Gov. panel seeks repeal of pass law

By TOM BALDWIN
Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A government panel yesterday proposed repeal of the hated "pass laws" that keep South Africa's blacks out of white areas — the second major change in the apartheid system announced in two days.

Even whites who oppose the government hailed the step.

"This is the beginning of the end of apartheid," said Sheena Duncan, president of the Black Sash women's movement, which opposes the nation's system of racial segregation. "I really do think it means something. They are not playing around with words this time."

Helen Suzman, an anti-apartheid member of Parliament, said, "This is probably the most important step forward in 30 years."

A primary effect will be that families now restricted to their tribal homelands could join the men working in the cities, preventing the breakup of families.

On Wednesday, President P.W. Botha told a congress of his National Party that the government was giving up its policy that blacks eventually have to become citizens of black homelands and relinquish citizenship in South Africa.

Blacks, however, still will have political rights only in the homeland, and still will not be able to vote in South Africa.

Police reported rioting near Cape Town, where they said they shot and killed three black men, and in Soweto, outside Johannesburg, where a 30-year-old white school teacher and 10 black students suffered shotgun wounds after police fired on "unruly" students.

Residents of Soweto's White City Jabavu neighborhood said police arrested as many as 600 students around Hlegwile High School, holding an undetermined number of them in Diepkloof Prison under state-of-emergency regulations.

The residents said students under age 12 were freed. The neighborhood has seen the worst of violence since anti-apartheid violence began more than a year ago.

Merchants, music at Sunday fair aid scholarship funds

Fun and fund-raising main features of '85 Free For All, organizer says

By BETH LAWSON
Contributing Writer

Students can watch UK organization leaders wrestle in paint for prizes and listen to three local bands during the campuswide '85 Free For All party Sunday.

About 5,000 students and 19 local merchants are expected to gather from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Stoll Field for an afternoon of music, games, fun and fund-raising.

"The main purpose is to have a lot of fun and raise money for the (academic excellence) scholarship fund at the same time," said Ben Clifford, chairman of the Collegians for Academic Excellence.

"For us, it's a merchant's fair and an outdoor party — a way to welcome students back to school," said Sue Silver, promotions director of WKQQ-FM. "We also consider it a fund-raiser."

WKQQ co-sponsors the event along with Student Activities Board, Student Government Association and Collegians for Academic Excellence.

"It's the merchants' way to get on campus and present themselves to students," said David Nickell, SAB vice president.

About 19 local merchants will set up booths to pass out freebies. To participate in the Free For All, each merchant had to contribute $200 to the Academic Excellence Fund for scholarships. Last year about $5,300 was made, most of which went toward the scholarship fund, and this year's goal is $6,000 or more.

Coupons will be available from such merchants as Just Sweats, One Hour Photo, Hardee's and G.D. Rulzy's. The Brass A Saloon and 2001/VIP will distribute free cover charge passes. Commonwealth Plasma will offer free blood pressure checks. Slipped Disc Records will distribute student discount cards and the Lexington Dive Shop will provide a wind surfing demonstration.

Radio Cafe (reggae), The Attitudes (mainstream rock 'n' roll) and Charlie's Garage (heavier rock 'n' roll) will provide music. At one time or another, all three local bands have been finalists in '86 Rock Double Q's Decent Exposure Contest. Performances begin at 11:30 a.m.

Scheduled events for the day include a snow drive, dunking booth and pizza-eating contest sponsored by Domino's Pizza. Students must register and pay a nominal fee to participate in these events.

Game tomorrow makes stadium public parking

Staff reports

UK students that usually park their cars behind Commonwealth Stadium will be forced to move them by 9 a.m. Saturday. The lot will be needed to accommodate the home football game against Bowling Green.

According to the campus police, the stadium lots must be cleared prior to 9 a.m. on all days of home football games. Vehicles left after this time will be towed at the owner's expense.

Students may relocate their cars to parking structures 1, 2, or any A or B parking lot after 4:30 p.m. Friday. The B3 parking control will be discontinued three hours before and three hours after the game, allowing anyone to park in the lot.

With hopes of warning students of the policy, police and the parking departments will place warnings on cars several days before each game.

Workshops offer psychic scoop about tarot cards, drawing

By KAREN MILLER
Staff Writer

If you've ever been curious about psychic ability or the supernatural, then you may get the opportunity to learn more this weekend.

Workshops on tarot cards and psychic art will be held simultaneously from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. tomorrow by Spiraling Universe Inc., the sponsor of the workshops.

Led by Patti Hutt, a psychic from New Albany, Ind., the psychic art workshop is designed to help the individual express his feelings through art and help him meet his guiding force by having a picture drawn of it.

"The spirit force which will be drawn for the person always holds a great deal of meaning and attachment to the person. It's an entity that would be helping the person all their life," said Wanda Ellington,

"Most people usually have a lot of psychic talent but don't know what to do with it."

Wanda Ellington,

owner and operator of Spiraling Universe, 250 Plaza Drive.

owner and operator of Spiraling Universe, 250 Plaza Drive.

Rose Wagers, another psychic from New Albany, will conduct the tarot workshop. It is designed to help people learn how to use tarot cards. By reading the cards a psychic can give people useful information about their lives.

