THEIR JUST DESERTS

The two students who rushed the Ben Ali and Strand theaters Saturday night following the Washington and Lee and University football game...

One wonders where they and the others who attempted to break into the show houses Saturday night gained the idea that they were privileged to rush madly into a theater...

On second thought, it might have been done merely to impress on the Lexington police force that students were to be given their way in such matters.

As to just who composed this sublimated body of joy-mad youths, well, it is not a question to ponder over.

Freshmen are noted for their freshness and sophomorees for their foolishness, but in this instance the matter seems to be reversed.

Lastly, that another little matter may be corrected. The Kernal would assure students that both theaters have cooperated with them in every reasonable request that has been made.

THE UNIVERSITY BAND

The University of Kentucky band has shared equal honors with the University of Kentucky football team in many of its appearances.

The band unquestionably is able to stimulate better effort upon the playing field by the football team but in itself the band is a splendid representative of the University of Kentucky.

LEST WE FORGET

President McVey said, in an address before the student body at the opening convocation of the year: "Students, to be successful, must learn to distinguish between 'present' and 'future' wants."

That statement was very much to the point. But to be effective, it must be kept in the mind of the student body. One way to do so is not to let enthusiasm run away with common sense.

A standing is a "future" want. It is one that means more to the student than all the games or all the thrills now to be had.

JUST KINDA GRIN

Last Saturday Kentucky's gridiron army fired an eleven-gun salute at the Washington and Lee Generals, and when the smoke had cleared the Bonnie Blue and White flag floated on the crest of Southern football.

As usual, the world-at-large thought that Kentucky didn't have a chance. Even yet they do not realize the significance of Kentucky's victory, a victory made the sweeter by its 29-year delay.

The Kernal believes that more highly-touted Southern eleven than the Generals will be dimly surprised with a defeat at the hands of Kentucky before the season ends.

The Kernal believes that the Wildcats will conquer Northwestern tomorrow.

The Kernal believes that when the game ends tomorrow afternoon, and the thousands file their way from the Northwestern stadium, that the minds of all will be firmly impressed the fact that "Kentucky's Right!"

And Northwestern's exhausted Wildcats will just kinda grin, because they'll see we got 'em.

CONSIDER YOUR ADVICE

One of the professors recently made the statement to his class that he would give a great deal had he taken Greek when he was in school; he said that he entered college with the intention of making it his minor, until a number of horrified upperclassmen had discovered the fact and persuaded him to change his course and take something easier.

This habit of older students interfering with freshmen's courses is a discreditable one, and one that often causes regret in later life.

The upperclassmen have good intentions most of the time; they are looking out for the grade advantage of their fraternity, or perhaps hate to see the freshman make a low grade in a course.

Students in the university should be allowed to use their own judgment in picking out what they wish to study. The efforts of the upperclassmen should be devoted to helping the freshmen learn something in college that will be of use to them after they graduate, instead of fostering the impression that the collegiate way is to get by as easily as possible.

BLACK HATE

This awful hate comes surging o'er me now, Sweeping heavy fingers across my brow With bitter touch.

God, have you asked this thing of me, I should forgive and calmly see The other side?

Then shall I strive to tear away This hate. Not for naught you say, "Be merciful."

-MARGARET CUNDIFF.

AWAKENING

Now that it is all over and done with— All the laughter and youth and goldens, All the swift eating of miles under white stars And the mad, joyous peril of kisses. My heart is a barren desert— Bleak with the uselessness of things And the horror of finality.

-MARJORY GOULD.

LOVERS

He: Don't be afraid, theres' nothing to fear. She: I wish I'd worn my other coat. He: Let's move to where we can see the moon. She: I thought you said— He: It's not beautiful? She: It's rather chilly here. He: I read a poem today. She: I am sure my lover. He: About a lover who thought and thought. She: Is it not beautiful? He: And was so busy thinking— She: Was he thinking about his girl? He: He did not see the moon above him. She: The moon is behind a cloud now. He: This lover was no lover at all. She: Do you not love me? He: I worship you even as the stars and moon. She: They are so far away. He: But near to my heart. She: I wish I were a man. He: But you are a woman. She: I'd show men how to love.

-MELVINA HEAVENRIDGE.

Music, Stage and Screen

By Thomas L. Riley

Perhaps the most outstanding theatrical event of the week will take place at midnight Saturday at the Kentucky Theater when the Lexington premiere of Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool" is shown.

