They Have Earned Their "L" For Loyalty

It takes $2,800 for the Alumni Loyalty Fund to grant one, four-year, all-expense scholarship, and to date the annual giving program for 1952-'53 is in receipt of a total of $2,997.00.

While this sum is a little in excess of the cost of one four-year scholarship, it still is far short of the amount which your fund chairman, T. H. Hardwick, had hoped to collect for 1952-'53.

It is the ambition of the members of the executive board of your association to build up a surplus in the Loyalty Fund, so that, in the not too far distant future, we will be in a position as alumni to offer more than one $2,800 scholarship per year.

THIS INCREASE IN THE ANNUAL NUMBER OF SCHOLARSHIPS GRANTED IS UP TO YOU!

If you can find it in your heart to dig a little deeper in your purse, or, if you who have not yet participated can manage to send in a contribution, the time may come when the Alumni Association will be able to offer not one but several of these wonderful scholarships.

IT ISN'T TOO LATE TO CONTRIBUTE—GIVE NOW!

Executive Committee meets second Monday night of each month, September through May 6:30 p.m. Colonial Room, Lafayette Hotel, Lexington

A CALL TO ARMS

This is a call to arms—the arms of Alma Mater, which will be wide open to welcome you in June.

June 4 and 5 are the dates of alumni reunions this year, and while 15 specific classes have been called back, the University and the Alumni Association extend a cordial and gracious invitation to all graduates and former students to join with the returning classes to re-visit the scenes of their college days during the lush and beautiful time of early June in Kentucky.

The reunion program is digressing from the usual order of things this year, and you who return will find your reception even more gracious, more heart-warming than ever before, as we are planning events which will include everyone—from the “open house” in the various colleges and departments; the picnic lunch on Thursday, June 4 on the beautiful concourses of the coliseum; the delightful reception that afternoon in the gardens of Maxwell place, through the day, to the annual meeting of the Alumni Association and the banquet that night in the ballroom of the Student Union.

Whether or not you receive official notice of your class reunion—come back—there is never a better time than now, and there is no better place than your old Kentucky home—in June!

U. OF K. FOUNDERS DAY PROGRAM WAS GREAT BECAUSE OF A TOTAL LACK OF USELESS YAK-YAK

Bill Ladd's Almanac, COURIER JOURNAL, February 28, 1953

Is your organization going to produce a commemorative program of some sort?

Would you like to honor someone sincerely and reverently?

And at the same time have your program entertaining to all and boring to none?

For information as to how it can be done we refer you to the Founders Day program at the University of Kentucky last Sunday afternoon.

The program was held in the Coliseum. And if people had known the founders were going to be honored as they were, we feel the joint would have been bulging at its girders. As it was something like 4,000 attended.

FORMAT WAS SET QUICKLY

Program was opened by Dean Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., who set the format in a few words. Maybe three minutes. The university, he said, was much like the diagram of a family tree. There were those who now occupied the campus. These were represented by the oldest musical group at the school, the university band and the University Symphony Orchestra and the University Women's Glee Club.

Musical numbers were done by Warren Lutz' band, Virginia Lutz Glee Club and Edwin Stein's orchestra.

Another branch, he pointed out, were the kids who were coming on to the university. Music was presented by the University School Choir led by Ruth Stallings; the Lafayette High School “Charmettes” under Grace D. Dean, and the Henry Clay High School Choristers under Flossie Minter Greene.

Other institutions stemming from the same family tree were represented by the Transylvania Choir under Harvey Davis.

From our predecessors, history was traced by Hollis Summers of the English department in a dramatic narrative entitled “Here We Began.”

STORY WAS TOLD FEELINGLY

The story of the university's growth was told feelingly and dramatically with musical background furnished by the band, orchestra and choral groups.

This was so good that it was played on WHAS radio last Wednesday night.

All in all an hour and a few minutes of music and narrative which moved swiftly and directly to its climax. Not a lost motion, not a word spoken which did not directly point up the story.

Very seriously indeed, we thought it was the best program of the type we have ever seen and heard.

And we have heard many and many an hour of them in our time.

A “Ton of Gold Certificate” has been awarded a registered Jersey cow owned by the UK Agricultural Experiment Station. The award went to Radiant Jewel Estelle, which produced 2,001 pounds of butterfat from 41,197 pounds milk in four years. The certificate was presented by the American Jersey Cattle Club from its headquarters in Columbus, Ohio.

Army and Air Force commissions were granted to 29 senior UK ROTC cadets at ceremonies held on the campus in January. Three of the students Robert L. Carter, Touristville; Robert K. Hensley, Tilford and Robert L. Maranville, Hazard, were named Distinguished Military Graduates and received regular Army commissions as second lieutenants.

Unique Alumni Reunions Planned For The Fifteen Classes Returning June 4th, 5th

The call has been issued to 15 classes to come back home on June 4, 5 for class reunions, and a unique plan has been designed for the entertainment of reuning classes and for all alumni, regardless of class affiliation, who wish to come home in June.

The alumni executive board, which, through Robert H. Hillenmeyer, '43, of Lexington, has arranged the re-union program, wishes to impress on all graduates and former students that, while certain classes are called back each year, the program is intended to appeal to all and the entertainment is not confined to those in specified reunion classes.

The classes of 1903, 1907, and 1928 will hold special reunions this year, and regular reunions have been arranged for the classes of 1910, '11, '12, and '13; 1929, '30, '31 and '32; and 1949, '50, '51 and '52. 1903 will celebrate its golden anniversary and 1928 will celebrate its silver jubilee, while the class of 1907 is returning on a two-year plan voted by the class at its reunion here two years ago.

The Dix plan of class reunions, under which the UK Alumni Association operates, brings classes back in groups of four once every four years over a sixteen year period, with the fifth consecutive reunion of the class being held on a five-year basis.

