Simchat Torah will be held Thursday, October 18 at 7 p.m. and Friday, October 19 at 10 a.m.

TEMPLE ADATH ISRAEL will worship in its renewed sanctuary for the High Holidays this year. Work will be finished just in time for the congregation to celebrate Rosh Hashanah in its renovated and rebuilt building. Services for Rosh Hashanah will be at 7 and 9 p.m. on Wednesday, September 26, and at 10 a.m. on Thursday, September 27. Children's services will be at 1:30 p.m.

Yom Kippur services will be on Friday, October 5 at 7 and 9 p.m. and on Saturday, October 6 at 10 a.m. Readings from Jewish sources follow morning worship. Children's services are at 1:30 p.m. and afternoon services begin at 2:30 p.m. Memorial and concluding services begin at 4:30 p.m. (Only members of the Temple and their guests by special cards will be seated in the sanctuary of the Temple. Nonmembers who wish to worship at the Temple will be seated in the balcony or in the auditorium where there will be closed circuit television available.)

The Temple and Synagogue will hold Selichot service Saturday, September 22 beginning at about 11:30 p.m. at Ohavay Zion Synagogue. On Sunday, September 30 they will conduct a memorial service together at the Lexington Cemetery at 2 p.m.

Thoughts For The High Holiday Season

Creator of the Universe, Ruler and Judge of all

On this most sacred day of our solemn season, when we recall our heroes and martyrs of old, the saintly men and women of our people who gave their lives for the sanctification of Thy name, we pray to Thee on behalf of their modern counterparts, our valiant brothers and sisters residing within the Soviet Union. Separated for many years from the community of Israel, forbidden to communicate with their coreligionists in the world without, deprived of the right to instruct their children in the traditions of their fathers while being subjected to the most determined efforts to wean them away from their spiritual heritage, they have kept their faith and at enormous self-sacrifice and with superhuman courage maintained their identity.

Endow them with patience and the power of perseverance to carry on as they have done heretofore. Gird them with strength to resist the pressures brought to bear on them to deny Thee and Thy teachings. Open wide the doors of what has been their prison for more than half a century so that they may be reunited with their brethren and in the land of their fathers, or wherever else the sun of freedom shines, live a life dedicated to the worship of Thee, the enhancement of Thy glory, the uplifting of the honor of Thy people, and the service of all mankind. Grant that we and our brethren throughout the world, who share with them a common past and destiny and whose lot is inextricably bound up with theirs, have the wisdom and the resoluteness of heart, to support them in their struggle to assure the fulfillment of their hopes and not rest until they are realized. Speed the day when this will come to pass, when the segment of our people, that has so greatly enriched its culture, may again take its place within the ranks of Israel and make its unique contribution to its progress and growth. May the words of our mouths and the meditation of our hearts be acceptable before Thee, oh Lord, our Rock and our Redeemer.

Jewish Faculty Meeting

The University of Kentucky Faculty Association on Jewish Affairs will meet Monday evening, September 24, 1984. (Time and place to be announced.) Dr. Michael Meyer of the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati will speak on "Anti-Semitism". For more information, contact Dan Frank, Philosophy Department, 257-7749.

Intern and Learn About Government

College students with an interest in public service can add a practical course in government by interning in the offices of Congressman Larry Hopkins and Senator Wendell Ford.

Positions are available in Lexington and Washington during the fall, spring and summer semesters. Those working in the district office help process constituent casework as well as track applications for federal funding with various agencies.

In Washington, students assist with legislative research and participate in a program of seminars hosted by different members and agencies including Vice President Bush, House Speaker Tip O'Neill, and the Supreme Court.

TO WORK WITH CONGRESSMAN HOPKINS: Contact officials at your school who coordinate internships and call Robert Rangel in our district office, 606/233-2848.

TO WORK WITH SENATOR FORD: Contact Dr. William Berry at the U.K. Political Science Department, 257-3136. Application may also be made through Eastern Kentucky University. Or call or write to the Senator at 363 Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C., 20510, (202)224-4343, or in Lexington at 606/233-2484.

(Note: Senator Ford's Lexington office is looking for an intern for the fall semester.)