When Al Jolson made "The Jazz Singer" we gave up all hopes for him as a motion picture actor. His voice, together with the story in that picture put it over.

Two most important members of the cast supporting Jolson are Betty Bronson and Josephine Dunn, both of whom are quite satisfactory in their roles.

"The River Pirate" comes to the Strand theater Sunday for a four-day run. The leading role, played by MacLagen, is one that is ideally suited to his talents.

"Her Unborn Child," the current attraction at the opera house is a good play done in extraordinary manner.

Her Unborn Child, a more serious drama that is customary for the stock company to play, has proved that the actors are capable of "heavier" plays than they have been offering the public.

It was with much surprise to the reviewer to note that about 75 per cent of the entire audience was moved to tears throughout the larger part of the third act. This alone should convince the public that the play was "well done."

Mr. Wally Griggs adds a bit of humor to the play in some of the touching scenes. He takes his part in his usual fine manner.

Miss Dorothy Day, as "Pegs" Kennedy, gives an excellent performance. She is well suited for her part.

"Power"—Ben Ali Sunday "Power," the latest starring picture of William Boyd, opens at the Ben Ali Theater Sunday to run through Wednesday.

"State Street Sadie"—Kentucky This is another one of those underworld affairs to which the screaming sirens and the pandemonium of motor cycles in action are

WILDCATS OUTSMART GENERALS TO WIN 6-0

Dysard Stars as Reserves Beat Lindsey-Wilson, 18-2

In celebrating the Wildcats' fine victory over Washington and Lee, together with the excellent showing made by the Kittens in defeating the Georgetown freshmen, the student body has overlooked the 18-2 victory of the Reserve team which defeated Lindsey-Wilson Junior college Friday afternoon at Columbia, Ky.

Lindsey-Wilson presented a well-coached eleven which fought the Reserves to a standstill and led at the half, 2-0, by virtue of a safety scored as the result of a bad pass by Hayn, Reserve center. The second half, however, saw the Reserves come to the front as they pushed over three touchdowns on straight football. McLenore at fullback and Dysard at quarter were the outstanding backs in these drives to the goal. Defensively Abbot at end and Irving and Idleman being especially powerful and as a result was working Monday on the varsity squad.

The Kentucky Reserves will line up with several changes over last week. Abbot and Cavema will work at ends. Idleman may go to Northwestern, leaving a tackle position open, with a successor unknown. Irving will retain his place at the other tackle and Campbell will hold down one guard position. Trotts has reported for basketball practice and a running mate for Campbell will have to be picked. Lewis will probably start at center. There are no changes in the backfield which will include Brown and Collins, halfbacks, Dysard at quarter, and McLenore at fullback.

The Sportgraph

(By WAYMAN THOMASSON)

THE HONOR MAN
To Bullus H. Brown, one of a number of heroes who set their backs to the wall Saturday and repulsed the attack of the Washington and Lee Generals. Playing the entire game with a cut on his lip which later required five stitches for treatment, and which was bleeding profusely during the matinee performance, Mr. Brown deserves all the praise in the world for his 'guts to come back.'

THE FORM SHEET
There are other kinds of form sheets than those which dilate your eye-balls and sting your eye-brows on the front page of "Snappy Stories." For instance, you get a lot of "sure things" out of the "pony" form sheet. Sometimes the kampos kuties even run true to form (huh?) but, at that, they are more uncertain than the races. Anyway, form is to athletics as silence is to Coolidge, and that means everything. Coach Gamage made his Wildcats wild last week from non-ide to sunset, preparing a defense for Mr. Washington and Colonel Lee. The 'Cats practiced breaking up General plays so long they were almost crazy enough to vote for Hoover. They could break them up in their sleep, and Saturday, they did for the first time in 29 years. That is the way form is acquired—by hard work, smart observation, and strenuous training. Form makes champions or Gene Tunney would still be "shave-tailing" in the marines.

GILB GOES OVER FOR TOUCH-DOWN

By Bill Reep
They came. We met. We conquered! The score was 6 to 0, ladies and gentlemen. Thus the above sums up briefly the score only, of one of the greatest and most thrilling football games that was ever played on Stoll field, when last Saturday the Wildcats turned back the invasion of the highly-touted Generals from Washington and Lee.

The game itself was thrilling, but then again it was not quite as thrilling to some of the strangers in the stands as it was to we people of Kentucky, especially when it was the Kentuckians who realized the handicap under which the Wildcats were fighting. That was, chiefly, to break the jinx that the Generals held over Kentucky for a period of 29 years.

