

Letter to Lady Keale. wife of Sir Hy Burrard Keale 1765-1840 Admiral Commander in Chief at the time.
Athens was besieged, the Acropolis was the citadel taken at a later date by Reshid Pacha.

To the most Illustrious
Madam Keal

My most Illustrious Lady.

In the Royal English Frigate
"Cambrian"

Madam,

As long as I see the Frigate before my eyes I long to converse with your bright presence. And while I wish for your society, so after your departure I desire to preserve in my mind and memory, your bright personality and philanthropy.

I entreat you to remember me, and I remain with the hope of again seeing you, the most devoted of your servants

A. G. Gouras.

In Athens. 27 July 1826

In the Acropolis of Athens

(Johannes Gouras was the leader of the Greeks in 1827)