"The class is designed to give beginners an awareness of tarot," Wagers said. "They will learn how to use the tarot for their own self-use or to help others and will be able to make a good basic attempt at a tarot reading."

Ellington described tarot as a stepping stone to helping people become confident in their psychic abilities.

"Most people usually have a lot of psychic talent but don't know what to do with it. They can, however, develop it so that they're in control of it, instead of it in control of them," Ellington said.

Those interested in attending either of the workshops or having a private reading done afterwards can call Spiraling Universe at 276-0031. The cost will be $30 if pre-registered and $35 otherwise.

United Way lunch begins fund-raising

By MELISSA BELL
Staff Writer

The United Way of the Bluegrass kicked off its annual fund drive yesterday, hoping to raise $4,081,036, 10 percent more than last year's total.

More than 600 solicitors, coordinators and volunteers attended the kickoff luncheon, funded by the United Way and UK, held at the Student Center ballroom. This year's luncheon theme was "UK and United Way — Winners Together."

UK is second only to the International Business Machines Corp. in contributions to the United Way. The University has contributed more than $1 million over the past 12 years, said L. Reed Polk, co-chairman of the UK United Way Campaign.

This year, UK's campus campaign seeks to raise $246,874, a 5 percent increase over last year's $235,118. Polk said.

UK President Otis A. Singletary said he was confident the University and the United Way would reach their goals.

"We believe in it and that's why I think we've done very well over these years."

Robert "Bob" Sloan, United Way of the Bluegrass campaign chairman, opens the fund-raising organization's luncheon yesterday in the Student Center ballroom.

Singletary received an award from United Way President Lynwood Schrader for his sponsorship of the United Way campaign at UK for the past 12 years.

University employees were also recognized for their contributions. "The University's role over the past 12 years has been one of leadership," said Robert "Bob"

Sloan, general campaign chairman. There have been over 400 University employee volunteers each year, he said.

The United Way supports 144 human service agencies in Fayette, Anderson, Bourbon, Clark, Jessamine, Madison, Montgomery and Scott Counties.

UK band says it gets 'no respect'

By STACEY O'CONNOR
Contributing Writer

The UK football season opens tomorrow, filling Commonwealth Stadium with cheering fans and fancy footwork. Football in the fall is UK's favorite sport.

But people caught waiting in half-time bathroom and concession lines will miss some of the most intricate footwork of the day. Lively cheers, glamor, bright lights and admiration abound for the Wildcats — but for the UK Marching Band?

Dedicated members of the marching band could be supporting actors in a Rodney Dangerfield film.

"Our band gets no respect, (the fans) don't even clap at the ball games," said trumpet player Steve Toney, a computer science senior. "Even the Lexington Herald-Leader has printed editorials that cut down our music — no positive comment at all."

"I don't think another SEC (Southeastern Conference) school could come close to the caliber of the UK Marching Band," he said. "At UK the students are just used to us, even nubs."

By the time most students arrive on campus, the band has already spent a week practicing in the hot sun nine hours each day.

Reagan's admission disappoints loyal young fan

Dear Mr. President, Say it isn't so. I never thought I'd live to see the day when one of my heroes — right up there with Johnny Rambo — would betray the trust I had in him. But now, you leave me high and dry.

I always thought you were a with-it, happening dude. I mean, you used to be a movie star. You ride horses and chop wood. Heck, you even like the Beach Boys, as I recall. Lord knows, if the demographics of my age group would have permitted it, I probably would have voted for you last November.

But then, last Monday, you tell me I can't trust you.

Contributing COLUMNIST

"Don't let me get away with it," you say. "Check me out, but check everybody else out. Don't just take it for granted because you read it someplace or because someone stood up in a lecture course and told you from a lecture platform. Check it out."

Thanks a lot. You're starting to sound like one of my professors.

I can't believe you'd pull this kind of stunt, not after all the faith I've put in you. When everybody was saying it was foolish to have Marines dying to keep a very warlike peace in Lebanon a couple years back, I knew we were there for some reason. I trusted you.

When you said economic sanctions against South Africa were a bad idea last month, I believed you. Now that you say they're a good idea, I believe you.

I even believe you about this "Star Wars" thing. Never mind that a bunch of cynical, unimaginative physicists have called it unworkable. I believe in it. After all, they laughed at Kennedy when he said we'd put a man on the moon, remember? (I think you show the same sort of courageous idealism about putting a sophisticated weapon system into orbit.) You know, I even believed you when you talked about that doggone "evil empire," the nasty old Soviet Union. I gotta tell you, you had me in tears with that terrific joke about outlawing the Soviets and dropping bombs on them. (I still laugh when I think about it. It keeps me from getting depressed about student financial aid cutbacks.)

I guess that's why I find it so ridiculous that you're telling me — and other college students across this great land of ours — not to believe everything you say. Sure, some people are saying that you really meant we shouldn't believe everything Mikhail S. Gorbachev says.

No sweat, dude. I don't even read Time magazine.

So please, Mr. President, take it back. Say something like, "Don't trust the Russkies, but gobble up my every word like the gospel." I'll feel better.

You see, I, for one, prefer to trust you. It's comforting to think of a trustworthy guy such as yourself who's trying to reach out "in the cause of a safer world," like you said.

I can believe you about that, can't I?

Your pal,
John Q. Student.

