Fraternity Balance Sheet

The college fraternity, for over a century tucked snugly away in its academic cradle, has now reached the point where it must face the facts of life.

in closer companionship with those classed as "brothers."

"These, obviously, are assets, and were it not for the fact that there are certain things wrong with the system, and that it is these latter which are being revealed most openly to the public, then fraternities would have no cause for alarm.

What's Bad About Them

But because an appalling number of Greeks are too self-satisfied to be aware that there are things wrong, these conditions now exist:

There has grown up a tendency to regard the fraternity as the all-important thing in college, with academics subordinated to the rank of a "sideline." Somehow or other, there seems to have arisen a belief among many that the Greek lodge is the very raison d'etre for the university, and that one must not allow his "schoolwork" to interfere with going to college.

In a majority of cases, the national fraternity office approaches the status of the rackets, becoming the tail that wags the dog—the dog's disadvantage. Even in the better of the national-chapter relationships, one can hardly deny that the campus chapter gives much more to the national office than it receives in return.

There is a tendency for fraternity politics to approach methods which are nearer fascism than democracy. Jersey City's Hague is no more futuristic than the Greek party boss and his demerits blind loyalty and support pin-wearing candidates, regardless of those candidates' capabilities.

Last, and by far the most damaging to the system's reputation, is hell week and excessive hazing. This practice, which by every possible criterion should have died with the bell-bottom trousers and camouflaged Ford's, is still being retained by—and is still losing prestige for—an astounding number of campus chapters. And all this despite repeated disapprovals from national offices, which are well aware of the general public's nausea.

A Conclusion

Using these obvious conditions as bases, one draws this conclusion: all in all, fraternities will do justify their existence, and it is probable that the fraternity framework will continue just as long as does the American university in its present form.

The problem, however, is this: unless members of the system soon admit that the above faults exist and begin immediately to take steps to correct them, they are going to find themselves in the position of having only the campus froth and chaff for "brothers." They must face the challenge which public opinion has hurled at them, and must wake up to the fact that these are no longer the Sentimental Nineties or the Gin-jug Twenties; these are the super-serious days of 1940, when everything which cannot prove its merit beyond a shadow of a doubt is going by the board.

The American society is so constructed that when an aroused public opinion demands that an institution open up its ledger, that institution must either clean house or call it a day.

And the college fraternity has been asked by the public to prove its worth.

What's Good About Them

Fraternities—and here we include the women's lodges as well as the men's—are "good" for the following reasons:

They aid, often to the point of indispensable, their respective universities in their problems of housing and organization. On many campuses fraternity houses comprise almost the entire dormitory system, in some cases without costing the institutions a cent. They help, because they are organized, their colleges to carry out innumerable programs that could never see need on large campuses that sprang without system.

Without doubt they make for more diversified and better executed social activities than would otherwise be possible, and they are capable of teaching even the most backward freshman the difference between a napkin and a bib.

In numerous cases—especially in the larger universities—fraternities play a major role in acclimating freshman and transfers, and in getting them through the orgies of registration and classification. This, obviously, is only the case at schools permitting first-week rushing and on campuses where a majority of the newcomers are rushed.

They give to students a "feeling of belonging," a thing which, though usually over-rated, manages to instill in the timid a bit of confidence, a knowledge that here is one place at least where he is wanted. And even the most cynical must admit that the fraternity results in wider acquaintanceships than ordinarily, and

The Vice Of The People

By John Soicer

Walter Hodge ex football lineman, and Oscar Wright took the ary and Billie Dyer have been in and out since Billy returned from New York where she worked as a model this summer. "It'll take city a while to rid herself of big city ideas," says Walter.

That persistent rumor that the Lee Huber-Ruth Ware romance is on the rocks is false. They're going together again—but definitely. Best news of the week is the announcement by Preacher and Mrs. Sam Huletts that they expect a visit from the stork next spring. Sam is sure it's going to be a boy and the best little footballer in the country.

Anna Rae Peunshaker was seen in a tete-a-tete with village life-guard, Careful Ham, it can happen here—again.

Captain John Ebbner's recent whirlwind courtship by a certain pretty miss was climaxed the other night. She pinned big John and gave him a sparkling diamond ring to boot. The big man has a way with women. Kay Dee Eiben Bullivan thinks he's just grand.

Dave Brown and Billy (Tyron) Black are still roommates and the best of friends, even though they have reneged on the "We share all understanding they had, when Billy showed interest in Dave's own Lil-lan Gaines Webb.

Bob Scott couldn't quite make the grade in the air corps. He's back in town and rumor has it that he's going to try the navy. Better luck this time Bob.