Reunion Day, June 4, will open with registration in the Alumni Office, room 124 Student Union, following which returning alumni will be invited to visit a number of key departments and colleges which are arranging open house for the visitors. The purpose of this plan is to acquaint the alumni with the developments in research, teaching and publication which are taking place on the campus.

At noon on Thursday a picnic luncheon has been planned for ALL alumni on the concourses of the coliseum, which will be an informal affair and which will permit all groups to get together and chat informally. That afternoon, from two to four p.m. the open house in the various departments will be continued, and from four to six p.m. all alumni are invited to the annual reception to be given by President and Mrs. Donovan in the gardens at Maxwell Place.

The Alumni Association will serve cokes and coffee in the Music Room of the Student Union from 10 to 12 a.m. and from 1.30 to 4 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday, for alumni faculty and students.

The evening of Thursday, June 4, has been reserved for the annual meeting and banquet of the Alumni Association, and will be held in the ballroom of the Student Union. William H. Townsend, '12, president of the Alumni Association will preside and the speaker will be Dr. Thomas D. Clark, '29, head of the department of history, whose class is holding a reunion this year.

Dr. Clark's talk will be in a humorous vein, and will consist of reminiscences concerning events and personalities connected with the University, through the years.

Open house will be held again on Friday morning in the Alumni Office and in the Music Room of the Student Union, and at noon on Friday, June 5, the annual commencement luncheon will be held in the ballroom of the same building.

Commencement is scheduled for 7.00 p.m. on Friday evening, at which time the members of the class of 1903 will be invited to come to the commencement platform and will receive Half Century Club certificates from the President of the University and the President of the Alumni Association.

Six UK students were elected to Phi Beta Kappa last January. Among the six was William Howell, of Rosedale, L. I., New York, a polio patient in an iron lung at St. Joseph Hospital in Lexington, for whom special initiation ceremonies were held at the hospital.

DR. T. D. CLARK, '29, head of the University's Department of History, will be the alumni banquet speaker on Thursday night, June 4.

Nursing Department Established at UK

A Department of Nursing has been established at the University of Kentucky, in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Through the new department the University will offer a bachelor of science degree with a major in nursing.

The new course, to which only registered nurses are being admitted, was initiated at the beginning of the 1952-'53 spring semester, and is designed to prepare nurses for administrative posts as supervisors, head nurses and instructors.

The nurse students must have 130 credits for graduation and the University is allowing 30 for their RN status, so that, in theory, some could get their degrees in two years.

The nursing course was authorized last September by the Board of Trustees on recommendation of President H. L. Donovan after a committee, appointed by Dr. Donovan to study the proposal, made its report.

Rupp Charge Termed 'Scandalous'

Facts of Case Outlined For Alumni

On Friday, March 20, 1953, alumni, Kentuckians and the nation at large were shocked to read in the newspapers that a suit had been filed on that day in the United States District Court at Lexington against Kentucky's famed Basketball Coach Adolph Rupp, charging him with being a party to a gambling conspiracy with Edward William Curd, and Frank Costello, alleged gamblers. The suit was styled Lucille Chumbley Bradberry vs. Edward William Curd, Adolph Rupp and Frank Costello.

Coach Rupp's reaction to this scandalous charge was prompt and vigorous. Under Federal Rules of Procedure, a defendant has 20 days in which to file his answer, but on the day after this suit was filed, Rupp went to the Federal Building with his counsel, William H. Townsend, presented himself to the Marshal's office for service of summons and then went immediately across the corridor to the Clerk's Office and filed his answer, specifically denying "that any of the allegations made against him in plaintiff's complaint in this action are true and said defendant further affirmatively states that all of said allegations are wholly untrue and without any foundation of any kind or nature."

Three days later, after press dispatches from Athens, Georgia, had quoted Mrs. Bradberry and her husband declaring that they knew nothing to connect Coach Rupp with Curd or Costello, or with any other gambler or gambling transaction and that they had neither known of nor authorized the filing of any such suit, Rupp moved the Court to strike from the record all of the allegations of the alleged Complaint which referred or related in any way to him on the ground that said allegations are sham, false and wholly unauthorized by the alleged plaintiff, Lucile Chumbley Bradberry.

From Court records and the statement of Mrs. Bradberry and her husband, W. Lee Bradberry, it appears that back in 1951, Mrs. Bradberry allowed her name to be used as plaintiff in a suit filed by a Lexington attorney against Curd to recover alleged gambling losses by George Chumbley, a brother of Mrs. Bradberry. This suit was filed in the fall of 1951, and the personal counsel of Mr. and Mrs. Bradberry, Mr. Abit Nix, a prominent attorney at Athens, Georgia, also permitted his name to appear as co-counsel in this suit. In June, 1952, the Lexington attorney communicated with Mrs. Bradberry and requested her to join with other plaintiffs in another suit against Curd, stating that Mrs. Bradberry's position as plaintiff in the original suit would be strengthened by associating herself with other persons who claimed to be losers in gambling transactions with Curd. Mrs. Bradberry conferred with Mr. Nix, who wrote the Lexington attorney on June 27, 1952, declining to have Mrs. Bradberry join with other plaintiffs against Curd, or in any other litigation, and thus matters stood until the Bradberrys and Mr. Nix read in the Georgia newspapers about the suit which had been filed allegedly for Mrs. Bradberry against Coach Rupp on March 20, 1953.

Next day, Mr. Nix wired the Lexington attorney:

"We have been amazed at the contents of the news stories appearing in the press. The Bradberrys had me advise you in my letter of June 27, 1952 that they did not want any other suit filed for Mrs. Bradberry other than the suit then pending to recover Mr. Chumbley's losses. We never heard of these charges against Rupp, know nothing of the charges. Mrs. Bradberry wants her name stricken from this, and I certainly want no part of a case where I had no chance to know the facts and approve the pleadings."

Thereafter, on March 24th, Mrs. Bradberry wired him as follows:

"Please see that action filed in federal district court in my name against Rupp et. al. is dismissed."

