Lest We Forget!

The Memorial Coliseum was dedicated on May 30, 1950, as a memorial to Kentuckians who had given the last full measure of devotion to their country. The names of 9,308 Kentucky war dead were enshrined on tablets in this building that future generations might not forget their sacrifice.

In June, 1950, just after the Communists crossed the 38th parallel in Korea to force Communism upon all of that country, the United Nations acted promptly to stop this aggression. President Truman ordered American troops into a so-called cold war to prevent Communism from spreading over Korea and eventually all the rest of the world. During the next three years there were approximately 150,000 American casualties. Many of the war dead were Kentuckians.

It was decided that the names of these Kentuckians should also be enshrined in the Memorial Coliseum that they too might be remembered among those who had purchased our freedom at the price of their lives.

For the third time we called upon Professor Ezra L. Gillis to prepare a list of our war dead from Kentucky. After the First World War he had prepared a similar list which is enrolled in Memorial Hall, the building erected to the memory of the First World War dead. At the close of the Second World War the task of assembling the names of all Kentuckians who perished in this great conflict was again assigned to him, and after more than a year's research he had found the names of all Kentuckians whose lives were lost in the Second World War. About a year ago we again turned to Professor Gillis to assemble the names of all Kentuckians killed in the Korean War. He has completed the list and the number sacrificed in this conflict, which has been referred to as a police affair, is 1159. Of this number 23 were former students of the University of Kentucky. Beautiful tablets have been prepared and their names have been placed on the honor roll at the head of the ramp on the west side of Memorial Coliseum. We are again indebted to Professor J. S. Horine for his beautiful work in inscribing these names on the tablets.

On Sunday, May 30, Decoration Day, 1954, the University's Baccalaureate Sermon was delivered by Dr. Homer Carpenter, Minister Ecumenical of the First Christian Church of Louisville, Kentucky. Parents, widows, brothers, and sisters, and other relatives of these men attended this service, as well as the faculty, graduates of the University, their families and friends, making an audience of at least 8000 present. The Army, the Signal Corps and the Air Force ROTC attended in formation as a mark of respect to their comrades-in-arms who had died on the field of battle.

This alumni memorial issue is dedicated to those former University students who lost their lives and to all of Kentucky's dead of the Korean War. May their memories live in the hearts of Americans so long as this republic survives.

Korean War Dead

SUNDAY, MAY THE THIRTIETH

Memorial Coliseum

A Memorial Service in Memory of the Kentuckians who gave their lives in the Korean Conflict that others might live in peace, erect and strong and free.

"THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE THAT ARE LEFT GROW OLD:
AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN.

AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN AND IN THE MORNING WE WILL REMEMBER THEM."

Laurence Binyon's lines (above), now inscribed in stone in the entrance of Memorial Coliseum, are the inspirational source of Dr. Kenneth Wright's music, "For the Fallen," performed on this dedicatory occasion by the University Symphony Orchestra and the large University Chorus.

Thirteen hundred men from the three branches of the University of Kentucky R.O.T.C., embracing the Infantry, Signal Corps, and the Air Force, joined in this dedicatory program.

WE CELEBRATE OUR CENTENNIAL IN '65

President Donovan

In 1965, the University of Kentucky will be celebrating its hundredth anniversary. It is our ardent hope that this will be a great and grand occasion. It is not too early for the trustees, the faculty and the alumni to be thinking and planning for this momentous event. Let us now begin our preparation for that anniversary.

We should begin to think presently about how the University will look in 1965. What will your University be like a decade from now? What must we do in the years immediately ahead to present a University on our hundredth birthday that will meet the needs of that day in its service to the youth and the state? Will we have a University at that time comparable to other state universities in our region?

The next decade promises to be the most challenging in American higher education this country has thus far witnessed. There are many problems that must be faced and solved between now and 1965. Some of these problems are urgent. All of our problems cannot be solved at the same time; therefore, these problems should be identified and defined. Priorities should be determined and ways and means to implement them should be found.

A phenomenal growth in enrollment can be predicted for any university that is prepared to receive it. Will the University of Kentucky be prepared? How can the increasing cost of higher education be provided for? The increasing responsibility and demand on the University for the education of personnel to man industries and commerce and the professions is a problem that grows more complex and acute with each passing year and is a challenge to the faculty, trustees and alumni. Institutions of higher education are being called upon by both industry and government to provide basic and applied research as never before in the history of education. How to meet these demands without wrecking the teaching program of the University will tax the ingenuity of both the faculty and administration. During the next ten years the curricula of the University should be subjected to a most critical review and many revisions made in our offerings. A university in the future will be much more concerned with the continuing education of our adults. College education will not be terminated with the receiving of a diploma or a degree, but the individual will make demands on the university for both general and vocational education during the duration of his life. What adjustments will the University be compelled to make to meet this challenge and how can the programs be provided? These are but a few of the complex and pressing problems facing the trustees, alumni, faculty and administration not only of our University but of every university in the land. Already some of our more progressive and alert universities are appointing committees to take a look at the future and to make preparations to meet it with an intelligent program. We must not drift into the future but plan for it. A laissez-faire procedure will prove fatal for any educational institution that pursues such a course.

The Board of Trustees has already directed the President to appoint a committee of very able members of the faculty to begin a study of what the University of Kentucky can and should look like at the time of our centennial celebration. Would it not be desirable to ask the Alumni Association of the University also to set up a committee that would plan for the future development of its Alma Mater? This committee should have in mind what the University will look like in 1965 when it celebrates its hundredth anniversary. It should assist the trustees and the faculty in helping the University to round out a balanced program of higher education.

What can the alumni do? Many things. Prominent among the contributions it can make is the development of a wholesome public opinion regarding the University's financial needs and a citizenry enlightened on the value of the University to the people of Kentucky. The University is far behind in its building program. It will take at least ten years to catch up on this building deficit. Already approximately 2500 students must attend classes in temporary wooden barracks placed on the campus by the Federal Government to provide classrooms for G.I.'s. Above all other needs is a better salary scale for professors that we may hold our outstanding teachers and research workers. Help to build a new medical school that has already been authorized by the Board of Trustees and have it in complete operation by 1965. There are other needs which an alert committee of alumni will discover if such a committee is created by the Alumni Association.

My prayer is that every Kentuckian may realize that his best investment can be made in building a state university comparable to the state universities we find in our most progressive states. Let us, working together, give the University of Kentucky a new look by the time our hundredth anniversary arrives in 1965.

H. A. Donovan

President

Neel, Baker, To Head UK Alumni

Cooper, Evans and Griffin on Board

Newton W. Neel, city engineer of Henderson, has been elected president of the University of Kentucky Alumni Association for the coming year. It was announced June third at the association's annual banquet and meeting.

The Henderson city official succeeds R. R. Dawson of Bloomfield as president of the alumni group. Dawson introduced Neel and other new officers at the dinner program.

New alumni vice president is Homer L. Baker of Louisville, who succeeds T. H. Hardwick of Lexington in that capacity. Three new members elected to the group's executive committee are Richard E. Cooper, Somerset; Herndon J. Evans, Pineville; and Gerald Griffin, Pikeville.

Neel attended the University from 1921 to 1924. He was assistant city engineer of Henderson from 1924-1930, city engineer from 1930-1938, engineer for the WPA 1938-1943, engineer for Servel, Inc., 1943-1945, and city engineer of Henderson since 1945.

He is a director of the Kentucky Municipal League, member of the Kentucky Water Pollution Control Commission, member of the UK Alumni Executive Board, and a member of the Henderson County Alumni Club.

Baker, the new vice president, is a native of Midway. He has been general sales manager of the Louisville Cement Company, Louisville, since 1946. He has served as a member of the Executive Committee of the UK Alumni Association and is a member of the Jefferson County Alumni Club.

Richard Cooper of Somerset, one of the new executive committee members to take office this year for terms of three years, was graduated "with distinction" from the University in 1938. Currently, he is general manager and part owner of the Somerset Stone Company.

Herndon J. Evans of Pineville, the second new executive board member, was graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1921. He has worked for the Associated Press and the Courier-

Newton W. Neel

Journal and moved to Pineville in 1923 as editor of the Pineville Sun. Currently he is president of the Sun Publishing Company, and he is an alumnus member of the UK Board of Trustees.

The third addition to the committee, Gerald Griffin of Pikeville, received the A.B. degree from the University in 1922. At the present time he is chief of the Courier-Journal's East Kentucky Bureau.

He served several years in the U. S. Army, and when relieved of active duty in 1949 he held the rank of colonel, which he still holds in the active reserve.