Dot Manning can't quite seem to make up her mind. Owen Cox brought her to the dance last Saturday, but Oscar Wright took the play away from him.

The romance of Vice-Proxy Vernon is also sure. Congratulations, Vernon is also sure.

It seems as if Erna Jane Betts has forsaken Bill Blanford, whom she has been dating all summer for Larry Lory. She has been seen with Larry quite often of late.

John Sweeny electrified the sporting crowd at the Xavier game by pulling a "Gypsy Rose Lee" act. Peyton Horton, How Combs and Buster Stephenson, the fast talking P. Kap, are in the field for the hand of Lovely Lida Siga. Peyton and Hook seem to be running neck and neck, with Buster ambling along far behind.

Violet Owen seems to be the attractive distraction that is causing Tom Sawyer to go sleepless nights. She was by far the most sought after girl at the hop last Saturday.

"Tat" Allen-Phil Phillips, Ed Greshon-Chi Omega Jane Richard and Larry Garland-Shirley Mattox are in the holding hands stage.

The loss of Rita Sue Lastly's turtle "Susie," a remembrance from Harry Zimmerman caused so much sorrow that the girls from Jewell hall replaced "Susie" with a miniature from the five and dime store.

Dot Lancaster turned ten different shades of red, when she realized that she had accepted a ride to town from two strange boys.

THE CAMPUSCENE

By BUSH BROOKE

As breath-taking as the blitzkrieg it is designed to combat, final enactment of the peacetime military conscription bill descended upon the nation's college campuses last week. Although objective polling of national opinion discovered that 69 percent of the nation's adult voting population declared themselves unequivocally for the draft, student polling lagged behind, but it was estimated less than two-thirds of all college students will endorse the bill.

However, some conception of national student opinion can be obtained from the student body. Among the first colleges conducting opinion polls was the University of West Virginia where 79 percent of interviewees favored the draft. Fifty-nine percent held that conscription is a step toward war while 84 percent denounced the drafting of "those holding responsible positions in industry, finance and other college men."

The Miami Student, of Miami University, Ohio, declared itself opposed to the draft even though it "left-handedly favors it."

Kendall Tells Principles, Aims Of New Co-op

To the Editor of the Kernel: In response to the hundreds of inquiries regarding the Students' Cooperative from the student body, it would like to give them this explanation through your columns.

First I want to thank the students for their unanimous support and sympathy given to us and to pledge that we will do our utmost to fulfill their confidence by giving them economic and efficient service.

The Cooperative has been run by the student body since its inception. The guiding principle of our cooperative is as simple as this: The student body is in business to save money for the student members instead of going to a non-student capitalist.

The principle is workable and sound and is highly successful at other colleges. That is, a cooperative in its business to save money for its members and not to make money off the students.

Our future plans call for expansion so as to handle other student needs; we will be set up at the end of this semester to buy and sell new and used books for the students on a non-profit basis. Suggestions as to how we can make this a more worthwhile organization will be welcomed at any time.

The cooperative will be operated by a board of directors of responsible representatives elected by the members in a democratic manner. The possibilities of this movement are limited only by our lack of vision, industry and willingness to cooperate. This is a challenge to our student government and to all students who want to make a constructive contribution to the University of Kentucky.

Tryouts Announced For Dance Group

Tryouts for the Modern Dance group, which is under the direction of Mrs. Mary King Combs, will be held at the Women's gym at 4 p. m. tomorrow. There is no prerequisite necessary to dance with this group.

Folk dancing, under the direction of M. G. Karsner, physical education instructor, will be held at 7:30 p. m. each Thursday in the Women's gym. Those attending the dancing which is open to all, are required to wear low heeled, rubber soled shoes.

Tests Offered

Tuberculin tests will be given from 1:30 to 3:00 p. m. on Wednesdays at the dispensary, Dr. J. S. Chambers, annexed, starting today. Any student who wishes to take this test may do so without charge.

Tuberculosis is probably as old as man. The first relics of the disease date back to the beginning of civilization, the Neolithic period, about 5000 B. C. when man first domesticated animals.

'The Women,' Guignol's Initial Play, Has Had A Dizzy Career

By ALEENY E. WINS

If for no other reason than its dizzy career, Clare Booth's "The Women" should cut some lanes capers when it hits this campus shortly over at Guignol. Its history is dotted with interesting ups and downs which have served to make the piece quite popular.

First performance was in Philadelphia's Forrest theatre, under Max Gordon, on December 7, 1936. That brotherly love town couldn't hold it, ticket prices too high, and it moved to New York.

The Philly cast was 38; in New York only 35. Later 40. Guignol is casting for 44. Official Gordon opening was on December 26 that year in the Ethel Barrymore theatre and Times review by Brooks Atkinson said, "I disliked it."