After receipt of this wire, the Lex-

Ruby Graham, '49, of Brandenburg, UK journalism graduate who is now a fashion publicist and stylist in New York, was the subject of a feature story by Rhea Talley in the February 22 issue of the Courier Journal. Miss Talley is New York feature writer for the Courier Journal.

Miss Graham went to New York upon graduation, where she sold a few magazine articles and wrote a column for a Louisville-published magazine. Then she went to Louisville and worked in a store there for awhile, returning to New York again a few months later.

Upon her return to Manhattan she obtained a job with a large department store in Brooklyn where she staged all the fashion shows. She moved on from there to a Long Island store as fashion-coordinator. In this position she was sent to Europe. Now she has her own fashion publicity office at 10 Rockefeller Center, but she remains with the Long Island store as fashion-coordinator.

Her success story is one of hundreds concerning University of Kentucky graduates.

ington attorney moved the Court to dismiss the suit, but Coach Rupp opposes this procedure on the ground that he is entitled, before the suit is dismissed, to take proof that all of the scandalous allegations of the suit were falsely attributed to Mrs. Bradberry; that the allegations and the filing of the suit were unknown and unauthorized by her and that the Complaint, under Rule 11 of the Rules of Federal Procedure, is a sham and false pleading, for which the Court may take disciplinary action against the attorney who filed it. Judge Ford has overruled the Lexington attorney's objections to Mr. Rupp taking the depositions of Mr. and Mrs. Bradberry, her brother, George Chumbley, and her attorney, Mr. Abit Nix, and these depositions were to be taken on April 9, 1953, at Athens, Georgia, by Mr. Rupp's attorneys, William H. Townsend, of Lexington, Kentucky, and Robert P. Hobson, of Louisville, Kentucky.

UK Celebrated 88th. Birthday Feb. 22nd.

The University of Kentucky celebrated its 88th. birthday last February 22 with a distinctive birthday program given on Sunday afternoon, in Memorial Coliseum.

Departing from the usual custom of having a speaker for the occasion, the Founders Day committee presented a program consisting of music and dramatics, which was enthusiastically received and which set a precedent which will be hard to live up to.

Seven different musical organizations, including those of three Lexington high schools and Transylvania College in addition to University musical groups, were heard by the audience before the presentation of the climaxing feature — a dramatic narrative written and given by Prof. Hollis Summers of the department of English, tracing the development of the University from its beginning.

The narrative, entitled, "Here We Began," concluded with a brief tribute to "such leaders as the late Frank L. McVey, who became president in 1917, and Herman Lee Donovan who has guided the University for the past twelve years."

A melodic background was provided by the participating musical groups for the narrative, and at times those tunes presented aided to date the developments of the University.

Presiding over the entire program was Dean Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., of the College of Law, Founders Day committee chairman, who likened the University to a "family tree" and compared students to the trunk and alumni to the branches. The law dean asserted that the main aim of the birthday celebration was that of "celebrating and remembering."

Lt. Herman E. Spivey, Jr., '52, of Lexington, is enrolled in a 15-week infantry company officers course at Ft. Benning, Ga.

The Kentucky swimming team completed its season of an unbroken string of nine wins in dual meet competition and finished fourth in the Southeastern Conference swim meet in Athens, Ga. in March.

R. M. Boyd, Traffic Manager For Pittsburgh Glass Company

Appointment of Richard M. Boyd '36, as general traffic manager for Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company has been announced by John A. Wilson, vice president.

Associated with the firm since 1949, Mr. Boyd during that period has served as traffic manager for the firm's glass division. As general traffic manager for the firm, Mr. Boyd will head traffic operations in the glass, fiber glass, merchandising and paint and brush divisions.

Prior to his association with Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, Mr. Boyd had served as general agent at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania for the Illinois Central Railroad and earlier as commercial agent for the Illinois Central at Chicago.

With the rank of captain in 1942, Mr. Boyd was one of the first officers assigned to the U. S. Army's Transportation Corps. He was appointed Chief of Freight Branch in charge of all War Department freight traffic movement, a position he held until assigned to overseas duty in July 1945.

In the Philippines, he served as Port Transportation officer and Deputy Director of Operations at the Post of Manila. He was discharged into the Transportation Corps Reserves, February 1946, with the rank of colonel.

A native of Louisville, he is a graduate of the University of Kentucky. His post graduate work was in transportation at the University of Louisville and in law at the Jefferson School of Law.

UK MEN WRITE FOR GEORGIA QUARTERLY

Two University of Kentucky faculty men, Dr. Lawrence Thompson, director of libraries, and Dr. Thomas B. Stroup, professor of English, authored articles for the spring issue of the Georgia Review, a quarterly publication of the University of Georgia Press.

Dr. Thompson's article, entitled "Bluegrass and Bourbon: The Colonies of Kentucky Fiction," is a vigorous, vivid summation of the character of the traditional Kentucky colonel fiction and, to a Kentuckian, carries something of the nostalgia which goes with an era which has passed.

Dr. Stroup's paper, "Nothing Here for Tears," is a study of the humanities.

Lexington Annexes Ag Station Farm

The University of Kentucky Board of Trustees has authorized the City of Lexington to annex the University Experiment Station Farm.

President Herman Lee Donovan, in making the announcement of the authorization said that the officials of the city asked the Board of Trustees last December to approve the annexation in order that property on the other side of the farm can be annexed. The city can annex no property unless it is touching property already within the city limits, the President explained.

Since the Board could see no disadvantages in the annexation, and since the University wishes to maintain a happy relationship between the University and the city, the annexation was approved.

UK Farms' Need $1,922,300, Reports Faculty Committee

"A $1,744,000 program of new buildings and a $178,300 program of repairs and remodeling are needed to put the University of Kentucky farms in shape to do the research and demonstration jobs they are supposed to do for Kentucky farmers," reports E. W. Kieckhefer, Courier-Journal Farm Editor, in a story in the January 26 issue of that newspaper, based on a summary of the farms' needs turned in to Dean Frank J. Welch by a committee of staff members named by him to study the problem.