WEEKEND CINEMA

Back To The Future — Michael J. Fox, Christopher Lloyd and a silver DeLorean keep this summer smash cruising steadily along. Rated PG. (Southpark: 2:30, 4:30, 7:30, 9:30, 11:55 Friday and Saturday. Also Northpark: 2:30, 4:30, 7:30, 9:30, 11:55 Friday and Saturday.)
Cocoon — Aliens offer eternal youth to the people of a small Florida retirement community. Stars Steve Guttenberg ("Police Academy") and Don Ameche ("Trading Places"). Rated PG-13. (Southpark: 2:30, 4:30, 7:35, 9:45, 11:55 Friday and Saturday.)
Compromising Positions — This comedy stars Susan Sarandon ("Rocky Horror") as a paranoid woman who becomes concerned over the disappearance of her dentist. Rated R. (Southpark: 2:10, 4:40, 7:50, 9:40, 11:30 Friday and Saturday.)
Fright Night — Jerry Dandrige the Vampire is back! This surprisingly good summer hit is guaranteed to provide minutes of good fun. Stars Roddy McDowall ("Planet of the Apes") and Chris Sarandon ("Dog Day Afternoon"). Rated R. (Fayette Mall: 1:15, 3:15, 5:15, 7:15, 9:30.)
Ghostbusters — Bill Murray, Dan Aykroyd and Harold Ramis return as those lovable spook-chasers. Also stars Sigourney Weaver ("Alien") and Rick Moranis ("Strange Brew"). Rated PG. (Northpark: 2:30, 4:40, 7:40, 9:40, 11:40 Friday and Saturday. Also Fayette Mall: 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:30, 9:45.)
Gremlins — Like 'em or not, Gizmo and the rest of the little critters are back in an effort to boost Steven Spielberg's profit margin. Fire up the microwaves! Rated PG. (Northpark: 2:25, 4:50, 7:55, 9:55, 11:55 Friday and Saturday.)
The Mack — Yes, folks, Richard Pryor's in the credits. If he looks 12 years it's because the movie was released in 1973. Violent, exploitive melodrama isn't worth the price of the ticket. Rated R. (Northpark and Crossroads: 2:35, 5:30, 8:10, midnight Friday and Saturday.)
Pee Wee's Big Adventure — This idiot just refuses to go away. Unless you're a major Pee Wee Herman fan, don't even waste your time. Rated PG. (Lexington Mall: 2:20, 4:20, 7:35, 9:35, 11:35 Friday and Saturday.)
Real Genius — Val Kilmer ("Top Secret") and newcomer Gabe Jarrett are cast as a couple of cut-up collegians concentrating on causing a quantity of capricious capers. Rated PG. (Crossroads: 2:30, 5:15, 7:30, 9:40, midnight Friday and Saturday.)
St. Elmo's Fire — Critics have been arguing about the merits of this film all summer, so be warned. Stars Emilio Estevez ("Repo Man"), Alley Sheedy ("Breakfast Club"), Rob Lowe ("Oxford Blues"). Rated R. (Chevy Chase: 5:30, 7:45, 9:55.)
Silverado — A star-studded cast, including Kevin Kline, Scott Glenn, Rosanna Arquette, John Clee, Brian Dennehy, Academy Award-winner Lind Hunt and Jeff Goldblum. One of the best films of the summer. Rated R. (Turlington Mall: 2:30, 7:30.)
Summer Rental — John Candy, in his third comedy of the year ("Brewster's Millions," "Volunteers"), playing a peeped air-traffic controller who decides to take his family on a much-needed vacation. Rated PG. (Fayette Mall: 1:45, 3:45, 5:45, 7:45, 10.)
Teen Wolf — Michael J. Fox, apparently one of the summer's hottest new stars, lacks bite in the follow-up to "Back to the Future," but that's no surprise. Rated PG. (Northpark: 2:10, 3:55, 5:40, 7:35, 9:35, 11:35 Friday and Saturday. Also Turlington Mall: 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:30 and 9:30.)
Volunteers — John Candy and Tom Hanks repeat their roles in "Splash," and are just as funny. An amusing little flick. Rated R. (Southpark: 2:15, 4:30, 7:45, 9:45, 11:40 Friday and Saturday.)
Warrior of the Winds — An indescribable film, so fight the urge to list this one slow by. Rated PG. (Southpark and Northpark: 2:30, 5:40, 7:40, 9:35, 11:25 Friday and Saturday.)
Weird Science — TV critics Siskel and Ebert almost got into a fistfight over this one, so judge for yourself. Stars Anthony Michael Hall ("Sixteen Candles") and Kelly LeBrock ("The Woman in Red"). Rated PG-13. (Southpark: 2:25, 4:25, 7:45, 9:40, 11:30 Friday and Saturday.)
Year of the Dragon — Mere words cannot describe how bad this movie is, but dreadful and appalling come pretty close. Rated R. (Lexington Mall: 2:10, 4:40, 7:20, 9:50, 12:05 Friday and Saturday.)