Aloud, the show didn't hit so well, especially in London where the two serious British couldn't get into the swing of things. Yes, the British took the thing too damned seriously. Lord Chamberlain objected to the play on the grounds that the attitude of one of the characters toward motherhood was not pleasing to him. He threatened to keep the production from the British stage. Said Mrs. Lane (Clare Booth had married Henry Lane, publisher of Time magazine), "any changes would jeopardize the fundamental idea, which is to show how destructive certain types of women can be." So, for several months British production lagged.

At, but even Providence, R. L. got heated up over it and banned it... the first place in the United States where it met such a fate. Said the Bureau of Police and Fire (noble judges), "... we do not think the people of Providence need this kind of low down stuff. The play may represent certain phases of life, but we feel that these phases are not what the people of Providence want to see." No, I suppose the people of Providence wanted an excuse to go to New York.

Et, by the way, do we hear the Lexington city fathers objecting?

From The Hill

By FRED HILL

Enroute to Cincinnati, Sept. 27—Apparently unconcerned with any warnings that they might face unexpected opposition tonight, the football team, settle back in their seats in the two big buses hired to transport them to their next field of battle, Xavier stadium, and talk of everything but football.

It's warm inside the buses and nobody figures it will be much colder tonight. This is the first time a Kentucky eleven has played a game under the arcs since 1936, which means that none of the present crop of gridlers has played a college tilt after dark . . . but they practiced last night on Transy's lot and are sure that lighting doesn't make much difference.

There is little serious talk . . . Coach Rupp, of basketball fame, banter with the boys. Kirwan is unusually quiet, as is invariably his custom before a game. He seems twice as nervous as his players.

Xavier Stadium, Sept. 27—Crash! Xavier's fighting Musketeers exploded any delusions of grandeur the Wildcats might have had before tonight by granting them a mere two-touchdown victory . . . and that not without a struggle.

The Wildcats weren't weak . . . anybody who has seen them in practice knows that they have a potentially powerful club . . . but they were lax in their playing. They were too sure of an easy win.

Then too the playing conditions undoubtedly hampered them. It was awfully foggy under the klieg lights . . . you could hardly spot the numbers on the players' backs from the press box . . . and for some reason a brown ball was used instead of the usual white one.

Muskies Show Courage
But the lightning alone was not responsible for Kentucky's narrow margin of victory . . . nor was the carelessness of the team. A lot of credit goes to the smaller Xavier squad, who, completely outplayed, refused to throw in the towel till the final bell had rung.

Baldwin-Wallace proved too easy. Xavier put up a fight. The Wildcats should know now that it's going to take a lot of work to live up to pre-season expectations.

They should know that the line will be satisfactory in any league. The Muskies were stopped with a net rushing gain of 11 yards. But, the pass defense is certainly not up to standard, both of the first two opponents completed half of their throws.

So far this seems to be their Achilles heel.

So far this seems to be their Achilles heel.

KITTENS LOSE TO Z SQUAD

Cutchin-Althaus Passes Click

Discouragement and satisfaction were the reactions of Gene Myers, Kitten football coach, and Joe Rupert, Z Club mentor, following Friday's tussle between the Kittens and Z Club on Stoll field.

Coach Myers was discouraged because his Kittens were given a sound 29-7 whipping. Rupert was satisfied because of Phil Cutchin's remarkable passing to Carl Allhouse. Cutchin's passing to Allhouse accounted for two six-pointers for the winners. The first was a 30-yard heave and the final one, a 10-yard fling over the line.

Jack Harris tallied his team's third score with a 40-yard scamper, and Phil Cutchin, bucking the line, added the final touchdown of the afternoon. Nabbing a Kitten behind his own goal, good for a safety, accounted for the Z Club's final two points of the game.

Strenuous drills in the fundamentals will be principal duties of the Kittens this week, Coach Myers announced. Joe Rupert, after scouting Washington and Lee last Saturday, Kentucky's foes this week, will send his charges against the varsity squad with W and L offensive plays for the most part of this week.

Another episode in the weekly series of skirmishes between the Kittens and the Z Club will be re-enacted this Friday afternoon on Stoll field.

student-faculty affairs, conduct safe-driving campaigns and flower shows, and inaugurate new ideas suggested by students.

The forum committee schedules plans book and play reviews, lectures, and panel discussions.

Sports Club Planned
One of the main functions of the sports committee is the weekly sports night, which is conducted in the gym annex in cooperation with the physical education department.

This activity is open to all members of the committee. It is now organizing a new activity, the Outing Club, which will conduct hikes, picnics, sleigh rides, all-day raffles, and a spring camping trip.