"Among the needs described in the new building program," says Mr. Kieckhefer, "is that for a new fireproof seed and fertilizer house."

The story goes into detail as to the committee's reasons for recommending such a building, and says that "some of the building needs described in the staff's report hinge on whether a new farm is bought for the Experiment Station and the location of such new land.

"A definite need for more land has been expressed by some staff members who point out that present university landholdings do not permit testing of crops on types of soil that represent the many types we have in the state."

Mr. Kieckhefer further states in his story that "the largest single item proposed in the report would be a plant-sciences building, cost of which is estimated at $950,000.

"The purpose of this building would be to bring together under one roof the offices, laboratories and classrooms of the departments of agronomy and horticulture, except the agricultural-engineering department, which now is a part of the agronomy department but which already has a fairly modern and adequate building of its own," quotes Mr. Kieckhefer from the faculty report to Dean Welch.

The report also recommended a new roof for the 40-year-old beef-cattle barn; additions to the newer beef-cattle barn; a $30,000 addition to the farrowing house in the swine department; a new greenhouse and a new soil house for horticulture; roof repairs to the horticulture barn; remodeling of the farm shop; eight movable shelters for beef and six for cattle; renewal of farm fencing; the addition of two cottages at Princeton sub-station; an animal-industries building; a new broiler house for the poultry department; a new $10,000 dairy barn for experiments in reproductions troubles; a shed for cows and an experimental calf barn; a $10,000 tobacco-research barn, a farm-headquarters building and an addition to the Princeton-farm auditorium.

Alum Heads Most Unusual College

The Federal Civil Defense Administration (FCDA) has announced the appointment of Virgil L. Couch, 401 South Garfield Street, Arlington, Virginia as director of the newly enlarged National Civil Defense Training Center at Olney, Maryland.

Prior to taking over his new post, Mr. Couch was executive officer of FCDA's Training and Education Office. He is an expert in public administration and has had extensive experience in Civil Defense having been also the first director of personnel and deputy assistant administrator for management at FCDA. He is widely known throughout the Federal service and among state, county and city governmental workers. Before his civil defense career he was director of personnel for ECA (Marshall Plan) and director of personnel and labor relations for the Farmers Home Administration and the Farm Security Administration. In 1949-50 he was president of the Society for Personnel Administration, an international organization of over 2,000 personnel directors and technicians, and vice-president of the Society for the Advancement of Management, which is composed of top management experts in Washington. He is chairman of Arlington county's first Civil Service Commission. Mr. Couch obtained the degree of B.S. in Commerce at the University of Kentucky and has completed considerable graduate study in psychology, management, training and personnel administration.

FCDA's National Civil Defense Training Center consists of The Staff College and The Rescue School and provides two types of regular courses, and a great variety of special courses for civil defense leaders in states, cities, counties, industrial organizations and institutions. The Staff College trains Civil Defense administrators and officials in how to plan, organize and operate an overall local civil defense program, and the Rescue School trains civil defense instructors in the techniques and skills of wartime rescue, fire fighting, and warden services.

The Center includes "Rescue Street" which is an entire city street, complete with stores, a theatre, two-story dwellings, apartments and five-story business and office buildings which have been erected in a partially demolished condition. These are the nation's most unusual training aids where students learn by working under simulated wartime disaster conditions. Store fronts are blown out, floors of houses partly in basements, girders and beams

Ceramics Testing Laboratory Has Been Opened at University

Kentucky industry is expected to benefit materially from a ceramics laboratory recently placed in operation at the University of Kentucky through the co-operation of two separate UK divisions.

Announcement of the opening of the new testing laboratory came yesterday from the two divisions involved—the Kentucky Geological Survey and the College of Engineering. The Geological Survey is a state unit operated on the UK campus and directed by Dr. Arthur C. McFarlan, head of the University's Department of Geology.

Function of the new laboratory is the testing of clays and shales brought to the campus from all sections of Kentucky by the survey staff. The laboratory itself is located in the UK Mining Laboratory building and is operated by an analyst in the Department of Mining and Metallurgical Engineering.

The project for testing clays and shales is one of several mineral investigations being conducted by the survey in co-operation with the Agricultural and Development Board of Kentucky.

Spokesman for the survey was Preston McGrain, assistant state geologist. He described the opening of the new laboratory as "a move to aid in the development of clay resources in Kentucky."

"The ceramics industry is already an important part of Kentucky's economy, but state clay reserves not being exploited potentially represent thousands of dollars for Kentuckians," the geologist declared.

McGrain pointed out that the types of available clays in Kentucky vary potentially "from pottery down to brick and tile."

Companies manufacturing brick, tile and other materials frequently approach the Kentucky Survey concerning possible resources and the new laboratory will provide samples made from tested clay.

Operating the laboratory is Thomas A. Kendall, research analyst, who directs all experiments in the Mining Laboratory building.

"We've attempted to duplicate factory conditions in the laboratory so that our brick samples will be just like commercial brick fired from the same clay," Kendall explained. "We have simulated factory conditions—except that everything here is in miniature."

The analyst turned to a machine producing thin bars of clay:

"This is a miniature vacuum extrusion machine which takes the air and water from the clay and then turns out these unfired bricks just like a brick factory. After air drying, these clay bars will be fired in an electrically heated kiln and the result will be finished brick."

The new-made brick, together with results of laboratory tests, are then handed back to the Geological Survey for preparation of reports. These reports are published and made available to interested manufacturers and the public.

Geologist McGrain and Analyst Kendall agreed that the new laboratory "won't give all the answers" to the ceramics industry. However, both expressed a hope that results of laboratory research will serve as a guide to "roadmap" for the industry.