At the Kentucky Theater this weekend: — Tonight — 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. "Variety — Adults Only" (X-rated); 9:30 p.m. "Prizzi's Honor"; midnight "Warner Bros. — The Best of Looney Tunes." Tomorrow — 1 p.m. "Prizzi's Honor"; 3:15 p.m. "Camille"; 5:15 p.m. "The Best of Looney Tunes"; 7:30 p.m. "Prizzi's Honor"; 9:45 p.m. "Witness"; midnight "Desperately Seeking Susan." Sunday — 1 p.m. "Looney Tunes"; 3:15 p.m. "Desperately Seeking Susan"; 5:15 p.m. "Prizzi's Honor"; 7:30 p.m. "Camille"; 9:30 p.m. "Variety (X-rated)."

etc. M:GO.

'Non-generic' club opens area

By KAKIE URCH
Staff Writer

"Now there is no competition. There isn't. This is the only place to play."
That's partner/manager Bradley Harrison Picklesimer's comment about the effect of the recently completed expansion of the Cafe LMNOP nightclub on the local live music scene.

LMNOP, located on Main Street, is a club which presents original local and regional (and with the expansion, national) music in a most original atmosphere. And now it has increased the capacity of its "back room" dance area from 200 to 400 people.
The club closed the back room in early August for renovation. Former storage areas and dressing rooms are now wide-open dance spaces, and what was once the stage is now the platform for a sound booth.

The new stage is 28 by 16 feet, making it the largest nightclub stage in Lexington. The back room itself now boasts an area of 1,500 square feet.

Picklesimer said, "I want to give people a chance to see larger-name acts in a more intimate atmosphere," and said he plans to bring the Fleshtones to Lexington on Oct. 2.

In addition, he also hopes to book the Athens, Ga. group Love Tractor and drag queen Divine. "She'll look great on that stage," he said.
LMNOP also plans to sponsor special evenings and contests. "An Evening Of Big Hair" will be a hairdo contest, and "Prom Night" will enact what Picklesimer calls "a real high school prom."

Picklesimer also is interested in booking groups like Dead or Alive, along with the expected local and regional bands.
Picklesimer said he'd prefer to distribute tickets to these shows at Cut Corner Records, but won't put tickets in the malls because "I'm scared of malls... Now everybody's New Wave For The Weekend. Anything that becomes popular and merchandised is ruined."

Picklesimer, who took over the management of LMNOP in November, earned local fame for his now-defunct Club Au Go Go, which also presented alternative music.
Picklesimer's experiences in his own band added to his philosophy of management for LMNOP. "People who come in here to play are artists and performers, and I treat them that way," he said. "They get treated with respect. They get anything they want, all the free beer they want after 9 p.m. Bands flip over this place."

"This club is not generic. I don't want to limit anybody," Picklesimer said. "Opening up this back room doesn't mean that I'm going to raise every single drink price and raise the cover charge, because then you limit a lot of people who are creative and interesting people who want to come out to clubs and listen to music."

"I've been in the best of clubs — Area, The Palladium, Lighthouse — and other than the fact that people sunk billions of dollars into them, those places are very impersonal and generic. Even the hall room at UK, it's just four walls."

"There's a lot of art here, and a lot to look at. I've got heavy metal bands coming in here, and country and western and reggae and rap and new wave. I'm not going to limit myself to any one thing. I don't have to," he said.

"It's really hard to work for an atmosphere where everybody's going to walk in and feel comfortable, from bikers to drag queens to punks to frat kids," Picklesimer explained, and "making money" is not the only reason he owns a bar.

"I plan on keeping the music here quality. I plan on keeping the people here treated here quality. The room sounds good. It's always chancy when you rip it out and open it up."

Cafe LMNOP may become more crowded due to its increased capacity and national bookings, but with Bradley Harrison Picklesimer in charge, it will probably never become generic enough to be popular and merchandised.

Radio Cafe will perform Sunday at the Free For All.

Local band Radio Cafe blends musical sounds

By LYN CARLISLE
Assistant Arts Editor

Radio Cafe's recipe: Mix nostalgic '60s psychedelic pop with folk-style vocals (firmly packed), bring to a boil and then generously blend in good old fashioned rock 'n' roll. Serves: one large, rambunctious crowd, eager for action.

Radio Cafe, a local band that often plays at bars around town, will perform their interesting and original blend of styles during the Free For All this Sunday afternoon.

The band recently released a three song E.P. — "First World" — which has been receiving considerable airplay. Having just finished a successful Southern tour, they're headed for the studio for their first full-length album.

They also performed "Yardbirds" on a compilation album, released on Lexington's own SP! record label. The just-released album features regional bands and is available at several Lexington record stores.

Lead singer Kiya Heartwood's acoustic guitar adds an interesting blend with Sam Gillispie's electric. Together, they write most of the band's upbeat tunes.

Growing up in Kentucky, Gillispie has survived many bands, absorbing styles until finally developing his soul/blues/country sound.

A native New Yorker, bass player Tom Thompson went to Georgetown College, where he met Gillispie over 10 years ago. Drummer Kopana Terry — from West Liberty, Ky. — is the newest member to bring her original sound to the group.

Also performing at Free For All will be two other local bands: The Attitudes, featuring some UK students, and Charlie's Garage.

Stopping Falcon quarterback key in Wildcat season opener

By WILLIE HIATT
Sports Editor

Forget that UK won the last two season openers it played against Mid-American conference teams. Neither had Bowling Green's Brian McClure in its arsenal.