Principal speaker at the annual Alumni Association banquet was Prof. Elvis J. Stahr Jr., dean of the UK College of Law, and newly appointed provost of the University. Dean Stahr, a UK graduate and Rhodes Scholar, chose as his subject UK AND US. The full text of his address is included in this issue.

Dodge Whipple, A.B. '39, LL.B. '46, of Paris, has been named executive assistant to the Kentucky Commissioner of Conservation. Mr. Whipple has been attorney for the Conservation Department since last September.

Dean Terrell Gets Honorary Degree

Dean D. V. Terrell, '10, of the College of Engineering, has been awarded an honorary doctor of engineering degree by the South Dakota School of Mines and Technology at Rapid City, S. D.

The UK Dean, who holds the post of president of the American Society of Civil Engineers, addressed the South Dakota graduates on "The Engineer and the World Population." He was the only recipient of a doctorate degree at the commencement program since the school's founding, 70 years ago.

Dean Terrell has also recently been chosen by Gov. Goodwin J. Knight of California to serve as consultant for the construction of a new bridge across San Francisco Bay. Serving with Dean Terrell as consultant is Richard E. Dougherty, of New York, past president of the ASCE.

Dr. Jasper B. Shannon, professor of political science has been awarded a Fulbright research grant for a year's study at the University of Oslo, Oslo, Norway. While there Dr. Shannon will be engaged in research on the topic, "The Influence of Money in the Selection of Political Leaders." He will leave this month for Norway.

Class of '04 and 13 Others Reune

Fourteen classes, headed by the Golden Anniversary group, the class of 1904, came back to the campus last June to celebrate reunion time.

Alumni Day, Thursday, June 3, began with registration of all returning alumni in the offices of the Alumni Association in the Student Union, and was followed by a brunch, held on the east concourse of Memorial Coliseum. Feature of the brunch was the presentation of the "most valuable senior" award to Jim Perry, graduating senior from Louisville, by members of Alma Magna Mater, student group composed of children of former University students. The presentation was made by Tom Brabant of Elkton and Carol Gudgel, of Buffalo, N. Y., children of Stuart Brabant and John Gudgel, respectively.

Thursday afternoon the alumni enjoyed the hospitality of President and Mrs. Donovan at a tea at Maxwell Place, and that evening the annual banquet and meeting of the Alumni Association was held in the ballroom of the Student Union, with Alumni President R. R. Dawson presiding.

Friday at noon the commencement luncheon was held in the ballroom of the Union, and that evening all returning alumni attended graduation exercises in Memorial Coliseum, at which time 21 members of the class of 1904 were called to the commencement platform by N. W. Neel, newly elected president of the Alumni Association, to receive their Half Century Club certificates.

Those of the 1904 class returning were: Robert C. Butner, Lexington; Sarah Smedley Coons, Lexington; William B. Crutchfield, Ferguson, Ky.; Helen Madara Dyer, Buffalo, N. Y.; J. H. Gardner, Tulsa, Okla.; Carroll H. Gullion, New Castle, Ky.; Henry J. Hafendorfer, Louisville; Eloise McCaw Hughes, Versailles; Walter P. Kelley, Berkeley, Calif.; Mary J. Maguire, Lexington; John E. Matthews, Knoxville, Tenn.; Louis E. Nollau, Lexington; Heber H. Rice, Washington, D. C.; Lillian A. Robertson, Lexington; Zella Thurman Roberts, Somerset; John Craig Shelby, Lexington; W. M. Shobe, Salem, N. J.; Joseph J. Volpert, Louisville; Nannie Tucker

Wallingford, Maysville; Dr. George H. Wilson, Lexington and Henry J. Wurtele, Birmingham, Ala.

Other classes holding special reunions were: 1914, celebrating its 40th, 1929, celebrating its 25th, and the classes of 1906, '08 and '09; 1925, '26, '27, and '28; and 1945, '46, '47, and '48.

Class parties were held on Wednesday and Thursday nights by the classes of 1909, 1914, and 1925, '26, '27, '28 and '29.

Members of the 1909 class, back to celebrate its 45th reunion, were:

Mrs. Helen Daugherty Hazelrigg, Paris; Rhoda Glass, Mrs. Edith Isaacs Weil, J. S. Crosthwaite, Charles White, and J. S. Horine, all of Lexington; Mrs. Sara Kaufman Schwab, Denver, Colo.; Pearl Hinesley, Roanoke, Va.; Inez Luten, Jackson, Ky.; Mrs. Ivy

Troll McBride, Shepherdsville, Ky.; Mrs. Henrietta Oberdorfer Linville, Paris, Ky.; T. C. Carroll, Shepherdsville; O. B. Chisholm, Harrodsburg; Charles A. Johns, East Orange, N. J.; Harry Letton, Carlisle; Judge Robert Maddox, Middlesboro; Dr. Murray Raney, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Dr. Stephen A. Rapiere, South Orange, N. J.; and Dr. Philip L. Blumenthal, Indianapolis, Ind.

Approximately 500 students, alumni, and faculty members enjoyed the hospitality of the Alumni Association during exam and commencement week at its annual coffee and coke hours in the Music Room of the Student Union.

Dr. Walter P. Kelley, professor of agricultural chemistry at the University of California at Berkeley, who came back to the campus in June to celebrate the 50th reunion of his class, and Dr. Linwood A. Brown, head of UK's Public Service laboratories, were honored by Alumni President R. R. Dawson at the annual banquet on June 3. Dr. Kelley received the gift for having come the longest distance, and Dr. Brown received the gift representing the oldest alumnus present at the banquet. Dr. Brown is a member of the class of 1903.

Homecoming Set For Nov. 6

Vandy-Ky. Game Will Be Main Attraction

Kentucky homecoming is being set up for the Vanderbilt football game, Saturday afternoon, Nov. 6, and plans are going forward to offer all returning alumni a day of entertainment and, we hope—victory.

Homecoming arrangements in the immediate past have met with almost universal approval, so the Alumni Executive Committee is scheduling the same events for the 1954 Homecoming.

Saturday morning there will be registration booths in the lobbies of the Phoenix, Lafayette, Kentuckian hotels and at Campbell House, as well as in the foyers of the Student Union and Memorial Coliseum. Members of the executive board will serve as your hosts and inform you as to the day's events.

'04 Football Team To Reune Sept. 18

Plans are in the formative stages for a reunion on Sept. 18 of the 1904 Wildcat football team, the occasion being the opening home game between Kentucky and Maryland.

The idea for such a reunion originated with Presley Atkins, '06, of Norton, Va., a member of the '04, squad, who suggested that the first game under the direction of Coach Blanton L. Collier would be an appropriate time for the 50th reunion of the 1904 team.

Col. B. E. Brewer, of Lexington, a member of the team has kindly consented to cooperate with the Alumni Office in contacting the living members of the squad, and efforts are being made to get in touch with all of them.

The team will be the guest of the UK Athletics Association for the game, and special seats will be reserved for them. Further plans will be announced later.

Carl Wendell Allen, of Blacksburg, Va., who holds the B.S. and M.S. degrees from the University of Kentucky was granted the Ph.D. degree at the 83rd annual commencement exercises at Iowa State College last June. His major was agricultural economics.

At noon the traditional brunch will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. in the ballroom of the Student Union. Come early, park on campus and walk across to the stadium in time for the game.

Following the game President and Mrs. Donovan will be at home to alumni, faculty and friends at the annual open house at Maxwell Place, and that night the Alumni Association will be host to all returning alumni and their friends at the annual homecoming dance in the ballroom of the Lafayette hotel. An orchestra will furnish music for the dance.

It is necessary for the Alumni Office to have some indication of the number who expect to attend the brunch at noon that day, so please drop a card to the UK Alumni Association, Room 124 Student Union, and let us know how many will be in your luncheon party.

S. A. Rapier Honored

Stephen A. Rapier, New York exporter, godfather of the Greater New York Alumni Association of the University and distinguished alumnus of the institution, was one of two native sons of Kentucky to receive an honorary Doctor of Laws degree at the annual June commencement exercises. Joseph M. Hartfield, New York attorney and senior partner in one of the largest law firms in the world also was honored with an LL.D. degree. Mr. Rapier is a native of Lareue county and Mr. Hartfield of Henderson county.

Sullivan Awards to Civic Leader, Grads

Lewis Allen, of Bowling Green, part owner of the Farm Supply Stores there, past president of the Warren County Farm Bureau and of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, received the Sullivan Medallion at the June commencement exercises as a "leader and constructive citizen."