Preference is given to those with majors in political science, public administration, sociology or related areas.

NEWSBRIEF

THE PRICE OF SURVIVAL

Since the PLO began its terrorist operations within Israel in 1965, a total of 730 Israelis and visitors have been killed and 3,905 wounded...Since Operation Peace for Galilee began in June, 1982, 585 Israeli soldiers have been killed and 3,400 wounded.

QUOTES WORTH REMEMBERING

Because there is an Israel, there was a rescue at Entebbe. Because there is an Israel, thousands of Argentinian Jews are alive today...Israel is a source of Jewish affirmation for every Jew in this country. Israel has given the world a new image of the Jew: the Jewish pioneer, the Jewish head of state, the Jewish officer whose battle cry is achera'i: after me...Much as we regret the necessity for that last image, much as we long for peace, we take pride in it along with the other proud images of a Jewish nation reborn in our lifetime.

Dear Friends:

First of all, I am very sorry that I can't say "Good bye" in private.

Thanks to you, we made many new friends in our new life and country. It was very important for us because we left all our friends and relatives in Russia. From the first steps of our new life we understood that we are not alone, we have new friends -- you.

You taught and helped us with everything and continued to do that until our last day in Lexington. Though you have families, some problems, not enough time, etc., you never refused us any help or advices. Everything what you did was so important for us. I don't know how we can thank all of you for everything what you did for us. We can only to say to all of you our GREAT THANKS and to invite you to visit us in Los Angeles.

I am very sorry that we must leave Lexington and you, but we didn't have any choice and you knew our situation.

Good luck, good health, good frame of mind to all of you and your families and don't forget us!

Yours truly,

L. Simanovs —

Leonid Simanovsky

Follow-up notes, excerpted from letters to friends here in Lexington:

Roman has entered City College in Santa Monica and hopes to transfer in a year, possibly to UCLA.

Olga has attended a Summer Camp program and is studying Hebrew with the goal of passing an entrance exam for a Jewish Day School.

Marina is determined to marry her "sweetheart" from Tennessee. She will be returning to Jackson, Tennessee for her wedding and new life.

Dear everyone -

Hadracha is really a lot of fun! This morning we went on a 4-hour hike. It was fun, but hard work! Everyone here is in a hub-bub about the elections. It will be interesting to see who comes to power next weekend. We each spent the weekend with someone from our sister-movement, Tsofim (Israeli Scouts). I stayed with a really nice 15 year old girl. I ate so much good food! We even went swimming at a pool in her cousin's village. They all thought we were part of the American Tsofim.

This week we've been up north which is really nice, except for our living quarters. We're in tents and we live out of our suitcases. Everything's a mess! It's hot during the day and breezy at night. On election day we spent the whole day in the Kinneret getting tanned or sunburned. Everyone's backs hurt for a couple days. Luckily I moved into the shade after lunch.

Right now it's 12 p.m. and everyone else in my tent is finishing packing. I just have a little left to do. We got back from Ma'alot, a development town, around 10:30. We stayed with Israelis our age and had dessert or dinner with them. It's cool meeting people my age; we're a lot alike. They even listen to the same music. I got to practice my Hebrew a little too.

Jill (Caller) is staying in the same camp I am until tomorrow. We've sent messages to each other, but I haven't talked to her in person.

Love Always,
Barbara

Barbara Baumann and Laura Steiner were in Israel this summer on a Young Judaea Hadracha (leadership) Course.

Sara Ades and Jill Caller took part in a United Synagogue Youth Program this summer in Israel.

Natalie Saxe visited Israel with the American Zionist Youth Foundation College Summer Program.

WELCOME BACK, GIRLS!

CUBA

When Fidel Castro came to power in 1959, Cuba's Jewish community was 11,000; today, it is reduced to about 700. More than one quarter of these have indicated that they wish to emigrate.

HIAS' work with Cuban refugees began immediately following the Cuban Revolution, at which time a special temporary HIAS office was set up in Miami, Florida. In October of 1962, the last regular Pan American plane from Cuba arrived in the United States and since that time, there have been no flights from Cuba to the U.S.