While attendance at sporting events particularly basketball, fell off the country over this past season, Kentucky, suspended from intercollegiate competition by unprecedented NCAA edict, substituted a unique intramural series of four squad scrimmages open to the public without admission charge, and attracted a total attendance of nearly 35,000. As one basketball fan explained it, "Where else can you see the best two basketball teams in America battle it out and be free?"

Preston McGrain (left) of the Kentucky Geological Survey inspects a sample brick produced in the University of Kentucky's new ceramics laboratory. Operator of the laboratory is Thomas A. Kendall, research analyst in the UK Department of Mining and Metallurgical Engineering, shown demonstrating a vacuum extrusion machine. Brick bars produced by the machine may be seen emerging from the machine's conveyor at the left.

Fayette Physicians Favor Med School

The Fayette County Medical Association has gone on record, without a dissenting vote, as favoring the creation of a University of Kentucky School of Medicine.

The group went on record at its February meeting, after Dr. J. S. Chambers, UK health center physician and member of a UK committee studying the question, explained some of the conclusions he had reached in his study of the problem.

"Kentucky is now, definitely, a two-school state in regard to medical needs," Dr. Chambers said. He further pointed out that the only practical way to produce enough graduates to erase Kentucky's "low rank" in the ratio of physicians to population is to place two first-class schools in operation.

Dr. Chambers said it would be greatly to the advantage of both the University and the medical school itself if the proposed schools were made an integral part of the University.

"Not only are there mutual broadening, cultural and educational benefits in university location of medical schools, but administration and servicing is facilitated," he said. He also stressed the advantage of Lexington as a location for a second Kentucky medical school.

"Until two or three decades ago, Lexington was considered too small a place for a medical school. There would not have been enough sick people in hospitals for teaching material. Those were the horse and buggy days in transportation. Today, there are 400,000 people within an hour of Lexington," said Dr. Chambers.

"In fact," he continued, "Lexington, primarily a residential city whose greatest interests are educational and cultural, is an ideal location. It has fine medical traditions and it is doubtful if there is a more advantageous location for a new medical school in the country."

SON OF ALUMNUS GIVES UK CONCERT

Armin Watkins, pianist and violinist, and son of J. R. Watkins, '15, of New Haven, Conn., president of Watkins Patents, Inc., was presented in a special concert of the University of Kentucky's Sunday Afternoon Musicale series on the last Sunday in March.

Young Mr. Watkins is a senior this year at Yale University School of Music and will be graduated from Yale with a double major in piano and violin and a minor in music. At the age of 16 he was twice piano soloist with the Chicago Symphony, and was a first place winner in piano auditions for young musicians in the Chicago area.

Commission and a University of Kentucky committee headed by Vice President Leo M. Chamberlain, are currently studying the establishment of a UK medical school. Recommendations are expected to be presented to the 1954 General Assembly.

Two UK Graduates Ordained Ministers

Robert Whitridge Estill, '49, and Edwin Warren Taylor, '50, both of Lexington, were ordained into the priesthood of the Protestant Episcopal church by the Right Rev. William Robert Moody, D.D., Bishop of Lexington, Wednesday, Feb. 11 at Christ Church, Lexington.

The investiture was held at 11 a.m. and the presenter for Mr. Estill was the Rev. William L. Gatling, Jr., rector of St. John's Episcopal church, Versailles. The presenter for Mr. Taylor was the Rev. Vesper O. Ward, minister at Christ Church.

The sermon was given by the Rev. Edward Laurence Baxter, curate at St. Mark's Church, Louisville.

Both young men are graduates of the University of Kentucky. Mr. Estill was also graduated from the Harvard Theological School, and Mr. Taylor from Virginia Theological Seminary.

Mr. Estill is now rector of St. Mary's Church, Middlesboro, Ky., and Mr. Taylor is rector of Christ Church, Harlan, Ky.

ALUMNI-VARSITY GRID TILT OFF

The proposed alumni-varsity football game at the conclusion of spring practice, which was proposed as a match between current and former Kentucky stars, was called off by a ruling from Southeastern Conference Commissioner Bernie Moore.

Coach Paul Bryant was informed by the commissioner that the game, replacing the annual intrasquad contest, would be in violation of Southeastern Conference rules restricting spring practice games to intrasquad tilts conducted on the campus.

When the ALUMNUS went to press, Coach Bryant was planning a renewal of the intrasquad contest, at the end of April or early in May.

PAT JAMES NAMED ASSISTANT COACH

Pat James, until this spring football coach at Danville High School, has been named an assistant on the University of Kentucky football coaching staff.

James' appointment was effective March 1. He succeeds Paul Dietzel who has resigned to accept a position on the West Point coaching staff.

A standout defensive guard, James played with the Wildcats when they played in the Orange and Sugar Bowls. He was graduated from the University in June 1951 and was a part-time assistant on Coach Bryant's staff the following season.

He coached Danville to seven victories, one tie and two losses.

LEGISLATION STUDY ASKED OF LAW SCHOOL

The Law School has been asked to make a study to determine what additional legislation is necessary to permit complete elimination of duplicating and overlapping governmental services in Lexington and Fayette county.

The request came to Dean Elvis Stahr, Jr., from the chairman of the Citizens Committee for Improvement of Local Government.

James C. Boyd, chairman of the committee, said the group would like to know what additional legislation or statutory powers are needed to permit the city to "render all of the services it now performs plus all those of the county" and to permit the county to "render all of the services it now performs plus those of the city."

"The committee at this time is searching only for knowledge as to what laws or regulations would need to be changed to bring about elimination of duplications—not statements as to the feasibility of these plans," said the committee chairman.

The committee asked that the study report be submitted by May 10.

Mother Of Seven UK Grads Chosen '53 State Mother

Mrs. Lillian B. Spragens, 62, of Lebanon, Ky., wife of Judge Henry W. Spragens, judge of the 11th. Judicial District and mother of seven children, all of whom hold at least one degree from the University of Kentucky, has been chosen as Kentucky's candidate for American Mother of the Year.