Mr. Allen has been a member of the board of directors of the American Farm Bureau Federation since 1949.

The two graduating seniors to receive the award were Elaine Moore and Diogenes Allen, both of Lexington and both in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Miss Moore has been active in many student groups, is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the YWCA cabinet and the Student Government Assembly as well as president of the Wesley Foundation.

Mr. Allen, a student of the classics and philosophy was the recipient of the Patterson Literary Society Scholarship and the Brent Prize in American History last year. He has been awarded a Princeton National Fellowship. A member of Phi Beta Kappa and O.D.K., he was sent on a missionary journey around the world in 1952 by the Presbyterian Church of the United States. He also was chosen as a student delegate to the World Council of Churches convocation held in Evanston this past summer.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNER HAS GRADUATE GRANT

Dolly Sullivent, '54, of Lexington, a June graduate who, four years ago won the Alumni Loyalty Fund scholarship, has won another award—a $500 journalism scholarship from the National League of American Pen Women.

Dolly, 21, was nominated by Miss Jane Haselden, assistant dean of women at the University, and Mrs. George S. Hart, Murray, Ky., president of the Kentucky chapter of the national group. She submitted an autobiography and a story on Lexington's community Christmas party this past year.

Miss Sullivent also has been offered, and has accepted, an $800 fellowship for post-graduate study in journalism at the University of Oregon next year.

Group Forms Corporation To Promote Medical College

The steering committee of the University of Kentucky Medical College, authorized last May by the University of Kentucky Board of Trustees, has voted to set up a corporation under the name of the Kentucky Medical Foundation, to conduct a promotional and education campaign for the proposed college.

The committee, of which J. Stephen Watkins is chairman, met early in June to discuss the proposed medical school.

Mr. Watkins said the corporation's work would be a promotional project to acquaint the citizens of Kentucky with the plans for the medical school and for its furtherance with the next State Legislature.

In addition to the chairman, those present at the meeting were: Edward S. Dabney, Dr. Francis M. Massie, Dr. Coleman Johnston, Gilmore Nunn and Dr. J. S. Chambers, committee members; Guy A. Huguelet, chairman of the executive committee of the Board of Trustees, and Fred B. Wachs, general manager of the Lexington Herald-Leader Company.

William A. Tucker, '42, of Louisville, has been named football coach at Corbin High School. Mr. Tucker is a Korean Army veteran and held the rank of major.

LOUISVILLE CLUB GIVES SCHOLARSHIP

The Jefferson County UK Alumni Association, under the leadership of President Claude S. Sprowls, has established and made available a one-year tuition scholarship to the University, effective in September.

The recipient of the scholarship, which was established last spring as an annual custom, is Helen Elaine Stanley, 17, of 907 Ash St., Louisville, a 1954 graduate of Theodore Ahrens Trade School.

Miss Stanley ranked third among 242 graduates at Ahrens last June. She will major in business administration at U.K.

President Sprowls was chosen by Jefferson County Alumni as the outstanding member of the Louisville group for 1953-54.

UK Starts New College July 1: Dr. Lyman V. Ginger Is Dean

Establishment of a College of Adult and Extension Education at the University, effective July 1, was authorized by the Board of Trustees at its quarterly meeting last June. Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, '42, director of the University School was named dean of the new college.

Functions of the College will include:

(1) Operation of the Northern Ky. Extension Center at Covington and other similar centers that may be established.

(2) Operation of all extension classes whether offered for credit or without credit and whether offered on or off campus.

(3) Organization and management, in cooperation with the dean or department head involved, of all instructions not covered in the regular schedule of classes, including institutes, special school, conferences, clinics and short courses.

However, this authority will not apply to such activities previously organized and continuing under another jurisdiction, nor will it apply to such activities of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics and its Extension Service.

(4) Direction and management of all correspondence courses.

(5) Operation of the Bureau of Audio-Visual Materials, including the management of all film services both off and on the campus.

(6) Planning and management of all University services to the high schools of the state, including music, speech and drama festivals, and other activities of a related character not previously organized under a different jurisdiction.

(7) Management of club and community services such as those now being made available by the Department of University Extension, and others that may seem desirable.

The College of Adult and Extension Education will not have a faculty of its own except for the full-time instructors required at the Northern Ky. Extension Center or in any other center similarly operated.

Dr. Ginger is a native of Ballard county, and received the B.A. degree from Kentucky Wesleyan College and the master and doctor of education degrees from the University of Kentucky. He served as principal and coach of Winchester and Owingsville High School and has been director of the University School since 1944. He served these past two years as president of the Kentucky Education Association.

Prof. Louis Clifton, who for 27 years has served as director of the Department of University Extension, will remain in that position and will work with Dr. Ginger in developing the University's adult education program.

C. R. Holloway, an alumnus of the University living in Cincinnati, recently was named sales manager of the Ohio division of Church and Dwight, Co., Inc. His offices will be at 1401 Ingalls Bldg., Cincinnati.

A. P. Shanklin Heads Air Conditioning Corporation

Arthur P. Shanklin, '22, native Kentuckian who has served for 32 years with the Carrier Corporation and as a vice president of the firm since 1942, has returned to his native state as president of Air Conditioning Corporation, Louisville. He is also part owner.

The firm is the distributor in this area for the complete line of residential, office and small store air conditioning equipment of Carrier.

A major expansion of the corporation was announced by Mr. Shanklin last spring. The expansion enlarges the territory served by Air Conditioning Corporation and will also result in a greater selection of air conditioning equipment being made available to the public and the appointment of increased numbers of dealers to provide local sales and service.

Mr. Shanklin, a native of Lexington, assumed the presidency of the Louisville firm last March.

Arthur P. Shanklin

Bill Moseley Added To UK Grid Staff

The Kentucky football staff was completed last May with the addition of Bill Moseley, former captain-fullback of the Wildcats. Coach Blanton L. Collier announced the appointment of the sixth full-time assistant and the completion of the staff.

The 31-year-old Moseley returns to the campus from Sidney Lanier High School in Montgomery, Ala. where he has coached since his graduation from the University in 1948. His 1951 Lanier eleven was undefeated.

At Kentucky, Moseley rejoins two of his former Lanier assistants—Charlie Bradshaw and Matt Lair, who, like Moseley, are ex-Wildcats.

Bill Moseley played at Kentucky in 1941 and 1942. He then entered service, and returned after the war, completing his eligibility in 1947 and 1948. He helped coach the Cats as a graduate student when he received his master's degree.

Don't forget HOMECOMING!

Seven Teams Feted By Fayette Alumni

The second annual Spring Sports Banquet, sponsored by the Fayette County UK Alumni Association, was held last May at Boiling Springs Country Club near Lexington, at which time seven teams making up the spring sports program at UK, were honored.

Participants in baseball, track, tennis, golf, swimming, fencing and rifle, and their coaches, were feted at the banquet, at which approximately 300 were in attendance.

Mrs. Hampton C. Adams, outgoing president of the Fayette county group presided at the dinner, and introduced President H. L. Donovan, who brought greetings from the University.

J. Ed Parker, III, last year's program chairman and newly elected president of the club served as master of ceremonies, and introduced Claude Sullivan and J. B. Faulconer, well-known local sports commentators, who conducted a 35-minute interview program with the coaches of the various teams.

Louis Karibo, a member of the swimming and track teams gave the invocation.

Other officers elected to serve with Mr. Parker, were: Mrs. Elmer Gilb, vice president; Mrs. John C. Owens, secretary and Robert L. Landrum, treasurer.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. Gilb presented a silver cup to Mrs. Adams as a token of appreciation from the club for her fine, two-year administration.

Young Alum Heads V.P.I. Department

Thomas M. Hahn, Jr., professor of physics at the University of Kentucky has been appointed head of Virginia Polytechnic Institute's physics department.

Dr. Louis A. Pardue, U.K. graduate, vice president of V.P.I. announced the appointment.

Dr. Hahn is a native of Kentucky, and received his B.S. degree from the University in 1945. After a year of graduate study in physics at the University of Maryland he went to Massachusetts Institute of Technology where he received his Ph.D. degree in 1950.

He then joined the U.K. faculty as associate professor of physics. During the summer of 1951 he worked at Oak Ridge National Laboratory, Oak Ridge, Tenn., and in 1952 was promoted to professor of physics at the University.

Dr. Thomas M. Hahn, Jr.

One Of First 12 Marshall Scholarships To UK Man

Charles E. Whaley, a Louisville Courier Journal reporter and a native of Williamstown, Ky., who was graduated from the University of Kentucky summa cum laude in 1949, is one of the first 12 Americans to be awarded Marshall Scholarships by the British Government.