HIAS continues its work in assisting Cuban Jews who wish to reunite with relatives. The emigration process is slow and arduous. The few Cuban Jews who have been allowed to leave during the past several years were not permitted to take any belongings with them.

During the past three-and-a-half years, HIAS assisted some 125 Cuban Jews in their migration. For the most part, the receiving point has been Venezuela, where the Jewish community, working in close cooperation with the HIAS representative in Caracas, has rendered much assistance in helping the refugees in their resettlement. In 1983, HIAS assisted 28 Cuban Jews to Venezuela.

VENEZUELA-A HAVEN FOR CUBAN JEWS

In an attempt to help ease this difficult transitional period, a special committee was formed three years ago by members of the B'nai B'rith in Caracas. With the help and cooperation of HIAS' Caracas Representative Lizzy Mostert, they set out to see to it that all the basics were provided--food, housing, clothing and medical care.

The first step was to rent a house. They found the "Quinta" - a large residence capable of housing 25 people. The home was then prepared as a welcoming place for Cuban Jews. It has served as such ever since. It is at the "Quinta" that the refugees get their first taste of life in a free society.

The resettlement committee extended their services to the finding of employment for those who could work and the placement of the children of the Cuban families in appropriate schools.

As of this writing, there are 25 Cuban Jews in the "Quinta". Some will join close relatives in the United States. HIAS representative Mostert has worked with these people - as she worked with their predecessors - to guide them through the intricacies of the U.S. immigration process. And while she works with the refugees in Caracas, staff at HIAS headquarters in New York assist the stateside relatives in implementing their part of the immigration proceedings.

AUSTRALIA

Australia's Jewish population is currently estimated at 75,000; only four decades ago it stood at 23,500. The Australian Jewish community considers its newcomers a vital source of cultural growth and strength.

Jewish refugees arriving in Australia are resettled by the Australian Jewish Welfare Societies in Sydney and Melbourne; small numbers are also resettled in Perth, Adelaide and Brisbane.

The Welfare Societies, which have worked closely with HIAS and the JDC since their inception, provide a wide range of services for Jewish people. These include resettlement services, care of the aged, the disadvantaged and the handicapped, as well as the indigent.

During 1983, HIAS assisted 70 Jews to Australia. Forty-eight of these were from the U.S.S.R., the remainder from other countries in Eastern Europe.

These reports were taken from the HIAS 1983 Annual Report and the HIAS Reporter Vol. 2, No. 2. Each month we will feature reports from countries around the world.

Something Wonderful In Denmark

A revealing new exhibit at the B'nai B'rith Klutznick Museum catches the Danes and Danish Jews in their finest hours.

The answers are to be found in the current exhibit at Washington's B'nai B'rith Museum, "Kings and Citizens: The History of the Jews in Denmark 1622-1983." The show explains the events of 1943 by putting them in the context of a 300-year history of toleration for Danish Jews by the monarchy and people.

EXHIBIT SCHEDULE

"Kings & Citizens: The History of the Jews in Denmark 1622-1983" will be at the B'nai B'rith Klutznick Museum in Washington, D.C. through September 15. The section on the rescue of the Danish Jews will remain open through October 15.

It's not true that Denmark's King Christian X donned a yellow Star of David, thereby setting an example which his Christian subjects followed, when the Nazis demanded Danish Jews wear the discriminatory badges. But there's no need to mourn the debunking of this well-known fiction. It's true in spirit, and there are plenty of real episodes that chronicle Denmark's support of its Jewish citizens as well, or better, than this legend.

Overnight, the gentiles of Denmark concealed 7,000 Jews. During the next two months, all but seven percent of Denmark's Jewish population was ferried to safety in neutral Sweden.

If it could happen in Denmark, why didn't it happen elsewhere?

RECOMMENDED

A two-volume catalogue, on sale at the museum shop, accompanies this exhibit. It is more than a pretty keepsake of the exhibit. The essays by American and Danish curators in the catalogue provide a much fuller history than does the exhibit, and relates some fascinating details about individuals and events.

