My dear North,

Thanks for your letter informing me of Mr. White's death & the cutting about him. I wonder if all the advice given him, & the attention of various libraries, will have caused him to change his determination that his books should be sold.

I will try to see something of Miss Ridgway while she is here. I am so glad that Mr. North is 'comfortable'. It is a great misery to see those we care for suffer.

Sincerely yours,

A. W. Pollard

I am sorry as to your address. As it comes in the advertisement pages I don't get a proof of that memorandum but I will write to the printer about it. I think I have already done so once.