Charles E. Whaley

The British Foreign Office in London announced the names of the winners last April. Each of the twelve will study at a British school for two years. Whaley will do graduate work in English literature at Manchester University. He will take a leave of absence from the Courier Journal.

The scholarships are named for General George C. Marshall, who was United States Secretary of State when the Marshall plan of aid to foreign countries began. The scholarships are token thanks for the Marshall plan aid.

Whaley, 26, also holds the master of science degree from Columbia University's Pulitzer School of Graduate Journalism. At UK, he received the Algernon Sydney Sullivan medallion as outstanding man in the senior class and won departmental honors in journalism. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Omicron Delta Kappa honor societies.

Active in many other student organizations, he also edited the yearbook. He joined the Courier Journal staff in 1950, left to serve two years in the Army, and then returned to rejoin the staff. He has been editor of the monthly publication of the UK Alumni Association of Jefferson county.

Mr. Whaley leaves for England in September.

William Stone, Jr. Receives Promotion

William O. Stone, Jr. former UK student, has been appointed to the position of purchasing agent for the Research Center of The Babcock and Wilcox Company in Alliance, Ohio.

Since joining The Babcock & Wilcox Co. in Alliance, Ohio in January 1947, Bill has progressed from his original duties of special assignment to specific duties in the purchasing department during the early days of the Research Center.

In 1951 Bill was promoted from assistant to the purchasing agent to assistant purchasing agent and worked in that capacity until his recent appointment.

After leaving the University of Kentucky, Bill served a short period in the Army Air Force and in 1941 went to Akron, Ohio to join the Goodyear Aircraft Corporation in the Lighter-than-air Section where all the Naval Patrol Blimps were made during World War II. At the close of the L.T.A. program, served as head of material procurement authorization for the P-61 Black Widow and B-29 modification groups.

After leaving Goodyear, Bill spent a year and one-half with the Taylorcraft Aviation Company in Alliance prior to joining The Babcock & Wilcox Company.

Homecoming with Vandy—November 6th.

UK'S PHI BETA KAPPA HONORS W. HUGH PEAL

W. Hugh Peal, '22, member of a well-known New York law firm and Rhodes Scholar from Kentucky in 1922, addressed the Alpha of Kentucky chapter of Phi Beta Kappa last May before his initiation, with 12 students, at a ceremony held on the campus.

Mr. Peal was selected as one of the first group elected to membership in the Alpha of Kentucky chapter, but was unable to be present for initiation when the chapter was founded several years after his graduation.

The Rhodes scholar and collector of books and manuscripts addressed the group on the subject, "In Search of Charles Lamb."

Ray Troutman, B.S. '31, M.S. '32, formerly of Newport, Ky., is the author of "A History of The School of Library Service, Columbia University." (New York, Columbia University Press, 1954; Bicentennial History of Columbia University). It is a concise and lively history of Columbia's School of Library Service, the oldest library school in the United States. UK Grad Author Of Army Series Volume "The Supreme Command"

Dr. Forrest C. Pogue, World War II historian, author and former professor of history; a native of Eddyville, Ky., who holds the master's degree from the University of Kentucky, obtained in 1932, is the author of a volume in the European subseries of the U.S. ARMY IN WORLD WAR II which has just come from the press this summer. It is entitled "The Supreme Command."

Published by the Office of the Chief of Military History, Department of the Army, Washington, 25, D.C., the book is on public sale and may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington.

Dr. Pogue holds the A.B. degree from Murray, Ky. State College, the masters degree from UK and a Ph.D. from Clark University, Worcester, Mass., he has studied diplomatic history and international relations at Clark and the University of Paris; served in five World War II campaigns as combat historian with the First Army from Omaha Beach to Pilzen; and holds the Bronze Star and French Croix de Guerre for combat interviews.

Prior to the war Dr. Pogue was American Exchange Fellow in international relations, Institut des Hautes Internationales, at the University of Paris; instructor in European history at Western Ky. State College; instructor-professor in history and international relations at Murray; and professorial lecturer in diplomatic history at George Washington University, Washington, D. C.

He was drafted into the Army in 1942 and served until March 1944 as assistant to historians in the Second Army at which time he was transferred to Historical Branch, G-2, and assigned as combat historian. He was

Kentucky Schedule Toughest In SEC

By KEN KUHN
Sports Publicity Editor

In the vocabulary of the sports-writer, a catchy phrase often explains a situation to the public better than a thousand words and the typewriter trapezists are tickling the keys of their phrase-producing machines overtime about this time of year trying to come up with a tidbit to explain the highly difficult football schedule to be faced by Coach Blanton Collier's Wildcats this fall.

The choicest of these tricky phrases seems to be the tab, "suicide slate."

That pretty aptly describes the biggest problem faced by Kentucky's new head grid mentor in his first attempt to field a winning collegiate eleven. The schedule inherited by the successor to departed "Bear" Bryant not only is the most difficult ever faced by a U.K. football team, it has been voted without qualification as the toughest slate to be played by any Southeastern Conference outfit this season.

A recent poll of coaches and sports-writers throughout the South, conducted by the Birmingham News, pointed out: "Blanton Collier will get the full treatment in his rookie head coaching season at Kentucky. There won't be a year of easy preparation to learn the facts of life in a tough football circuit.

"He's jumping in deep water right off the mark. The major inheritance left him at Lexington by Texas-gone Paul Bryant was the league's toughest conference schedule. Collier's first Wildcats play seven family foes. According to The Birmingham News spring poll, over-all, they rate the roughest of the 12 conference schedules. Kentucky, seventh-ranked (picked to finish seventh in the SEC title race) itself, must meet five of the six first-division teams: Georgia Tech, Mississippi, Auburn, Tennessee and LSU. Their "breathers" amount to eighth-ranked Florida and last-placed Vanderbilt."

The poll did not concern itself with the non-conference opposition to be faced by Kentucky or the other league units. However, there is every reason to believe that an analysis of this part of the schedule would have clinched the title of "toughest schedule" even stronger for the Bluegrass school. Just for good measure, the Wildcats will open their '54 schedule against last season's national champion, Maryland. Also on tap in the non-conference category are major eastern independent, Villanova, and a Memphis State crew that flexed surprisingly strong single-wing muscles in their "Tennessee warmup" tangle with Kentucky last season.

Just in case any "Doubting Tom's" care to criticize that the Wildcats' schedule "just sounds tough on paper," let's take a brief look at the prospects for 1954 of the teams.

MARYLAND—September 18 at Lexington: The Terrapins are a prime choice among the experts to be vying for national championship honors again in '54. Well-heeled with powerful backs and bruising linemen, the loss of seven first stringers will hardly presage a big drop in Maryland's football fortunes, it is said. The second-stringers were well seasoned last year as Coach Jim Tatum stuck almost religiously to playing his number two men in the second and last quarters in a team unit substitution plan. Replacing famed quarterback Bernie Faloney will be a boy by the name of Charley Boxold, a veteran of two years who can run and pass about as well as his predecessor and will be a key figure in Kentucky's defense planning. The situation at most of the other vacant positions runs about the same, with either second stringers moving up or veterans shifted from another spot. Maryland, which has met with varying degrees of success and some upsetting losses at the hands of Southeastern Conference elevens in recent years, will be the highest-rated, non-conference football adversary ever to play the Wildcats in Lexington. The two teams have met on the gridiron only once previously—that meeting taking place at College Park, Md., in 1931 and resulting in a 6-6 deadlock.

MISSISSIPPI—September 25 at Memphis: While Kentucky received the nod for the hardest way to go, schedule-wise, the Rebels were spotted as a good darkhorse bet with the easiest path to travel in quest of the coveted conference championship. There's not a real toughie to be found anywhere on Mississippi's schedule, but rumblings out of the Mid-South foretell trouble from the Johnny Rebs regardless of strength of opposition faced. They finished in a tie with U.K. for second place in the SEC rankings last year, after humbling an impotent early-season Wildcat team 22-6, and are picked right up there with Georgia Tech and Alabama during the coming campaign. Watch Bobby McCool, best fullback in the South.

Let's help Coach Collier make the long road from Maryland to Tennessee an easy one. See you in September!

SUKY CIRCLE

LOUISIANA STATE—October 2 at Lexington: Most of the people supposedly “in the know” are saying LSU is in something of the same pickle as the Wildcats—possessed of young, inexperienced hands who though potentially capable are handicapped by the calibre of opposition to be faced. The Tigers schedule is just tough enough, with Texas and Alabama on tap successive weekends before the meeting with Kentucky, to make them “ready” by early October. They have 19 lettermen returning, topped by tackle Sid Fournet, end Joe Tuminello and quarterback Al Doggett.