As Bowling Green's record-chasing quarterback, McClure threw for more yards after three years of college than any player ever and, as a senior this year, is in range of Doug Flutie's NCAA record of 10,579 career passing yards.

Wildcat defensive end Steve Mazza even had to draw comparisons for the 6-foot-6 quarterback from another sport. "Compare him to somebody that's 6-foot-6, 225, maybe . . . Bennett," he said, likening the quarterback to UK basketball player Winston Bennett. "That's a big boy, Winston Bennett."

That's a good quarterback, Brian McClure, who flings the 1-0 Falcons at the Wildcats in tomorrow's 1:30 p.m. game at Commonwealth Stadium. Kentucky won the only two meetings between the two schools (20-14 in '79 and 21-20 in '80).

In Bowling Green's 31-6 win over Ball State on the road a week ago, Falcon coach Denny Stolz described McClure's passing game as "average." He connected on 15 of 30 passes for 217 yards, giving him a career total of 7,823.

J. TIM HAYS/Kent Graphics

"I don't think you ever feel comfortable with your secondary when you are playing people like McClure," Coach Jerry Claiborne said of his team's pass defense.

Still, McClure's statistics place all eyes on UK's secondary, which was ranked 10th in the Southeastern Conference a year ago. Claiborne, who expects Bowling Green to work out of the shotgun-formation and no-huddle offense to establish its passing game, had the Wildcat's working on pass rushing and disguising their coverage this week.

"They say it is hard to throw when you are flat on your back," Claiborne said. "Pass rush is a must in pass defense. But you can't rush them every play. We hope to do a good job mixing it up so we can take them by surprise."

McClure hardly stands alone in the backfield, however.

Last season, tailback Bernard White led the Falcons in receptions (56 for 400 yards) and rushed for 1,086 yards, becoming only the third Division I-A player to catch 50 passes and rush for 1,000 yards in the same season. Also, wide receiver Stan Hunter caught 63 passes for 1,107 last season.

Against Ball State, White carried the ball 12 times for 67 yards and one touchdown and Hunter caught seven passes for 102 yards.

Claiborne believes that by having already played a game, Bowling Green may have had a chance to "iron out" some of its mistakes. He was hardly pleased with Kentucky's play in last weekend's scrimmage, saying that the team lacked enthusiasm.

"The mistakes we made last Saturday didn't sink in as much as if we had been playing somebody that was better competition than our jayvee," Claiborne said.

Bowling Green, on the other hand, capitalized on Ball State's mistakes, scoring 24 points with the defense. Couple that with an offense that includes McClure and the Falcon's point-scoring ability could be great.

"It gives me more incentive to do the best I can Saturday," Mazza said. "Knowing that if I could have one of my better games against a Heisman candidate, it would really mean a lot to me."

TV program films backward jogger

By BRETT HIATT
Staff Writer

For Ron Austin, running backwards keeps him a step ahead of the competition.

A Lexington resident, Austin is the first person to seriously test the effects of running backwards or what he calls "Retro Training."

Austin, who has run a backwards mile in 6 minutes, 23 seconds — 16 seconds shy of the world record — was the feature of a story filmed by "PM Magazine" yesterday. The feature-story television program was on campus to film his peculiar training techniques.

Retro Training is a balancing of muscle groups, like those found in the groin and calf area, that don't normally receive adequate attention in training.

His Retro Training technique is being tested at Wenner-Gren Laboratory. Austin has been teaming with physical education professor Rob Shapiro, physical therapy professor Joe Threlkeld, Dr. Charles Knapp, and Dr. David Brown.

"We're at a very preliminary stage right now," Shapiro said. "We're looking at what he (Austin) does to see the differences and what they are."

Shapiro said Retro Training "can be an effective tool for someone who's injured." The movement doesn't put as much stress on some parts of the leg as forward running does, he said.

Austin's training style has been written up in the Lexington Herald-Leader, Chicago Tribune and Sport magazine.

"People are starting to realize that this isn't circus stuff, but serious business," Austin said.

He tested Retro Training on the UK football team. According to a survey taken from 27 players, 23 felt flexibility and endurance in their legs and overall balance improved.

Anne DeRock, "PM Magazine" field producer, said the segment will air sometime in October or November.

Intelligent, sensitive newsroom management aim of seminar

By TIM JOHNSON
Senior Staff Writer

At a seminar on campus today, area newspaper editors hope to improve their management skills, but the director of the School of Journalism has another idea.

Director Edmund Lambeth said the program will focus on "practical research of management," as well as "possibly provide UK with some insight for a (management) course or develop modules for other existing courses."

The seminar should give editors a "better understanding for the problems and opportunities" that have been neglected in the past.

"Within the past five years, American newspaper management has paid increased attention to the relationship between management ability and style and the quality of the news product," Lambeth said. "One expression of this trend is increased attention on how to manage newsrooms intelligently and sensitively."

The seminar, which is the first of its kind, was scheduled to begin at 8:30 a.m. on the 18th floor of the Patterson Office Tower. The seminar, which will be conducted by Paul Fohlman, director of management institutes at the University of Chicago's Office of Continuing Education, will focus on managerial skills in contrast to journalistic skills.

William Burleigh, vice president and general editor of Scripps/Howard Newspaper, began the seminar last night by speaking to about 20 editors at a dinner at the Campbell House Inn.