A native of Lancaster, the new state mother is a graduate of Lebanon High School and is a member of the United Presbyterian church there. She is active in the Lebanon Woman's Club, the Lebanon Parent-Teacher Association and the Monday Study Club.

During World War II Mrs. Spragens served as Marion county's representative on the OPA Council. Her other contributions on the community level include work for the Red Cross and similar welfare agencies.

Of her seven children, five boys and two girls, two now live in Kentucky, one is in England, and one lives in each of the states of Mississippi, Arkansas, Missouri and Tennessee.

William Henry Spragens, Jr., professor of mathematics at the University of Mississippi, holds A.B. and M.S. degrees from Kentucky.

John Brewer Spragens, of Little Rock, Ark., regional director of religious education for the Presbyterian Church, U. S., holds the A.B. degree from UK.

Thomas Arthur Spragens, recently named president of Stephens College, Columbia Mo., holds the A.B. degree.

George Francis Spragens, of Lyndon, Ky., assistant manager of York Louisville Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Co., holds the B.S.M.E. degree from the University.

Robert McMurry Spragens, of Lebanon, now a practicing attorney there, holds the LL.B. degree from the College of Law.

Mrs. Dorothy Spragens Trice, of Oak Ridge, Tenn., was graduated with an M.S. degree in mathematics from the University.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lee Spragens Griffin is now in England with her husband who is in the Judiciary Department of the U. S. Air Force. Only 24 years old, she is the youngest member of the family and also holds the LL.B. degree from UK's College of Law.

The University of Kentucky is happy that recognition has come to such a fine Mother of seven of its distinguished graduates.

Students who graduate from the Instructor School are prepared to return to their city and establish schools and training courses for civil defense volunteers. They are given complete plans and specifications for erecting their own smaller model of the Rescue Street. Training is planned on the "multiplier principle", one instructor training ten others, who in turn train others until thousands of instructors and skilled civil defense workers are trained quickly. FCDA said that over four million civil defense workers have already been trained toward the goal of 17 million which will be needed in wartime.

Do You Remember This Man?

L. E. "Butch" Nollau

By E. Everett Elsey,
Prof. of Engineering Research

Of course, you do. Whether you are a recent graduate or whether you are in line to return for your tenth, twentieth, thirtieth, fortieth or, even, almost your fiftieth reunion, one of the first persons you will look forward to greeting again will be "Prof" L. E. Nollau. The older grads will greet him with a familiar "Hello, Butch!" and he, in turn, will call their names, will remember each individual out of the hundreds of Engineering graduates.

This comes from his keen and sincere interest in young people. From the time a freshman enrolls in engineering drawing, through the trials of descriptive geometry, through the full four years on to the happy day of Commencement, Prof. Nollau's interest and helpful guidance never lags. In fact, he has been proudly lettering the names of all graduates, not only the College of Engineering, but of the entire University, on diplomas for the last 49 years, starting with his own in 1904.

And who, of all those attending the College during that time, has not looked into the lens of his faithful old camera? Starting it as a hobby, he has developed the art of photography into a real science. The files in his dark room contain thousands of negatives which could tell much of the history of the development and growth of the University. Pictures he has taken of groups, of individuals, of campus scenes can be found in almost every University publication. But his name will not be found on them. Modesty is one of Prof's outstanding characteristics. The satisfaction of a job well done is all the credit he asks.

Louis Edward Nollau was born in

AG DEAN HEADS SOUTHERN GROUP

Dean Frank J. Welch of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics has been elected president of the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers.

The 1954 convention of the association has also been scheduled for Louisville. The Louisville meeting will be the first the organization has held in Kentucky since it was organized in 1899.

Dean Welch has served as vice president of the association for the past year. He is the second Kentuckian to be president of the association. Dr. Thomas P. Cooper, dean emeritus of the college held the office in 1922.

Reunion — June 4-5

Quincy, Illinois. He came to the University from the Manual Training High School, Louisville. His work as a student easily qualified him for Tau Beta Pi and he was a charter member of Mu Iota social club which later received its charter as a chapter of Alpha Tau Omega. And it might be added here that his interest in both of these is just as keen now as it was in his student days.

After graduating in 1904 with the degree of B.M.E., he was made an instructor in Wood Shop and Drawing which position he held for four years. He then became Assistant Professor of Mechanical Drawing and later Professor of Engineering Drawing in which capacity he helped start many on successful engineering careers.

Not all of these years have been kind to Prof. Nollau. Several have brought more than their share of sorrow and grief, but his wonderful spirit always carried him through.

Now, the years have brought the time of retirement — the finishing touches to a job well done. On July first his responsibilities will be lessened by a change of work status but his energy and intense interest in life around him should keep him on the active list for many years.

Of course, every former student of the College of Engineering remembers this man—and the remembrances of him are not just with the head but come sincerely from the heart.

UK Public Service Labs Serve State

By C. A. Lewis

The Public Service Laboratories at the University of Kentucky perform a host of services of value to the commonwealth.

A report of Director Linwood Brown tells about the examination of foods and drugs, milk and other dairy products, public and private water supplies, and specimens from county health departments, clinics and physicians for disease germs. Last year 25,034 specimens were examined.

Water samples numbering 3,342 were examined in 1952 to see if they were fit to use.

Four hundred and sixty-one animal heads, mostly dogs, but also cats, cattle, hogs, sheep and horses, were examined for rabies. There were heads of 31 foxes and other wild animals, including two monkeys.

Forty-one special investigations were made in connection with suspected food contamination, and 57 stomachs and other human organs were examined to see if the victims had been poisoned.

A long list of foods comes to the laboratories. Included are hundreds of milk samples. But there are many baked products, including chiffon pies, and hamburger and other meats. People don't like the way they taste or look.

Pills, capsules and hundreds of liquid remedies arrive at the laboratories for analysis, to see if they are as represented. People want to swallow them for their ills, but something shakes their faith and they ask the laboratories for the truth.