AUBURN—October 9 at Lexington: It may be a good thing this tilt is carded as a night encounter for the ‘Cats may never know what hit them anyway when powerful and “coming” Auburn goes by. Considered something of a darkhorse in the conference, but highly respected nationally—even picked as one of the country’s best by some. There’s not even a little note of pessimism in the Auburn camp. They come right out and admit the Plainsmen should be stronger in ‘54 when they return to the U.K. schedule for the first time since 1935. No wonder when Coach Ralph Jordan will have back 16 of 23 lettermen who participated in the Gator Bowl last New Year’s Day.

FLORIDA—October 16 at Gainesville: The Wildcats used “Gator Bait” to good advantage in starting their sensational comeback last season, but things could be different in ‘54. Coach Bob Woodruff claims a lot of new faces will be in the lineup, despite the presence of 25 returning lettermen, but it’s likely to be a toughened and shaken down crew by the time they are through with Rice, Ga. Tech, Auburn and Clemson before the Kentucky game.

GEORGIA TECH—October 23 at Atlanta: The defending Sugar Bowl champions are nominated as one of the nation’s top elevens again this year and are the choice to pick up head of the class honors in the SEC race. Kentucky’s only advantage in this year’s contest stems from the fact that they were all even in the conference standings (tied for second) at season’s end and hold the distinction of last victory in the series (28-14 in 1950). The advantage is expected to be short-lived. Twenty-five letter veterans return, including 10 front line reserves who will make up any deficiencies caused by graduation from the talent-laden lineup.

President Donovan Brings Honor to UK

Dr. Herman Lee Donovan, '14, was elected president of the National Association of State Universities last May.

VILLANOVA—October 30 at Lexington: This major eastern independent power is always sizeable and dangerous. The Philly Wildcats are certain to also be something of a mystery team this year with a new coach due to be at the helm and a squad made up largely of sophomores.

VANDERBILT—November 6 at Lexington: Losses by graduation from last season’s off-again, on-again eleven were not heavy and the Commodores could be preparing themselves carefully for the rough seas ahead. They are picked for a cellar finish in the conference standings, but even though they are seemingly one of the soft touches on the schedule no one dares to take them lightly.

MEMPHIS STATE—November 13 at Lexington: Scheduled as a “practice” against the single-wing style of attack used by Tennessee, little Memphis State almost proved a giant killer in their series opener against the ‘Cats last season. Flexing surprisingly strong muscles in their own right and failing to play their role as directed, the Tigers must be watched more closely this time.

TENNESSEE—November 20 at Knoxville: The Volunteers are still smarting from the 27-21 shellacking administered by the Wildcats last year and are not apt to be very understanding about the fact that the “Old Beer Keg” is in the Bluegrass for the first time since 1935. The General’s successor, Harvey Robinson, is supposed to be in the second year of a five-year rebuilding program and claims the ‘54 Volunteers will be the most inexperienced in Tennessee history, but you can bet that there will be plenty of booby traps around this season to give the Wildcats fits.

Memphis Writer Says UK Cagers "Best"

Walter Stewart Speaks at Banquet

Walter Stewart, sports editor of the Memphis, Tenn., Commercial Appeal hailed Kentucky's 1953-54 cage squad as the greatest basketball team of all time and called criticism against it "an inferiority complex of inferior people" at the annual banquet tendered the coaches and squad by the UK Alumni Association last May.

"No athletic group ever overcame such difficult obstacles and came through with such glory," said Mr. Stewart, the banquet's principal speaker.

Coach Adolph Rupp, praising his squad for overcoming "insurmountable obstacles" asked that Athletic Director Bernie Shively permanently retire seven jersey numbers, as follows: Cliff Hagan, No. 6; Lou Tsioropoulos, No.

16; Frank Ramsey, No. 30; Bill Evans, No. 42; Gayle Rose, No. 20; Phil Grawmeyer, No. 44 and Linville Puckett, No. 33. Evans, Rose, Grawmeyer and Puckett's numbers won't be retired until they complete their eligibility.

Bill Evans was named 1954-55 captain by his teammates, and special awards were made as follows:

The Jerry Lederer Trophy to the most valuable player, voted by his teammates, went to Cliff Hagan.

The WVLK Albert Benjamin Chandler Trophy, based on leadership, scholarship, character and ability, to Frank Ramsey for the third time.

The three graduating seniors, Ramsey, Hagan and Tsioropoulos expressed their appreciation to Coaches Rupp and Harry Lancaster for developing them as players and for treating them as friends and counselors, and presented gifts to the two coaches.

The Alumni Association, as is its annual custom, gave the three graduating seniors silver candleabra as gifts from alumni and friends of the University, and the Owensboro UK Alumni Club presented to the University a blown-up color photograph of its "favorite son," All-America Cliff Hagan, to be hung in the Memorial Coliseum.

The 1954 team is the first and only team in the history of modern basketball to be acclaimed national champion even though it did not compete in a national tournament this year. It was voted the Helms Foundation award as the nation's No. 1 team, and was also so chosen by the nation's newspaper men in a national Associated Press poll.

"The Three Big Boys," Ramsey, Hagan and Tsioropoulos, reap the praises of Speaker Walter Stewart, (left) and Coach Adolph Rupp, (right) at the annual alumni basketball banquet.

1954-55 Basketball Schedule

University of Kentucky Athletic Director Bernie Shively has announced a 24-game basketball schedule for the Wildcats for the 1954-55 season. The card will include the Kentucky Invitational Tourney to be held in Memorial Coliseum on Dec. 21, 22. The schedule:

Annual Report To The Alumni

The annual meeting of the University of Kentucky Alumni Association was held in conjunction with the Alumni Banquet Thursday night, June 3, 1954 in the Ballroom of the Student Union Building.

Mr. H. D. Palmore, of Frankfort, made a motion that the minutes of the May meeting and the minutes of the annual meeting, June 4, 1953, be filed as published. Seconded by Mr. N. W. Neel, of Henderson, the motion carried.

Miss Helen G. King gave the annual secretary's report as follows:

The books have been balanced, the records have been entered and another year in the history of the University of Kentucky Alumni Association has drawn to a close.

It is a good and healthy custom to review, at this time each year, the successes and failures, the proud moments and the heartaches which have gone into the work of the Association, so that you whom we represent, will feel a closeness to this long arm of the University—which attempts to clasp you to the heart of the campus, no matter how much distance lies between you and Alma Mater.

We who work constantly in your interests, and in the interests of the University look back frequently across that long stretch of years since 1889 when this Association was founded, and bow reverently in memory to those men and women who conceived and put into effect this organization—notable among them being its first president, Dr. Alfred M. Peter, who died last August at the age of 96, and, in paying them tribute, we wonder if we are carrying forward their concept of a great Alumni Association?

I am going to review for you, briefly, tonight, the achievements of 1953-54, but in so doing I hope to arouse a soul-searching in each of you, an attitude of better cooperation in the years to come, a feeling that this organization, above all others, belongs to you and that, without you, it has no purpose and no future.

One of the heartaches attached to the job of secretary has been the fact that during the year just closed we fell 170 members short of our goal of 5,000 for 1953-54. While the total reached, 4,830, more than this Association has ever enrolled, it still seems an inadequate figure when one considers that there are 25,000 good addresses on the Alumni Association records.

I received a letter recently from a prominent law alumnus now practicing in Birmingham, Ala., in which he suggests that both A and B classes of membership be raised at least $1.00 per year. This question has been discussed by the alumni executive board on numerous occasions, and is one that must be acted on by the general membership at an annual meeting such as this. I believe that it should be considered, but I think it is a question which should be given much thought, so I am recommending to the executive committee that it be placed on the agenda for consideration at the annual meeting in 1954-55.

This past year, for the first time in many, the University Board of Trustees and the Alumni Association granted one year's free membership to all graduating seniors, in the hope that such a gift would stimulate continuing interest in active membership. It is too soon to see the results of this gift membership, but we hope that it will have proved to be a good investment. Such gift memberships to each graduating class will be continued so long as the purpose is justified.

This year the Association initiated a suggestion to President Donovan and the University Library, whereby memorial bookplates would be placed in appropriate volumes of the library in memory of alumni who died during the year. Dr. Lawrence Thompson, director of libraries, enthusiastically cooperated with President Donovan in carrying out this idea, with the result that dozens of bookplates have been placed in books in the library, and the President has so notified the families of deceased alumni.