Burleigh stressed that the management of people was the most important job for an editor. "The development of other people's skills is what your job is all about. That's not something you'll learn by reading a handbook or attending a workshop. It's something you'll go on learning for the rest of your career."

The editors who were planning on attending the seminar were anxious to learn the aspects of newsroom management.

Judy Clabes, editor of The Kentucky Post, said that management is something "they don't teach in journalism school. You just have to learn it on the job, in the worst way."

"I just hope that this seminar answers the question of 'How do I do a better job of hiring, motivation and developing skills in employees.'"

"The band is talented — extremely — and we draw students from all over the place," said assistant drum major Jean Kloecker, a music soph-

Band performances this year will include an Oz/Wiz show with renditions of "Somewhere over the Rainbow" and "Ease on Down the Road."

The band is also practicing a "spectacular show for the falls" — a patriotic show featuring "Stars and Stripes Forever," Toney said. Also they will perform a potpourri of familiar movie themes and popular tunes of the year.

Polio survivors desire political role

By ANN ROGERS
Contributing Writer

The Ashland chapter of the Polio Survivors Organization will hold an open house from 1 to 4 p.m. today in 119 Student Center. Organizational meetings will follow at 5:30 for dues-paying members of the group.

PSO was formed in May 1985 to offer help and support for people suffering from recurrences of polio symptoms, said Ron Weber, a member of the group. This condition, known as post-polio muscular atrophy, causes its victims to suffer from fatigue, pains in joints, heart flutter and loss or weakening of arms and legs affected by polio.

In addition to being a support group, PSO hopes to actively inform doctors of this little-known problem. Because polio has become a disease of the past, little attention is given to it.

"We are more of an activist group. We intend to become politically active," said Rita Whitt, founder and president of the organization. "It is important for us to be much more than a support group, although we provide that service. We would love to go national in a year."

"I did research at the Medical Center and did not find one thing on post-polio," Weber said. "Doctors need to be more aware of its existence."

The open house will attempt to inform people of the problem, provide literature, and discuss the possibility of organizing chapters in Lexington and Louisville.

Call him Heisman

By JOHN JURY
Assistant Sports Editor

They're already calling him "Heisman."

Mark Logan, the heir apparent to UK's primary offensive threat spot vacated by New York Giant George Adams, has started building a name for himself.

His offensive line has handed the nickname to him as a possible prelude to the postseason award, and it's the type of alias Logan enjoys.

"It gets me going," he said. "It's like my name's not Mark anymore. I'm out on the field, and they say, 'Let's go, Heisman. You're goin' to win the Heisman.'"

And for a guy who's supposed to fill the cleats of the record-setting Adams, Logan doesn't worry when he's compared to the NFL'er.

"If I was compared to Tony Dorsett or Walter Peyton, it might be different," Logan said. "But I grew up with George. We've played ball since I was in the seventh grade, except when we went to high school. He went to Lafayette and I went to Bryan Station. But to be compared with George, that's a great honor because he's done some great things."

Wildcat Coach Jerry Claiborne said: "I think Mark Logan has the physical capabilities to be the same type of runner. Mark has just got to stay healthy and play more plays than last year."

Adams set UK records last year for most all-purpose yardage (1,684 yards) and scoring (84 points on 14 touchdowns). He was also the leading receiver (33 catches for 330 yards) and rusher (1,085 yards) for the Wildcats.

"Mark Logan is the type of player who can come in and fill George Adams' shoes," Claiborne said, "and I'm not trying to put pressure on him. He can be an outstanding player, but he has to improve on his pass-catching abilities."

Logan caught only 11 passes last year, good for seventh on the team.

Mark Logan dashes to a 61-yard touchdown reception in the North Texas State game last year. Logan will have to fill some big shoes to replace former UK star George Adams.

One of his grabs was a 61-yard touchdown against North Texas State. He also caught a 27-yard TD in the Hall of Fame Bowl. But Logan admits that catching passes is not his forte.

"That was one of my weakest parts, catching the ball," he said. "But I've really worked on it. (The coaches) like to get us running backs one-on-one with the linebackers, and 99 percent we should win. I'm really confident in my catching."

The 5-11 junior is coming off his best performance in his collegiate career — most valuable player honors in the Hall of Fame Bowl win against Wisconsin.

He touched the ball only eight times, but he rang up 138 yards in total offense and two touchdowns. He left with two bowl records, a 32-yard kickoff return average, including a 51-yarder.

Logan came to Kentucky in 1983 after earning All-State accolades at Lexington's Bryan Station High School. During his senior year, he rushed for 1,587 yards and was voted as the best running back in the state.

Logan saw only spot duty in his freshman year for the Cats, playing in seven games. He carried the ball 24 times and gained 108 yards. And with his blazing speed (4.4 in the 40-yard dash), Claiborne inserted him as a kick returner. He returned three that year, including a long run of 28 yards.

His sophomore year meant more playing time. Sharing the tailback position with freshman sensation Mark Higgs, Logan gained 400 yards last year, third place on the team behind Adams and Higgs.

But he began touching the ball more returning kicks and was among the nation's best in that department. His 26.2 average ranked sixth in the country and first in the SEC in kickoff returns.

"I try each year to set goals," Logan said. "And my goal this year is to lead the nation in kickoff returns."