The Public Service Laboratories are even asked to test liquors, to see how much alcohol they contain, and whether drugs or other poisons are in them.

These few brief facts should give some idea of the great value of the Public Service Laboratories to the people of the state.

Former UK Board Member To Retire

Dr. Lee Kirkpatrick, of Paris, now in his 35th year as superintendent of Paris City Schools, will retire at the end of the school year.

Dr. Kirkpatrick is widely known in education circles and is the author of several textbooks. He headed the Nicholasville and Lawrenceburg school systems before going to Paris.

The educator served as a University of Kentucky trustee for a number of years and as a trustee at Georgetown College, and belongs to numerous educational societies, state and national, and has held office in several at various times.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, the former Marie Johnson, was graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1911 and their daughter, Mary Morton, now Mrs. Wilson Huston, was graduated from UK in 1939.

Alumnus Appointed Small Claims Judge

Alexander D. (Sonny) Hall, Jr., of St. Cloud, Fla., practicing attorney in that city, has been commissioned by Governor McCarty of Florida as judge of the small claims court for Osceola County.

A native of Lexington, Ky., Mr. Hall practiced in Orlando, Fla., before taking over the office of the late Jay Johnston in St. Cloud last February.

Judge Hall stated tentatively he plans to have his court open for filing and hearing of claims on Friday afternoons each week at the courthouse in St. Cloud.

Ten UK football players were sworn in as corporals in the U. S. Marine Corps reserve last March. Upon graduation they will receive reserve commissions as second lieutenants.

UK's Sophomore Marksman Attains National Honors

Charles D. Combs

Charles D. Combs, sophomore member of the UK Army varsity rifle team from Hazard, Ky., who last year won recognition for the University by firing phenomenal scores in national rifle matches, has done it again.

The young Hazard boy has been declared individual marksman winner in both the National and Second Army divisions of the annual William Randolph Hearst Army ROTC Rifle Match.

The eastern Kentucky youth fired a score of 197 out of a possible 200 points in the national meet to emerge as top man from a field of approximately 2,000 crack riflemen from throughout the nation. More than 200 institutions in the U. S. and its territories entered at least one team in the match.

Combs first won acclaim as an expert marksman last April when he fired the highest score ever shot by a University of Kentucky rifleman. This was achieved in a match against the University of California when he recorded a score of 297 out of 300 points.

Military science administrators at the University said they had no record of any other Kentucky student ever winning the top award in the Hearst contest. Led by Combs, the UK rifle unit placed sixth in the Second Army Division of the match.

U. K. Chosen Research Site

The University of Kentucky has been selected by the Department of the Army and the Department of the Air Force as one of 12 American universities at which research will be conducted to measure leadership potential of Army and Air Force ROTC cadets.

Announcement of the selection of U. K. as a testing school came from the University's Department of Military Science and Tactics and Department of Air Science and Tactics.

From the result of tests carried on at U. K. and other Universities a suitable test battery will be obtained which will permit granting of Air Force and Army ROTC scholarships to qualify students, the announcement disclosed.

Barry Bingham Gives 4-H Pool

Barry Bingham, president of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times, has given the University of Kentucky $23,942 for the construction of a swimming pool at the Bingham 4-H Club Camp in Washington county. The gift was made through the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times Foundation.

In 1940 Mr. Bingham gave to the University funds for the purchase of property in Washington county, then known as Tatum Springs, to be used as a summer camp and community center for Kentucky 4-H Clubs.

This gift was made in memory of his father, the late Robert Worth Bingham, until his death publisher of the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times and at one time ambassador to Great Britain.

The University of Kentucky Press has published a revised edition of the book, "Making Good Communities Better," by Dr. Irwin T. Sanders, UK professor of sociology and director of the Bureau of Community Service. First edition of the book, published in 1950, went into two printings, which were quickly sold out.

A program of experimental testing already has been completed at U. K. with the assistance of a testing team from the Human Resources Research Center at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas. Senior Air Force and Army students were tested during these experiments.

VIRGIL CHRISTIAN MOST POPULAR PROF

Virgil L. Christian, Jr., B.S. in Commerce '47, M.S. in Economics, '49, instructor in economics at the University, was named by the UK Newman Club as the winner of its annual "Popular Professor" contest this spring.

Spring Sports Under Way

Prospects Good in Spite of Weather

By Ken Kuhn,
Sports Publicity Editor

Lingering "Old Man Winter" put an effective damper on early season practice for University of Kentucky's spring sports teams but for the most part the quartet of part-time coaches of the various athletic programs were hopeful of good seasons despite the weather bugaboo.

Probably the most optimistic man in camp was former Wildcat links standout Johnny Owens, master of the fortunes of a squad of 10 golfers. The ex-SEC individual champion was asking no quarter from any side as he prepared to put his parbusters to work on a 14-match and two-tournament schedule opening with Vandy in Nashville April 3.

A check of the roster of the Kentucky golf team, which last season slipped badly after an auspicious start to finish with a 7-6-2 record, shows five returning lettermen and some red hot freshman prospects headed by the sensational Gay Brewer, holder of innumerable championships including the Southern Amateur title.

Baseball Coach Harry Lancaster, whose charges were limited by the weather to about three good days outdoors before leaving on a southern swing to open against Florida and Georgia, also was speaking in optimistic terms in late March. He figured the Kentucky nine might make a surprising showing if his pitchers come around as expected and some help shows up in the hitting department. Three standouts from the '52 team were lost to pro baseball ranks — Charlie Keller, Bunky Gruner, and Gene Neff. However, a trio of .300 hitters, led by All-Conference outfielder Frank Ramsey, will be available and the mound staff was bolstered by the addition of freshman Phil (Cookie) Grawemeyer, possessor of a blistering port-side crossfire pitch.