The Alumni Association again sponsored the annual "Alumnus of the Year" award, which was presented between halves of the Homecoming game to Mr. R. R. Dawson, president of the Alumni Association. The recipient of this award is chosen by members of Alma Magna Mater, the children of former University students. The association also sponsors the senior gift award presented each spring by Alma Magna Mater to the senior boy or girl who has contributed the most unselfish service to the University. The presentation of this year's award to Jim Perry, of Louisville, was made at the alumni brunch today.

One of the achievements of the association this year, of which we are most proud, was the participation of the Maysville, Harrodsburg, Louisville and Lexington Alumni Clubs in the annual Founders Day Program. The late presiding officers of the University, six in number, are buried in the towns named and during the Founders Day celebration this year these four clubs held memorial services at the graves of these six founders and placed appropriate wreaths on the graves.

For the seventh straight year your contributions to the Alumni Loyalty Fund have made possible the awarding of another four-year, all-expense scholarship to a young Kentuckian.

Another step, worthy of note and of our deep gratitude, was the spirit in which alumni on the faculty and staff of the University cooperated with us during the past few weeks in an annual membership campaign on the campus, which has brought in a number of new memberships and which has caused a renewed interest, on the campus, in the work of the association.

At the April meeting of our Alumni executive board Mr. Herschel Weil, a loyal alumnus of the University who has its overall interests at heart, came before the committee to suggest that the Alumni Association spearhead a University of Kentucky Association throughout the state, wherein men and women who never attended the University, but who are interested in its welfare, should be privileged to hold some type of membership which would give them voice and active participation in the affairs of the University. This question, too, needs serious consideration and discussion.

A review of the year necessarily must include the fact that a planning committee, composed of physicians, citizens and alumni, has been formed to promote the need of establishing a medical school at the University, and that, in cooperation with this project, the Alumni Executive Committee formulated and mailed to state officials, members of the General Assembly and presidents of all Kentucky alumni clubs a resolution of endorsement.

Your secretary visited a number of local and metropolitan alumni clubs during the past year, and three of these meetings in Frankfort, Cincinnati and Louisville, were attended by members of the Executive Board. Other clubs visited were Nashville, Tenn., New York City, Washington, D. C., Houston, Tex., Harlan, Hazard, Hartford, Henderson, Morganfield, Russellville, Franklin, Bowling Green, Fulton, Paducah, Mayfield, Wickliffe and Bardwell.

man service, not only in talking with the club members but in visiting numerous Kentucky high schools in each locality. His contribution to the University and to the alumni, in information and contacts, has been invaluable.

The Alumni Association has fulfilled its routine duties of sponsoring athletic and alumni banquets, sending out numerous mailings, keeping contact with organized clubs, making address changes, designing and mailing to you a new type of election ballot, and dozens of other duties including the purchase of football and basketball tickets for out-of-town alumni, and the general services which come under the head of alumni work. The staff in the Alumni Office has been, in my opinion, the most efficient, and capable of any I have known and I wish to publicly express to all of them my appreciation for their tireless efforts.

At its April board meeting the Executive Committee designated the Kentucky-Vanderbilt football game, next November 6, as Homecoming.

I wish to express my deep and abiding appreciation to Mr. Dawson, our outgoing president, for his willing cooperation and for the time and service he has given to his office and to the demands which we have, necessarily, made on him. I also wish to thank the entire executive committee for their unselfish service, their advice, and, above all, for their encouragement. No Alumni Association is any stronger than its governing board, and this committee has been strong and true to Alma Mater.

Finally, I wish to say to President Donovan, that I am sure there is no alumni secretary, anywhere, who has been dealt with more kindly, and with more understanding than I, and I am deeply grateful to him for his unflinching sympathy with our problems and for his encouragement and kindness. The executive committee wishes to acknowledge publicly the assistance we have received from him, Dr. Tapp, and the other members of the administration, as well as the support and encouragement given us by the Board of Trustees.

Although this report may see wordy, I cannot close without offering you a program and a challenge for the year ahead:

To give the University the support it needs and deserves we should have 8,000 to 10,000 active members by 1955. That obligation is up to you. We, on the campus, can plead and implore, but unless the spark of loyalty lies within you, our task is in vain. Make it your business to join, and to get others to join in 1954-55, so that it may be THE YEAR in our history. Let's start the fire here tonight, a fire of enthusiasm which will spread across the land, wherever Kentucky alumni gather, and soon we will have the strongest Alumni Association in the country. We are proud of our commonwealth, our University, our people—let's demonstrate that pride to a doubting world.

Respectfully submitted,
Helen G. King
Executive Secretary

The secretary's report was ordered filed by the President, Mr. R. R. Dawson.

Mr. B. A. Shively, Treasurer, gave the annual treasurer's report as follows:

June 2, 1954

To the Directors
University of Kentucky Alumni Association
Lexington, Kentucky

I have reviewed the books of account of University of Kentucky Alumni Association for the year ended May 31, 1954, and submit the following statements:

Comparative Balance Sheet at May 31, 1953 and 1954

Statement of Income and Expense

The examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards applicable in the circumstances. I examined or tested the accounting records and other supporting evidence by methods and to the extent deemed appropriate, but I did not make a detailed audit of all transactions.

In my opinion, the accompanying balance sheet and statement of income and expense present fairly the financial position of University of Kentucky Alumni Association at May 31, 1954, and the results of its operations for the fiscal year then ended, in a manner consistent with prior years.

Respectfully submitted,

U. K. and US

(An address delivered by Dean Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., of the College of Law, at the University of Kentucky Alumni Banquet, University of Kentucky, Lexington, June 3, 1954)

Mr. Dawson, President Donovan, fellow alumni, ladies and gentlemen:

I'm as happy as can be to have a chance this evening to talk about the most interesting subject I know of—the University of Kentucky. My subject is UK and US. The "US" stands for you and me, as UK alumni, and it also stands for our beloved country, which is in peril as I stand before you. All three—the UK, the US, and us—have a common concern.

I know full well that I am not the best qualified person your officers could have chosen as the speaker tonight. I certainly didn't volunteer for the assignment.

(Anecdote omitted)

Though I've spent eleven of the last twenty-two years as either a student or staff member of UK, I've been here only seven of the eighteen years since I graduated, and a year and a half of those seven I was on leave. I don't pretend to know all about this great institution, therefore, much as I love it.

The University of Kentucky is an astonishing institution. If you had to depend on the general impressions too often gained by those who lack a deeper interest and fuller information, you might think UK is primarily a training camp for basketball and football teams, and perhaps secondarily a place that wants to establish a medical school but can't get the money for it. May I just digress right there to say that it isn't that UK wants a medical school but that Kentucky needs one, which is the whole story in a nutshell on that point?

But if such impressions as the above were all you had, UK would fool you, badly.

(Anecdote omitted)

If all the activities of this University of ours could be recounted tonight, it would make a fascinating but lengthy evening. If just the most distinguished achievements of the past year or two could be recited, it would take longer than any after-dinner speaker should speak, and I shan't attempt it.

Let me just mention a few things, very much at random, to illustrate what I'm driving at—a few things the public—and maybe the alumni—may have overlooked.

As you know, the University of Kentucky is No. 1 in the nation in basketball this year—but did you know that it is also No. 1 in the nation in debating?

As you know, the University of Kentucky defeated Tennessee in football this year—but did you know that it also defeated all comers in military precision drill?

As you know, the University of Kentucky failed to obtain the appropriation it requested from the Kentucky General Assembly this year—but did you know that UK was nominated by the United States Office of Education in Washington as the American institution best qualified to undertake the most challenging project in the history of international education?

The University of Kentucky has been unable to obtain funds to get its distinguished Physics and Chemistry Departments out of the dangerous fire-traps in which they must work—but the Dean of the College of Engineering was the president of the American Society of Civil Engineers this year.

The University of Kentucky was falsely represented in the state's leading newspaper, while the General Assembly was in session, as having no honest basis for asking for more financial support—but its library continued to shelve books in the attics and basements of other buildings because it had long since run out of room!

May I just mention rapidly a few other facts about UK which have received what I consider to be inadequate public attention?

If UK had beaten every university in the Big Ten in football, you'd have known all about it—but can we not take tremendous pride in the little known fact that the UK Chemistry faculty published more learned articles than did any chemistry department in the Big Ten? And did you know that

UK is the only university selected by the Army Signal Corps to be continued under contract for fundamental research in chemistry? All other such contracts were canceled, no doubt as an economy measure—all but UK's, whose outstanding Chemistry Department was thus selected as the nation's best for this purpose.

