My dear friend.

Your letter arrived this evening, tells me of a book, you say was sent me this morning — None has reached me — & by the messenger, this morning, I recd from obolins addressed to Sir Francis Palgrave & which I forwarded immedi- ately to him, at Hamstead:
Thus two cross-purposes have occurred this day but, be assured, you shall not make me cross, even by abusing poor John Thelwell.

Dear Sir

My list of Topogr. works is at Longmans & all the books in this department have been sent to you except Gibbins' Tour which upon enquiry I find has been inadvertently sent elsewhere. I turned over a few pages of it, but it is a miserable performance & will probably be dispatched in a few lines. Mr. Bisset's review shall be sent to you as soon as I receive it & I suspect that it will require some trimming. Prints being no part of literature do not come within our plan: a review of maps & charts will be a valuable addition; but to notice them properly requires a very deep & peculiar kind of erudition; at all events we shall not have time to introduce them into the present vol.

Yours. A. Ashmole

My dear friend -

Black skies, with occasional showers, & storms, are not pleasant, or propitious appearances to the Octogenarian & Centenarian Whence. I must warn you not to expect us at your semi-cockney villa to-morrow - It will not be safe ^{to undertake} a voyage by "Sea" & a journey _{by} land with such prospects - We will hope that a full moon may bring changes more propitious to

I fear that your Binder has forgotten me, or that some accident has happened to occasion delay. Will you have the goodness to urge him on with the Vol or Vols he has in hand?

I hope to finish my Junius labours & Vol in a week, or 10 days, & shall then devote my undivided attention to Autobiography - I continue to gain health & strength, & hope for greater improvement by milder & finer weather

 because that approbation value - bring them after it - My list is already only admit of your name

I accept with gratitude the fourth Part of a Dictionary of the Architecture and Archaeology of the Middle Ages — a work of immense value, and to the completion of which you have evidently devoted many years of an active life — I wish to place this Memorial of your labors, complete in my Book-room; but to enable me to do this, may I hope you will favor me with the previous parts?

I leave this note at your office in the Adelphi, and with affectionate regards to Mrs Britton —

My dear Sir

Finding it very difficult to get a suitable inscription for Dr Jennet's monument I desired the Artist to put on what follows

Edward Jennet
Born at Berkeley May 20 1753
Died at the same place Jan 26 1823

Instead of following my instruction he wrote "Died at his native place" This alteration was so objectionable that I had it erased to make way for another which unhappily has never been engraved

I will thank you to put me down as a subscriber of £1.1
to your Testimonial. I entreat you to pardon me for not writing sooner. I have been an invalid and am not yet recovered