Members of the board of directors are Jimmy Cook, president, and chairman of the committee, Buford Hall, art; Lora Barrow, forum; Ann Kirk, music; June Mehne, house; George Terrell, activities; Dave Graham, publicity; Bill Penick, dance; and Bill Nash, sports.

Ben Johnson, second-semester freshman at Lexington, has been temporarily appointed student director, James S. Shropshire, director, announced yesterday.

Besides Director Shropshire, the managing staff consists of Ronald Cooper, assistant managing director, and Miss Rebecca Van Meter, social director.

Any student unable to apply for committee membership at the specified time may leave his application at the Union Information desk.

Haag Will Address Geology Group

William G. Haag, assistant professor of anthropology and archaeology and curator of that department's museum will be the principal speaker at a meeting of Chi chapter of Sigma Gamma Epsilon at 7 p. m., Thursday, in room 307 Natural Sciences building. Professor Haag will discuss "The Status of Early Man in North America" before the geology, mining, and metallurgy fraternity.

Following the address, motion pictures of this summer's geology field trip to Yellowstone national park will be shown. Anyone interested may attend, officers of the fraternity said.

Picnic Planned

The University Bacteriological society will leave the campus at 4:30 p. m. Friday, for a picnic at the Lexington reservoir, according to Doris Ziegler, president of the society.

Kirwan Will Speak

Ab Kirwan, head football coach, will be guest speaker at a luncheon-meeting of the Lexington Kirwan club at 12:15 p. m., today, in Lafayette hotel.

Cats Prep For W-L Generals After Narrow Xavier Victory

Muskies Fight, Lighting Blamed For Low Score

Coach Kirwan's Kentucky Wildcats hit what baseballers might call a slump Friday night as they defeated Xavier university's under-rated, hard-driving little Musketeers by a surprisingly narrow 13-0 victory.

Playing the first Kentucky night game since they tangled with a team from Xavier in 1936, the Wildcats picked to knock off at least four touchdowns against Coach Crowe's outfit, had to rely on two brilliant trips to pay-dirt by two of their backs to gain the margin of victory. James Rices 52 Yards.

Midway in the opening quarter Junie Jones, speedy safety man and signal caller, received one of Chet Mutt's punts on the Xavier 40-yard line. He stepped back, drew his would-be tacklers off balance and proceeded to race through the whole Rhineland crew for the Wildcats first score. His attempt at a conversion was wild.

Dave Zoeller, husky and dependable senior halfback from New Albany turned in the other Kentucky score. Late in the third frame he cut off his own right tackle, traveled about ten yards, then suddenly reversed his field and made contact with his blockers. From then on it was merely a matter of springing the required distance, for his teammates, blocking like Alabama in the Howell-Hunt game, cleared the way every obstacle in his path.

Greatest contribution to the 56-yard touchdown trip was undoubtedly made by Jim Hardin, Zoeller's roommate and for the past eight years his teammate, who made a brilliant, but not a brilliant, play of the last autumn's Xavierie a few yards before the hard-running halfback crossed the goal.

Cats Threaten Often

The Wildcats threatened in several other occasions but each time were thwarted by fumbles or penalties. Twice in the fourth quarter the Allen-to-Combs passing combination almost reaped rewards, and on several occasions the wide-eyed Kentucky pushed the ball into Xavier areas, but on every drive they met the stubborn resistance of a small squad, which, unlike Baldwin-Wallace, refused to admit defeat.

Xavier displayed a fair aerial attack, often enough to cause trouble, but failed to gain through the stout Kentucky line, which never seriously threatened to score.

However, they caused enough trouble to give the Wildcats some quins about the outcome of their next two contests, Washington and Lee and Vanderbilt.

Coaches Report

Kentucky coaches, who made the trip to Nashville Saturday to see the two team vie, claim that both are stronger than Coach Crowe's cohorts.

Vanderbilt, displaying their strength for the first time this season, used a potent "A" eleven to trample the Virginia Generals 19-0.

The Blue meets Washington and Lee here on Stoll field Saturday in the eighteenth meeting of a 41-year old rivalry. Kentucky has scored eight wins, W and L has seven, and there have been two ties.

Despite their loss to Vandy, the Kentucky coaches were enough impressed by the potentialities of the Lexington, Va., team not to underestimate them. They will follow the same practice routine against them as they will against the aerial minded Commodores who will meet the Wildcats in Nashville a week later.

Kentucky's meeting with W and L brings into play one of the oldest rivalries in southern football history. And intensity of the rivalry was not lessened in 1938 when the first of Kentucky's Kirwan-coached eleven received a 9-0 battering at the hands of the Generals.