For that matter, did you know that the UK Psychology Department was the first in the US to develop a program in Clinical Psychology of high enough quality to be approved by the US Veterans Administration?

Did you know that there are only three universities in the nation having regular college curricula with a major in Police Administration, and that UK is one of the three, and the only one in this entire region?

All of you know that we have a fine College of Education at UK—but did you know that it was designated this year as "one of the outstanding teacher education institutions in the nation" by a committee representing the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education?

Out of hundreds of possible choices, fifteen institutions in the US were selected to co-operate in the Danforth Foundation Project in Moral and Spiritual Values in Education this year—UK was one of the fifteen. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if those who advertised so loudly our suspension in basketball would give a little publicity to that? And wouldn't it help get UK in a little better focus if it were generally known that we were selected as one of only three institutions in the US to which a grant was made by the United Cerebral Palsy Association for the training of teachers and guidance workers for the cerebral-palsied—and as one of only ten institutions in the US to participate in the international education program for foreign high school teachers?

You are all loyal and proud alumni of UK—but did you know that two of the leading learned periodicals of our times are published at UK? I refer of course to the Journal of Rural Sociology and the Journal of Southern History. UK is a center of learning, my friends—and a first-rate center at that!

Modesty forbids that I stand here and brag about what a fine law school we have at UK—but I do want to tell you that it is nationally respected and ranks high by every important criterion used for rating law schools.

U.K. Today

The story of UK today can't begin to be told in one speech—but a few more facts should be included in any run-down of highlights. The achievements of the UK Agricultural staff have been impressive and dramatic, for instance. National or international recognition has come to at least a dozen of its members. Scientists from more than fifty countries the world over have come here to learn more about some of the studies in progress. One of the three top awards of the American Farm Economics Association for the most outstanding research in the nation came to UK in 1953. The international sheep-judging championship was won by UK. The people of Kentucky received more cash value last year from the work of UK in the one field of tobacco breeding than the total state appropriations to the entire University from its founding to the present.

All of you have heard of the terrible labor-management problems which once beset the construction of the Atomic Energy plant at Paducah—but did you know that the UK College of Commerce was asked to and did make a study to find out why those problems were so extraordinarily serious—and that improvement in the situation has been tremendous since that UK report was released?

Many of you know that the University of Kentucky was found this year to be in the bottom half of Southern state universities in the size of salaries paid its professors—but many may not know that a hundred of those professors were listed in Who's Who in America—and our President was chosen as president of the National Association of State Universities. Scores of other honors and accomplishments have gone into UK's records this year.

All in all, I don't believe there has been a college or university in the history of American education that has achieved relatively so very much on relatively so very little money as has the University of Kentucky. But there is much more here than a top-flight administration. I wish every one of you could know how many outstanding scholars, teachers, scientists and leaders there are, working on this campus every day; how many students there are, from every creek and hollow in Kentucky, working twenty to forty hours a week to earn their way and still excelling in scholarship and leadership and service to their fellows.

One of the members of that national championship debate team I spoke of is a lad who has earned every dime he has received since the day he came here, four years ago, and still made Phi Beta Kappa and ODK.

The UK boy who received a Rhodes Scholarship this year had a part-time job practically all the way through college.

The UK boy who will receive the Sullivan Medallion tomorrow night is a Phi Beta Kappa whose parents didn't speak English when he was born.

The UK boy who this year graduates with the highest standing in the history of the College of Law was helped through law school by a scholarship established by other students.

Nobel Prize

On Founders Day this year we honored one of the few Americans ever to receive the Nobel Prize in medicine—an alumnus of UK!

I hope some day someone will compile a record of the achievements of our alumni—young and old. It would be impressive beyond belief, I am convinced.

But there is far more to the mission of a university than even the great work of giving opportunity to young men and women—more than what UK has meant to us—and that's what UK means to Kentucky and to the nation. May I explain?

What is the difference between Kentucky today and Kentucky two centuries ago? What is the difference between our Kentucky and the Indians' Dark and Bloody Ground? Is it natural resources? No—all the resources that are here now, and more, were here before the white man came. Is it the natural gifts of the people? No—before the white man came, the Indians were brave and strong; they were intelligent and clever; they were proud and free. There is only one basic difference in their civilization and ours—and that difference is education. Everything that distinguishes Kentucky, that distinguishes America, as they are today from what they were one hundred, two hundred or three hundred years ago, can be summed up in that one word: education. There were resources here; there were people here; there was even religion here; but there was no education here until the white man came. I assert fearlessly that all the earmarks of our American culture—all—our factories, our modern farms, our houses, our highways, our railroads, our schools and churches, our airlines, bridges, fine cars, banks, warehouses, tractors, our purebred livestock, our clean warm clothing, our radios, television, mass production, newspapers, telephones, representative government, jet planes, abundant food, our hospitals, our skyscrapers, our world trade, our courts of justice, our music and art and literature—and our military strength to protect these things—all are the product of educated men. Without education, the Indians had not one of these things; through education, all these and countless other things have been made a part of our culture today. Loafers and drug store cowboys and ignorant, unambitious men gave us none of these things—all are the product of educated minds and hearts. Many of these things, in fact, could only have been invented by men with training equivalent to that represented by masters' and doctors' degrees today.

America Blest

And why is America more blest than most of the world in all these things? There are great resources elsewhere; there are fine people elsewhere, our own kinspeople and others just as physically and mentally strong; there are people who work, far longer hours than we; but nowhere has education been made available and free to every citizen for as long as it has in these United States. The idea of high school and college education for every boy and girl at public expense is an American idea—Jefferson originated it, but it was not until many years after him that it became generally accepted and put into practice. Yet almost from the day that it was, American civilization has leapt forward!

We've Just Begun

Even so, we have scarcely begun. There are many things we still do not know, many things: about nature and about human nature, about government, about international peace, about the universe, about atomic energy, about the oceans, weather and climate, machinery, farming, sickness, old age, about science and art and business and law, about beauty, and truth, and goodness—yes, even about education and production there are many things we shall yet learn, more and more.. There is only one place we can safely look for the answers to all these things—and that is to our colleges and universities and the men and women they turn out.

Far from having reached the peak in our quest for knowledge and wisdom, we are only just beginning. This is true of mankind, of America, and of Kentucky. We in Kentucky must not sit by and wait for others to go forward. That is what more than one group of people have done in the past—and now we call some of them "the backward people" and some "the dead civilizations." Education begins at home!

If there can be no civilization in a state without education, and if a university is the very capstone and fountainhead of education, then the answer to our question, "What does the University of Kentucky mean to Kentucky?" must now be crystal clear.

It used to be thought that education, particularly a college education, was the privilege only of the sons of the wealthy and the aristocratic. State universities whose doors were open to every boy and girl, no matter how rich or how humble their families might be, didn't come on the scene even in America until a relatively few decades ago. Think what tremendous strides this country has taken since that day! It's not a mere coincidence—it's the result of EDUCATION on a broader base. But even in America today we have not entirely shaken off one most unfortunate legacy of that earlier day when a college education was a special privilege. For in those days, human nature was a good deal like human nature now, and the old story of the fox and the grapes represents a mighty common reaction. And so it became a very popular thing to scoff at college education, because most people couldn't get it. You heard such phrases as, "What was good enough for my father is good enough for me"; and "What's the good of going to college if you're just going to farm, or be a clerk or a housewife, or work on the railroad?" and "Colleges aren't practical; good old 'horse sense' is all a fellow needs in this world." At first it probably was all sour grapes; but after a while in some families these things really came to be believed. They weren't educated enough to feel the lack of education or to aspire to it for their sons and daughters. This was a far more tragic thing than would at first appear. For with some people it became fashionable to sneer at "book-learning"; at the "long-hairs" in the lecture room and the laboratory; at art and music and poetry and history, at the whole search for truth and beauty. They didn't realize that these are the things that dignify and ennoble man and set him apart from the animals. If life is nothing more than trying to get enough to eat, to keep warm and get a good night's sleep, then there is little indeed to set us apart. Pigs will root hard to get enough to eat, but music and art mean nothing to pigs. Groundhogs will build a shelter from the winter's cold, but poetry and the privilege of voting don't mean much to a groundhog. Cats appreciate the comforts of home, but they aren't interested in history or chemistry. . . . There are three fundamental things which a man must constantly seek if he is to be worthy of being a son of God—they are the good, the true, and the beautiful. Not one of them means anything to a jackass, but all three are the great goals of education; and colleges seek to find and teach them all.