He and his roommate, junior Cornell Burbage, who also serves as wide receiver and punt returner, have set a dual goal: Burbage leading the nation in punt returns and Logan in kickoff returns.

This year the two will be waiting on the goal line together to receive kickoffs. "I'm glad we're working together now," Logan said. "When two people have played together for so long, they know how to communicate. I know what he's going to do and he knows what I'm going to do."

And Logan is sure of what he is going to do this year — get that ball and run hard.

He also has the luxury of running behind an offensive line that has 11 years of varsity experience under its belt, the most-tested linemen UK has had in many years.

"That's a big asset for us right now to have the experience on the offensive line," Logan said. "They really look good right now. They pat me on my back. They have confidence in me, which makes me feel good. If they have confidence in me, they're going to be good blockers for me."

After Adams gained more than 1,000 yards last year, he treated his linemen to a steak dinner. Logan says as long as he stays healthy and the guys keep patting him on the back and picking him up, he'll give them the same treatment if he gains 1,000.

And so what if "Heisman" is not among the top candidates to win the coveted trophy, Logan just smiles wide, shrugs his shoulders and says, "It's not where you start, it's where you finish."

With this senior class, it's time to forget 0-10-1

The 0-10-1 record of the 1982 Kentucky team is more than just another season in UK's football history — it's become a landmark.

The freshmen on that 0-10-1 team are seniors on the one which takes the field against Bowling Green tomorrow. As sophomores, they were part of the team which made the second-biggest turnaround in National Collegiate Athletic Association history with a 6-5-1 record in 1983, and were juniors on the sparkling 9-3 Hall of Fame Bowl champion team last year.

The Recovery, which took place over the collegiate life of these seniors, was nothing short of a miracle. These same Wildcats given up for dead only three years ago were part of the restoration of Kentucky football.

"During the 0-10-1 season, we went out and we tried to win, and we tried to win, and we tried," senior fullback Chris Derry said about his freshman season.

Willie HIATT

"But now we go out and expect to win. It went from 'tried' to 'expect.' We went from what we couldn't do to what we could do. It's done a 180-degree turnaround."

But we shouldn't forget how instrumental one Jerry Claiborne was. He's the one behind it all, the man who tightened a loosely run organization into one of the cleanest-shaven programs in college football. Now, thousands of Kentucky fans across the state practically worship the water he walks on.

Claiborne has probably best described the factors involved in transforming a football team from a cellar team to a league competitor.

"It's a day-by-day process," Claiborne said. "We've got to get our players to realize their potential and to work hard enough to play better than their potential."

"They've got to be disciplined; they've got to be strong in character; they've got to use visualization; they've got to use everything. You could almost write a book on it."

Truth is, the media in these parts practically have written a book on it.

And in this lies the problem.

The Recovery has not only launched a thousand stories about the turnaround of UK football, it has provided every sportswriter and sportscaster with an easy angle where there otherwise might not have been one.

When all else fails, revert to The Recovery.

It seems to me it's about time the media stopped beating a dead record, in this case, 0-10-1. And what better time to stop the beating than with this very column on the eve of the 1985 season?

This hardly diminishes the impact of The Recovery. Lord knows we should never forget 0-10-1, lest we be condemned to repeat it. However, now is the time for a new landmark in the history of Kentucky football.

It seems only fair to let the seniors leave the UK program after this season with the satisfaction that they not only helped restore football to the Bluegrass, but that they helped make it a Southeastern Conference mainstay.

Two straight Hall of Fame Bowl trips, with one victory, proves that 0-10-1 is deep in UK's past and that The Recovery has officially ended. So instead of evoking 0-10-1 every time the media need copy, it's time they dwell on the fact that UK football hasn't only recovered, it's now at a competitive level in the SEC.

JERRY CLAIBORNE

Secondary may come to Cats' defense this season

Ranked 10th in SEC in pass defense last year, defensive backs have a mission to 'instill fear' in '85

By BRETT HAIT
Staff Writer

Warning: Entering the UK secondary may be hazardous to your health.

The secondary this season should rank as one of the team's strong points, despite the loss of All-Southeastern Conference safety Paul Calhoun. And they're planning to use Rambo-style tactics to get the job done.

In the wide-tackle six defense that UK employs, three defensive backs are used — Maurice Douglass and Tony Mayes at cornerbacks and Russell Hairston at safety as starters.

"This is a good group of hitters," said defensive back coach Chip Garber. "If you let those receivers roam around there and just concentrate on catching a pass, then you're going to get beat. It's important to try to intimidate receivers."

As hard-hitting and intimidating as they may try to be, one statistic still lingers for the defensive backs: the Wildcats finished 10th — dead last — in the SEC last season in pass defense.

"They were a little embarrassed and their pride was hurt last year by being 10th in the conference," Garber said. "But I think we'll be a better secondary this year."

Douglass, a 5-foot-11, 202-pound senior, transferred to UK from Coffeyville (Kan.) Community College in 1984, where he was first-team Grid Wire All-American, leading the Ravens to the national championship.

He started the last nine games of the '84 season. He intercepted two passes last season and figures to spearhead the hard-hitting in the secondary.

"Maurice Douglass will hit anything that moves," Garber said, "and some things that don't move."

