My dear Sir. I was just about to write to you, when I received your kind note. I have been out of town - at Tisbury Wells - and not knowing the precise day of my return, I did not like to make an appointment till I could keep it. However, now that you have opened the subject I can give you a direct answer. With at any reference to the merit of the proposed papers, it ~~was~~ could be impossible to accept them for the present, as I am already overworked with labors, and unable to satisfy them. In a few months may have cleared the way a little, and then if your friend will communicate with me, I will give the matter my best attention. I perfectly recollect the "Omniscient," and thought them very good.

With renewed respects

I believe me

Very dear Sir

Yours for the paper

H. Harris or Thiersworth