LEON URIS THE HAJ

"Uris is not only a modern day Aesop-like weaver of fascinating tales -- but a superb portrait painter. His characters, Israeli and Arab, are delineated with paint & brush, chisel and perception. The Haj evokes conflicting emotions of love, empathy, hatred and contempt for the Arabs. One is also left with a heavy despondent feeling and fear for the safety of Israel when faced with the reality of the burning passionate hatred festering in the Arab world."

Ada Gail

"The Haj, to me, showed a unique type of Arab culture - very severe difference in tribal attitudes and why Arabs cannot agree on anything. Israel's fairness to Arabs living in Israel was very apparent in Haj's group."

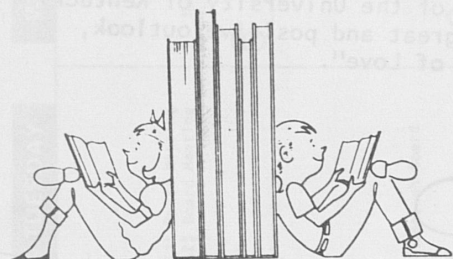

Stanley Rose

"If someday we hear Leon Uris has been murdered -- perhaps blown up when he starts the motor of his car -- there'll be no question about who did it."

Marilyn Moosnick

"His fascinating tale of the Arab refugees written from the aspect of one of those who were the victims of false fears keeps the reader glued to the book."

Olympic Follow-Up

'HOLLYWOOD MITCH'

His U.S. gymnastic teammates call him "Hollywood Mitch," as much for his good looks as his flashy style on the horizontal bars.

But it was a quiet, soft-spoken Mitchel Gaylord, yamulke on head, who welcomed the entire Israeli Olympic team to "my shul" during Friday evening services at Stephen S. Wise Temple.

A few days later, Gaylord's brilliant performance on the rings was to help lead his team to a gold medal in an upset victory over the Chinese.

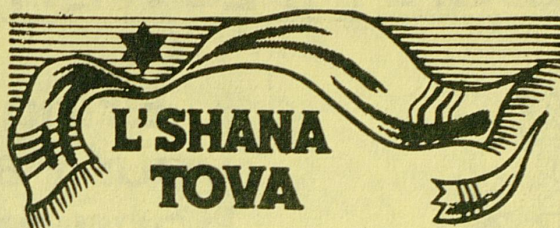

But on that Erev Shabbat, the 23-year old Gaylord was more interested in talking about his Jewish upbringing and especially about his 1981 visit to Israel, which he described as "perhaps the most exciting experience of my life."

On that trip, as a member of the American team to the Maccabiah Games, Mitch won seven gold medals in gymnastics, while his older brother Chuck garnered two more in the same sport.

Recently, recalling the thrills of some of his athletic victories, he compared them to the emotional high of his Bar Mitzvah celebration. His mother Linda, also athletic, teaches Israeli folk dancing to children's groups.

Off the field, the Israelis have been the focus of considerable media attention. Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley led a solemn observance at City Hall commemorating the 11 Israelis slain by terrorists at the 1972 Olympics in Munich.

The two leaders of the Los Angeles Olympic host committee, Paul Ziffren and Peter Ueberroth, joined the Israeli athletes in unveiling a large bronze plaque with the names of the 11 victims, which will be permanently mounted at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

NEW YEAR'S CARDS

With the High Holidays rapidly approaching (Rosh Hashanah begins September 26), now is the time to begin thinking about sending out New Year's cards to relatives and friends. If you have had trouble finding moderately priced, yet artistically pleasing cards in the past, your search is over!

The Lexington Chapter of Hadassah has available for immediate purchase a number of lovely New Year's cards. There are several attractive designs available. The cards cost 50¢ each and may be purchased either singly or in packages of ten. Unlike many of the cards available in local card shops, these cards conform to the size requirements of the U.S. Postal Service and may be sent through the mail either domestically or overseas.

Cards may be viewed, ordered and/or picked up at the Hadassah Opening Meeting on September 5, or by calling or visiting Helana Nardell at 3353 Kenesaw Drive (in Century Hills off Buckhorn Drive). Her phone number is 273-7337.
