Sirs,

I have received your letter of the 22 instant, and though you do not fancy the M.S. I offered likely to succeed, yet as you express a wish to see any other work from me, and I have an opportunity of conveying a parcel by sea, which will be a mere trifle in carriage, I send you the M.S. of the Gossips. It is written in imitation of Ovid's 4th Met. - & if published with plates like Doctus Synops would most likely succeed. In that case the author could easily arrange a second part. It is offered to you to sell, - or to print it on a plan to be suggested by yourselves. In case it be not approved, you can return it by one of the Plymouth coaches, directed to A. Hawkins, Esq. Alton, near Kingsbridge, Devon.

I am, sirs,
your obt. ser.

A. Hawkins.
