Hope For The Homely Male Revealed In Marriage Poll

By VINCENT CROWDS, Kernel News Editor

Provided he has character, the homely college man stands an excellent chance of marriage. So say a representative group of University students. In a recent poll, conducted by Dr. W. D. Funkhouser in his popular heredity class, the coeds placed character first and good looks seventh in a list of 12 things to look for in selecting a husband. On the other hand, good looks was a close second to character from the men's point of view. Fifty-two men and 87 women participated in the poll.

"Money seems to matter little, for the men placed it last on their list, and the women gave it the eleventh position of importance. Doctor Funkhouser, who has been conducting similar polls for more than 15 years, determined the rankings on a basis of one point for first place, two for second and so on, but now it is sixth, Doctor Funkhouser explains this with the fact that there are more social activities and merrymaking good stock. Since a decade ago, "family" has jumped from tenth to fifth place in the men's opinion, and from sixth to third in women's. Don't Want Children But a bad trend is shown in the fact that today's college student has less interest in the "desire for children," he declared. The poll answered the question of "Why college men and women do not have more children," the heredity professor said. "It is simply because they don't want them." The men placed "desire for children" eighth and the women, ninth.

"Today's college man does not tend to evaluate education as highly as previously, the polls show. Ten years ago this factor was rated second, but now it is sixth, Doctor Funkhouser explains this with the fact that there are more social activities and merrymaking good stock. Since a decade ago, "family" has jumped from tenth to fifth place

CLIQUE SPLIT

(Continued From Page 1) or the Student Government association elections. With only a few hours remaining before the Greek's party meeting, Collier called one of the striking fraternity representatives, told him the party had agreed to accept the smaller group's offer, and asked him to bring his fraternity back in to the party. The representative accepted, Collier called another of the frat representatives who walked out, told him that the party had refused the offer that one of the quietest had returned to the big clique. This second representative repudiated his fraternity to the Constitutionalist.

Aeronautical Research Laboratory To Be In Operation By May 15

By WYNNE MCKINNEY

Classes will probably begin around the 15th of May in the new Wenner-Gren Aeronautical Research Laboratory at the University according to Professor A. J. Meyer of the Mechanical Engineering Department. "The main purpose of the laboratory will be to improve aircraft engines so that they can attain greater speed, operate on less fuel, and enable the airplane to attain greater altitude. The new Wenner-Gren Laboratory will also provide specialized training to graduate engineers at the University who are desirous of specializing in the study of aircraft engines and who show a special aptitude along this line," said Professor Meyer.

Professor Meyer pointed out that some persons confused the purpose of designing a complete engine and then taking a single cylinder and subjecting it to certain conditions in the cylinder stands up under the tests we can then proceed to build a complete engine."

Several new automatic safety devices have been added to the laboratory, one of which will automatically cut the spark, thereby slowing down the machinery in case the cooling air supply fails or the city current fails. Professor Meyer further explained.

The Wenner-Gren laboratory is equipped with a combination of the latest improvements. At each end of the propeller test room towers have been erected, one for the air intake and the other for the outlet. In these, cast-iron bricks formed in the shape of a cross are supported on steel beams. The arms of the cross project horizontally and the end of each arm touches that of the adjacent brick. In this manner, air passages are left free.

Test Rooms Are Compact To provide rigidity and reduce vibration, the test rooms have been made as compact as possible. Auxiliary equipment such as cooling blowers and contactor panels are installed in a seven-foot attic.

CAT BATSMEN SPLIT SERIES WITH VANDY

Cats Outscore Commodores, 13-10, In Finale

Featuring Milt Ticeo's 400-foot home run in the first inning, Kentucky's touring baseball team outscored Vanderbilt by 13 to 10 on Saturday, and thereby earned an end break in the two game series with the Commodores.

Vanderbilt won the series opener on Friday, 9 to 3. The Wildcats engaged Alabama at Tuscaloosa yesterday and conclude their series with the Tide this afternoon.

The Commodores threw three pitchers at Kentucky in the slugfest, while Alan Rathbun went the route for the Blue, dealing out thirteen blows but keeping them scattered well enough.

Kentucky also banged out thirteen hits and sewed up the game with a five-run rally in the eighth, after the lead has changed hands seven times.

Tico's Homers Tico's unbroken is tremendous homer off pitcher Lakoff in the first when Kentucky grouped three runs. Vanderbilt came abreast of the Wildcats in the third, however, and went ahead in the fourth with three-run surge, after the Wildcat's kid scored a pair in the half.

A single marker in the fifth tied up the game at 6-all for the Wildcats, but Vandy parried with another tally to go ahead in the same inning, 7-6.

Lead Changes Hands Again in the seventh the lead changed hands, Kentucky counting twice to take the lead at 8-7, only to see it melt away before a Vandy rally, 8 to 10. But in the fatal eighth, Kentucky found the range and scored a brace of five runs to take
