Dear Walter,

Thank you, for your friendly expressions about the Wanderer. I am glad that you have found things to like in the book. I should wish any one who reads it, to judge of it, as a whole rather than as a series of fragmentary poems. altho fragmentary in form & varied in treatment, it has been written with a single purpose, intended to have, a beginning a middle & an end, - this may not appear at first sight, but I hope that a conscientious reader will catch the idea.

Yr. letter reaches me
here on my way to Vienna. Things look more peaceful, but I shall not be surprised
of war breaking out in April or May. Fortunately Prussia has taken a very thoughtful
attitude, & much
must depend upon that.
Yours very truly
