

Sajani Inn, 30 April 1841

My dear Sir,

I need scarcely tell you how dearly I prize the volumes you have sent me, or how greatly they are enriched to me by the kind aspersions which grace their opening page in the antepiece of the Author. I have been all eyes & yet to glance at their printed contents, - but I have been unable to feel equal that they will extend your benevolent names.

I am disengaged with you just on the eve of your company on Sunday 9th May at 4 before 7 at dinner in

Napole Louis, and father

M. J.

Paris ever his

J. M. Talford