it." and we did! You can't spoil some people. Dominic seems to me to have more life in her pau and ugo in her moments than when she left home.

Of course there has not been time for much change, but somehow I get a sense of relief when I look at her.

It is a pleasure to think of you in the house, and I hope you feel sufficiently at home to do just what you choose. If for any reason you feel you must leave, I hope you will not feel bound to stay; on the other hand, if it would be convenient for you to stay, please remember there is no date fixed at the other end.

I return for a 3 here day, Helen will come a day or so later; it would be very nice if the months stayed