The cindermen of Track Coach Don Cash Seaton faced a danger-laden schedule of meets with a definite void evident in their ranks despite the bolstering presence of several hefty prospects from the gridiron. Ace miler, Dwight (Speedy) Price, who had been counted on heavily, developed complications from an attack of the flu and missed the pre-season indoor meets planned. It was expected he might recover sufficiently to compete by mid-season.

Veteran Tennis Coach H. H. Downing had a well-balanced net contingent at his disposal to carry Kentucky's colors in a 14-match schedule and the SEC tournament. The roster is headed by returning lettermen Capt. Monty Price, Ed Rodman, and George Koper and lists as promising prospects a duo of regional high school champs.

With a little help from the weatherman on the matter of getting in shape, the more than 75 athletes participating in UK's spring sports program looked forward to the 1953 season with the distinct prospect of enjoying one of the best overall campaigns in the school's history.

Billy Evans, junior fire ball on Basketball Coach Adolph Rupp's squad, made a perfect standing in his studies the first semester of the current school year. He is taking a pre-dentistry course.

"The University of Kentucky Symphony Orchestra is moving into the ranks of top college symphony orchestras with ease," said a recent newspaper reviewer in commenting on a program presented by the group under the director of Dr. Edwin Stein, head of the University's Department of Music.

In observance of its 25th. anniversary, the Bureau of School Service at UK has published a special bulletin which reviews the history of the agency and cites plans for the future. The UK agency is recognized as the oldest active school service unit in the nation.

Nicholasville Has Wildcat in Making

The young 22-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Price, of Nicholasville, is starting out early along the right road. Enthusiastic supporters of UK, the Price's have outfitted the youngster in a "K" sweater for the fall football season. Mrs. Price was the former Anna Lewis Kines, class of '36.

Coach Paul Bryant says: "When football styles get back to the "rugged individualist" era next fall, you'll want to keep an eye on a lot of good Kentuckians as they come into their own. . . . In the veteran category, check the performance of Somserset's Ray Correll at guard. . . . Among the youngsters, watch for tough Duke Curran, another top-flight guard who promises to give Ashland a good reputation in Kentucky football. His younger brother, Ivan, will enroll at UK in September.

Miss Sue Wetherby, University of Kentucky junior and daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Lawrence Wetherby of Kentucky, was chosen by the Kentucky Society of Washington, D. C. to compete with other states' candidates for the queen title of the capital's Cherry Blossom Festival which was scheduled for April 8-12.

Coach Bryant Discusses '53 Grid Season

By Ken Kuhn,
Sports Publicity Editor

Aside from the difficulties of inexperience and too little time to convert adequately to the new plan of limited substitution, Coach Paul Bryant's eighth edition of the Kentucky grid Wildcats promises to be one of the most challenging elevens of the school's post-bowl era.

The Kentucky chieftan, who has guided the Wildcats to their first Southeastern Conference title and four bowl appearances since taking the helm in 1946, looks to the coming campaign with mixed feelings of optimism over the team's potential and serious worry over its inexperience.

While only six seniors were lost off the squad that produced a 5-4-2 record last season, the 1953 band nevertheless will be made up primarily of sophomores and juniors. There will be some semblance of strength for the credit side of the ledger in the fact that 75 men are returning, Bryant feels. However, the head man hastens to point out that relatively few were regulars throughout last season, fewer still have more than one year's experience under their belts, and only a smattering have displayed an ability to play capably under double-duty conditions.

"Even though we feel that we know the real potential of our personnel and believe that they will possess a high degree of desire, the fact remains that virtually all of the groundwork of individual teaching and team planning for two-way play will have to be accomplished in the brief spring training period," Bryant explains. "Aside from the time element, which will particularly handicap our seniors who previously have played only one way through no choice of their own, there is the danger of a serious drop in team morale. It might be expected that the prospect of a 50 per cent reduction in the number of starters and a slight cut in squad size would lead to much unhappiness among the players.

"However, we feel that increased competition for starting berths plus the fact that we plan to alternate two teams in the game will off-set the possibility of such a catastrophe," he added.

Coach Bryant specified that selection of men for UK's "new look" team in 1953 will be based on a yardstick in which genuine desire comes first. After this, he said he would seek speed, aggressiveness, intelligence and ability. Speed in the line and ability to play pass defense in the backfield will be prime requisites. And it is imperative that the squad attain and keep in top physical condition to insure staying power under limited substitution conditions and help avoid injuries," he declared.

"I sincerely believe," the Wildcat mentor explained, "that an athlete, who through continuous hard practice develops skill enough to compete both offensively and defensively against an opponent who is his equal, will undoubtedly learn many lessons that will benefit him in later life."

Kentucky's major weakness in 1953 appears centered in the forward wall. Three of the four first string tackles of last season are missing and the lone returnee was a freshman in '52 who played only defense. Similar problems beset the rest of the line with the probable top prospect at each position hampered by a complete lack of familiarity with either offensive or defensive play.

In the overall picture, the Wildcats could be slightly improved offensively if the line replacements learn their new lessons well and if the backfield consolidates along lines indicated by the many experiments of last season. The squad undoubtedly will be a light one, especially in the line, but general team speed likely will be a little improved.

The passing game should be more consistent next season, if not actually somewhat improved. Since the Split-T style of attack, adopted for the first time by Kentucky last year, will be the vogue again in 1953, the aerial game probably will play second fiddle to the ground maneuvers except under appropriate circumstances. While the chief participants in this phase of the Wildcat offense are a matter of conjecture, it is certain that big Steve Meilinger, the one-man team All-America candidate, will be prominent either in his new T-quarterback post or on the receiving end.

Defensively, the situation is something of an unknown quality but possibly will be a little better in some departments, such as pass defense where the secondary men are back with a year's experience to aid them. The kicking game also should show improvement with the development of Jim Mayo, number one punter of last season.

In the words of Coach Bryant, the success to be enjoyed in 1953 by the Wildcats "depends on the desire displayed in practice this spring during the change-over and the spirit and morale of the squad in general next fall."