Kentucky's Day
At the very start of the game when the Generals kicked off to Kentucky, it was evident that this was Kentucky's day, and that the Wildcats' gallant efforts of the past six weeks would be justly rewarded. The battle cry of "Beat W. and L. gang," that rang out over the practice all last week, was taking its toll on the visitors and through three quarters of the game the Generals had their backs to the wall fighting hard to stave off the terrific rushes of the 'Cats.

When time was called to start the second half, Forquer of Kentucky kicked off to the Generals on the 20 yard line where they advanced the ball to the 25 marker. On the next play the Generals tried a reverse double pass in which they became confused and the 'Cat forward wall charged like a tractor through the line and Bull Brown and "Floppy" Forquer hit the ball carrier so hard that he dropped the pigskin which was recovered by McElroy for Kentucky.

It was then that the home boys came to life and after coming out of a huddle where the strategy for the next play was planned, little Alf Fortwood took the ball through right tackle for 22 yards, diving over two Generals, landing on his head and coming up again for another three feet toward the goal line before an avalanche of Generals pinned him to the ground. That put the ball on the 13 yard line with four downs to go.

Four tries at the line netted another first down and left them three yards from the goal and a touchdown with four more chances in which to succeed. On the first play Gilb took the ball and, with his feet working like pistons, he hit the right side of the line where he wigged, squirmed, and twisted in a way that is all his own, he crossed the last coveted chalk mark for a touchdown.

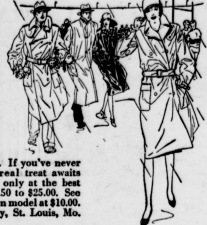

The touchdown was the crisis of the game, because from then on those Wildcats just couldn't be beaten. We will give those Generals from Virginia due credit for fighting clean and hard all the time and in the last quarter they opened up with a deadly passing attack which almost resulted in a score.

Long Wear is only One Virtue of a Staunchley Suit

You get comfort as well—perfect freedom in armhole and shoulder—perfect ease all through. You get shapeliness—the kind that endures because it's tailored into the cloth by hand. Best of all, you get character—a rare but unmistakable distinction of style. That's because Staunchley suits are Society Brand—each suit absolutely correct in cut!

BASKETBALL TEAM TO HAVE HARD SCHEDULE

The first practice of candidates for the varsity basketball squad was held in the Men's gymnasium on Monday afternoon. Coach Johnny Bauer was somewhat disappointed with the turnout as the initial session found but fifteen men in uniform.

The Wildcat basketball team will face one of the most difficult schedules during the coming season that has ever been carded for a Kentucky team. The completed schedule will probably contain fifteen or sixteen games and will include contests with some of the best teams in this section of the country. The 'Cats will open their season with a home game on December 15, against the Eastern Normal quintet.

Coach Bauer desires all men who can come out for the squad immediately as the team which faces Eastern Normal and Miami which is scheduled for the following week, will be chosen from the men who are present at the early practice periods. Additional strength will be gained at the close of the football season when some of the gridiron stars will doff their moleskins and don the abbreviated uniforms. Among these men are Miller, Owens, Dees, Gilb, Johnson, Spicer, and Bronston.

SECOND ROUND IN TOURNAMENT PLAYED

The intra-mural tennis tournament swung inauspiciously into the second round last Monday. Sixty-six survivors of the first round singles contest and sixteen doubles teams were carded to continue play that will again reduce by half the number of contestants.

The tourney this year started off with a bang, drawing 144 singles entries and nearly sixty doubles teams, which is the high water mark in this form of competition. Probably, because of the fact that the matches are being counted on a point basis toward awarding the participation trophy, the number of forfeits in the first round schedule was relatively small. Those matches in which neither of the contestants appeared on the scene were simply dropped without

FRESHMEN EASILY DEFEAT CUBS, 33-6

Big Green Backfield Exhibits Form in First Schedule Contest; Wright and Kistner Star in Kitten Line.

The University freshmen defeated the Georgetown Cubs last Friday for the first time in several years. The score, 33-6, does not show the complete mastery the Kittens hold as they were unable to function offensively against the Cubs in the first half.

Once under way the "Big Green" offense showed to better advantage than any of the Kitten teams of the past. Phipps, German, and Yates were able to gain consistently through the line and around the ends and, in the second half, several beautiful passes were completed, German to Thompson. The line opened holes in the right places and the whole team seemed to adapt itself to the Gamage style of play.

