Dear Sir

If the use of my name as that of one who thinks most highly both of the morality & ability, displayed in your Practical Myology & in your opinion on also, can be any service to those books, I shall be very glad.

Attention is indeed - like every thing else - suffering seriously under the quackery of popular practitioners. Better days I trust will come. - There will be many more mistakes (I know them are quite enough already) - & a more general diffusion of intelligence; but we shall still have some ignorant & prejudiced scholars, & even then a mass of misapprehensions; & those who always find just evidence the few, in their own times, - & their proper plan of improvement seems at least.

Pardon me Dear Sir

with great respect & good wishes

Yrs very truly