Scoffers Few

The scoffers are fewer today, yet it is still a terribly difficult thing to get widespread, solid support for our schools, colleges and universities, more difficult in Kentucky than in any state I know of. But I don't believe it's impossible! Our people are just beginning, as they themselves become better and better educated, to realize how tremendously important education really is. I can't imagine just where we in America would be today if the old idea, that the three R's are quite enough for most people, had not been broken down—but it's a cinch we would be a long way short of where we are. Such ideas did prevail in many places; education continued to be for the chosen few; despite the existence in nearly all countries of at least a few, high-quality, private universities, the common people are still uneducated, ignorant, and poverty-stricken in many parts of the world. The industrial revolution started in these places, too, but public higher education didn't. But in America, the free public school and the free state university have together built a new and amazing nation. . . . Even so, we have only a good head-start. More, not less, education; finer schools and greater universities, are desperately needed if we are even to maintain our security, our freedom, our progress and our way of life. And here is why.

A Basic Fact

One of the basic and sobering facts of our times is that we are living under the sinister threat of the most powerful, the most fanatical, the most evil and the most far-flung conspiracy in all history. Where America stands for freedom, justice, opportunity, decency and peace, Soviet Russia and her Communist ideology stand for slavery, ruthlessness, dictatorship, cynicism and force. These things have existed in the world since Satan was flung out of Heaven, and much blood has been shed to hold them down, but there are two things that make Communism a particularly grisly threat to us today. . . . The first is that they outnumber us. They have more people to put in their armies and their factories and on their farms. Their soldiers and the soldiers of their satellites are brave and tough—there's no sense kidding ourselves about that—they can endure hardship and live on short rations—they are not afraid to die. . . . The second thing is that the Russians are trying to educate the masses of their people. They haven't had public schools as long as we have, but they're trying to make up for lost time. Fortunately for us, they don't permit—they don't dare permit—the teachers in either their schools or their colleges to teach the truth; they don't permit, even to their scientists, freedom of inquiry as we know it; they pervert history and science and literature and the arts and politics and law and morals. But there is a dark danger in this perverted education nonetheless. They know that without education they could get nowhere.

What Does This Mean?

What does this mean to us? Since we are outnumbered, it means that as individuals our soldiers, our workers, our farmers, our managers, must each be worth four or five of theirs. We must make up in brainpower what they have in manpower. We must translate that brainpower into greater production and into happier living. It means, in short, that as a nation our people must be better educated than theirs.

We must make up in knowledge, in strong political institutions, in human dignity and human liberty and firm devotion to our ideals, what they have in numbers and fanaticism and thought-control and envy and greed. We must continue and accelerate the advantage we have gained, through educating our people more—through developing our science, our technology, our agriculture, our understanding of history and psychology and economics. That's the business of UK! We must also strengthen the administration of justice through spreading deeper understanding of the American foundation-stones of due process of law, and equality before the law. We must teach our people why freedom has made us great—teach them theory as well as the material fruits of theory, if you please. We must keep eternally at the job of finding truth. That's the business of UK!

By doing these things we will demonstrate to our people and all other people that we can build, in freedom, a kind of state and nation that none of us would exchange for the beautiful, rotten promises of the Communists, so that we shall neither be conquered from within or without, nor debased by demagogues and those who don't believe in the Bill of Rights. When you boil it all down, my friends, the future of the world is to be a battle of brains—brains to prevent war—brains to keep our heads in the terrible confusion into which the world has been deliberately plunged by Moscow—above all, brains to advance the human race. And we must never forget that brains are of little use until they're trained.

Kentucky produces some of the finest people in this country—and America needs the trained brainpower of far more Kentuckians. That's also the business of UK!

Friends, again I say that education begins at home. Education has done much for America—it has done less for Kentucky than for most of the nation, because we have put less into it. You already know that Kentucky is at the bottom of the states in percentage of college graduates in the population. There is a clear link between this fact and the cruel fact that every time the average American makes a dollar, the average Kentuckian makes only 68c. I love Kentucky and I want her to move forward into her rightful place. Therefore I want her people to understand fully that a great state university can elevate the economic, social and political standards of a state, can make it more productive, can make its people healthier and happier. The most important thing about a state is its people. When we strengthen our University, we strengthen our people—even those who do not attend it—and through our people strengthen our state. When we strengthen our state, we strengthen our nation. When we strengthen our nation, we strengthen all our hopes for peace, justice, freedom and decency—and for our continued progress up the hard road, away from the animal that is in us all, toward the good, the true and the beautiful; toward peace, wisdom and a richer life.

That is the challenge to UK and to US!

Annual Report

Baker, Louisville; three executive committee members to serve for a three year term are: Mr. Richard E. Cooper, Somers-set; Mr. Herndon J. Evans, Pineville; and Mr. Gerald Griffin, Lexington.

Dr. Ralph Angelucci, of Lexington, and Mr. H. D. Palmore, of Frankfort, chairmen of two nominating committees to nominate three persons each for the alumnus member of the Board of Trustees submitted the following reports: Dr. Angelucci's committee nominated: Mr. Guy A. Huguelet, Lexington; Mr. Herndon J. Evans, Pineville; and Mr. O. L. McElroy, Eminence. Mr. Palmore's committee nominated: Mr. Marshall Barnes, Owensboro; Mr. J. David Francis, Bowling Green; and Mr. William Sturgill, Hazard.

Mr. Dawson reported that since the beginning of the fiscal year on June 1, 1953 a total of $4,327.50 had been collected for the Loyalty Fund, which is the scholarship fund set up for deserving young high school seniors entering the University.

Mr. Neel thanked the Alumni for electing him as president of the Association and assured them of his cooperation in the coming year.

Mr. Neel announced that the date for the mid-summer alumni meeting has been set for July 20th. He said that detailed plans will be made and notices sent out to the Executive Board.

Mr. Tom Downing, President of the Atlanta, Georgia Alumni Club, reported at the meeting that plans have been made for a dance to be held in the Biltmore Hotel in Atlanta on October 22nd, the night preceding the Kentucky-Georgia Tech football game which will be held there. He extended an invitation to all alumni and friends to be there.

Mr. Dawson presented gifts to Dr. Linwood Brown, of Lexington, the oldest alumnus at the meeting and Mr. Walter Kelley of Berkeley, California, who came the greatest distance to attend the meeting.

The Jefferson County Alumni Association presented certificates of service to the following two men for their service, loyalty and devotion to the Jefferson County Club: Mr. N. W. Neel presented the first certificate to Mr. Claude S. Sprowls, president of the Jefferson County Club who has done a wonderful job in building up the membership of the association since he has been president. During that time the membership has increased from 50 to approximately 400 members. Mr. Homer L. Baker presented the second certificate of service to the late Judge George S. Wetherby for the time and effort he gave to the work of the association. Mr. Tom Bal-

To the Members of the Alumni Association
Of the University of Kentucky:

I am deeply grateful for the high honor you have bestowed upon me. I am not unmindful of the responsibilities of the office, and I consider it to be both a privilege and a pleasure to serve as your president for the 1954-55 fiscal year.

I am also grateful for the loyal men and women you have chosen as members of the Executive Committee, men and women who contribute so generously and unselfishly of their time to help promote the best interests of the University of Kentucky.

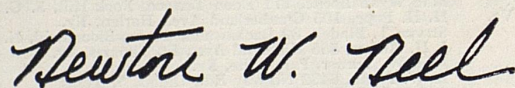

I consider the Alumni Association to be most fortunate to have an Executive Secretary with the ability and devotion to the University as has Helen King, who, together with a most capable staff, handles so well the many details of her office.

President Donovan has told us that "Kentucky Cannot Be A Greater State Without A Greater State University." This should be a challenge to each alumnus and former student to help achieve that goal by banding together in ever increasing numbers as active, dues-paying members of the Alumni Association.

It has been said that people are divided into two groups, those who carry the load, and those who lean on the load and are carried along by others. You might say the "lifters" and the "leaners." At the present time the load of the Alumni Association is being carried by a very small percentage of those who are eligible to become members. It is hard for me to believe that those who are "leaning on the load" are doing so deliberately. It is also hard for me to believe that any person who has attended the University of Kentucky would hesitate to invest $2.00 or $3.00 in something which returns such rich dividends for such a small investment.

We have set a goal this year of ten thousand members. When we consider the many thousands of potential members, this should be no great task if all the County Clubs make a concerted effort in their own communities to help get more members to help carry the load. The tie that binds each alumnus and former student to the University is membership in the Alumni Association. Don't you think you should take advantage of this opportunity to testify to your loyalty to the University?

Sincerely yours,

Newton W. Neel

President