The point of Lucio's remark is not what he said it about, but what he said. It surely describes Coca-Cola, for consider these facts:

Three Triumphant Yankees conduct the Blindfold test . . . and MILLER HUGGINS picks OLD GOLD

The Babe and Lou here will tell you that there is only one way to choose a pitcher . . . and that's to send him into the box and let him twirl a few innings.

So the best way to choose a cigarette is to put them all through their paces in the blindfold test.

In the test I have just made, Old Gold played right into my mitt. Its zippy flavor and mellow smoothness couldn't be touched by the other three brands.

Local Smoker Learns Bitter Lesson Abroad

New York, March 15, 1928

Larus & Bro. Co., Richmond, Va. Gentlemen: I have used Edgeworth Smoking Tobacco for the past twenty-five years. Two years ago I took my trusty briar along on a trip abroad, intending to revel in the delights of the famous mixtures in London. I confess that I did not carry along with me any of the little blue tins of Edgeworth. But the joke was on me. I went back to Edgeworth, only this time I had to pay 45c for a 1-oz tin of Edgeworth.

Incidentally, on a trip through England and later through Ireland, I was surprised to find the wide distribution and ready sale of Edgeworth in Great Britain. A frequent and familiar sign in Dublin, Cork and other cities in Ireland was a white streamer announcing a new shipment of Edgeworth. To make such a conquest in the home of smoking tobacco must be very gratifying to your house.

Sincerely, J. B. Kelly

Louisiana State Has Motion Pictures For U. S. History Courses

The showing of a series of motion picture films—the first to be given in Garig hall in a week or ten days, will be an innovation in the American history courses offered at Louisiana State university.

The films are produced by the Yale University Press Film Service with the co-operation of a number of leading historians, in order that the pictures shall be historically correct and depict the habits, customs, costumes, manners, and important events of the periods of American history which they portray, according to Dr. W. H. Stephenson, associate professor of history at L. S. U.

Among the pictures which will probably be shown are: Jamestown, Virginia; The Pilgrim Fathers, Daniel Boone, The Declaration of Independence, The Frontier Woman, and Dixie During the Civil War. The first film to be shown will be Jamestown, adapted from Pioneers of the Old South, a chronicle written by Mary Johnston.

Colgate Cheaters Are Below Average

COLGATE UNIVERSITY—(O. C. N. A.)—A study of thirty successful cribbers and cheaters during examinations at Colgate university by Herbert C. Brownell has resulted in his labeling them "a psychological type contrasted with the student body."

Information about the thirty was obtained unknown to them and by unofficial and underground methods, Mr. Brownell says, and they were used as laboratory specimens to show the mental and emotional traits of college students who cheat at examinations and get by with it. None of the thirty cheaters were officially caught even though Colgate has a severe proctering system. More than half of the group fell below the campus average in intelligence and the majority belonged to the psychological type known as extroverts, another name for a "good boy" and one more inclined to activity than thinking. Eighty per cent were more emotionally unstable than the campus average.

FENCING TEAM MAKES PLANS FOR PRACTICES

Russell Ake, who was a member of the team at Ohio Wesleyan, explained the thrust and stance, and also gave some preliminary instructions on practice. The next regular meeting of the team will be held Monday afternoon in the Armory and practices may be held any afternoon the Armory is not in use.

Dr. Rexford Newcomb, noted architectural author, and now professor at the University of Illinois, gave a very interesting lecture Tuesday night at the Guignol Theater on "Kentucky Architecture and Its Influence." Dr. Newcomb illustrated his talks with pictures of many beautiful and quaint homes in Lexington and all parts of Kentucky. This was very significant to the audience since they were all quite familiar with the places shown them.

First Year Men Succeed In Securing Covered Positions on University Team

The freshmen made a successful raid on the debate teams of the University Monday night when they copped half the places on the debate squad and two-thirds of the places on the international debate, which is to be held in Lexington November 5.

Clifford Amys, of Lexington, and William Pearce, of Mott, N. D., are the freshmen who won places on the international debate team. Richard Malcolm Weaver, of Lexington, sophomore, is the other member of the trio which will meet the three English women debaters next month.

Sid Schell and Hugh Jackson, both of Lexington, are the two freshmen who won the right to join Raymond Auxier, James S. Porter, Jr., and William Henderson Dysard are the other members of the debate squad.

A total of eighteen candidates entered the tryouts held in White Hall. Each candidate spoke four minutes in presenting his constructive argument and three minutes in rebuttal.