"I try to instill as much fear into my opponents' heart as I can on each hit," Douglass said. "So they won't want to go for the ball the next time."

Although Douglass is a big-reputation hitter, Mayes doesn't figure to get cheated on aggressiveness, either. Mayes originally came to UK as a quarterback from Paintsville High School but was switched to defensive back last spring.

In his first season as a defensive back, the 6-1, 192-pounder intercepted four passes. After spring practice this year, he won the "Big Stick" Award, given to the player who delivers the most authoritative hits in spring drills.

"If receivers catch a couple passes on us, and we come up and hit them real hard, they're going to be looking to be hit the next time they catch the ball," Mayes said. "They might be a little wary and not catch the ball sometimes."

Hairston, who stands tall in the middle at 6-foot-4, steps into the safety spot vacated by Calhoun. Although he's never been a starter like Douglass and Mayes, Hairston has seen a lot of playing time the past two seasons and was UK's ninth leading tackler a year ago. He, too, figures to get into the intimidation act.

"We're trying to get them (receivers) to where they don't even want to come down field," he said.

Depth in the secondary, Garber admits, is "probably the thing that concerns me the most. I've been pleased with the way (the backups) have come along, but it's a whole different ball game when you're out in front of 58,000 people."

Ron Mack, a redshirted freshman, Carmichael Caldwell, a senior with two years of varsity experience, and Gary Sexton, another experienced senior, figure to be the primary backups.

Two other redshirted freshmen, David Johnson and Ray Gover, are expected to see action this year.

As a team last season, UK intercepted 18 passes.

Garber wants this year to be different. "We've set a goal," he said. "We definitely want to get more than 18 interceptions. That's our job. We've got to stop the passing game."

He also said the team record for interceptions (28 by Bear Bryant's 1949 club) is not out of reach.

According to Garber and the players, this year's secondary has more speed, more experience and more aggressiveness than the 1984 team.

"We've got more experience this year than we've had in the past," Garber said. "All have super ability, but now they've got to take that ability and turn it into something on the football field."

Quarterback Bill Ransdell takes a snap in the QB, Ransdell refuses to make a prediction about Hall of Fame Bowl last season. As the returning this year's Wildcats.

Despite preseason predictions, Ransdell refuses to speculate

By CYNTHIA A. PALORMO
Senior Staff Writer

If a preseason prediction about this year's gridiron Cats is what you're after — don't bother questioning the one who leads them into battle.

"I don't even want to try 'cause I'd end up sticking my foot in my mouth." Attribute that to the ever-smooth, always calm No. 9 — Bill Ransdell.

Not only does this quarterback shy away from predictions and comparisons, but he also sidesteps personal acclamation as well as he sidesteps a pass rush. "I'll be as good as the rest of the team," he said.

"We're just going to try to play the best we can. We've got the team, the offensive line — a lot depends on them, a strong defense and the best secondary we've had since we've been here. Overall, we have the potential; it's just a matter of putting it all together."

And if it's a comparison to last year's Hall of Fame Bowl victors you want, forget about asking Ransdell about that, too. "Each team has its own personality," he said, "and you can't tell about this team yet. The personality usually doesn't come out until the first three or four games of the season."

If one thing is evident when Ransdell talks, it's that he is first and foremost a team player. His answers revolve around "the guys," not himself.

Whether discussing this year's team or his own goals, Ransdell concentrates only on the here-and-now. The only speculating he seems to enjoy involves the stock market.

Stocks are something that have always intrigued this finance senior, but right now, it's football — UK football — that's on his mind and more specifically — Bowling Green.

Ransdell came to UK three years ago, but because he was redshirted his freshman year, he has two more years of eligibility left.

Looking back, Ransdell admits he wasn't particularly overjoyed with the idea of spending his first year as a Wildcat practicing during the week only to watch from the sidelines on Saturdays. "I regretted it at first, . . . but I was glad, after it was over with that I had."

An all-star quarterback from Elizabethtown High School, Ransdell sat out his first year as a Wildcat only to play second, and sometimes third, fiddle to former Cat quarterbacks Randy Jenkins and Doug Martin during his second year. For some high school all-stars, this might have been a hard pill to swallow, but Ransdell doesn't complain. "I was just happy to be here."

Some say Ransdell's first opportunity to prove his worth came in the second half of the 1984 Hall of Fame Bowl against West Virginia when he replaced Jenkins and brought the Cats back from the dead. Even so, that's merely what others say, not Bill Ransdell.

"You can't think about yourself in a situation like that. I had a job to do."

At the beginning of last year, however, Ransdell had some hesitations. For the first time, he was going to lead the charge — a charge of determined guys just itching to prove they could win the big games — and a bowl game.

"I wondered if I could do the job. I've always grown up watching UK football and have seen seasons in the past. We wanted to have such a good season so bad."

There was never any doubt in Ransdell's mind that last year's offensive line could do the job. And he says this year's line is probably even better than it was last year. A possible prediction? No, just a statement.

As for himself, Ransdell doesn't quantify his improvement. As he puts it, "Apparently I've made some or I wouldn't be where I am."

He doesn't focus on success because of his performance. "I don't get caught up in personal perspectives. I don't sit down and evaluate myself. It takes 11 guys on offense and 11 on defense."

Even if he doesn't dwell on his own abilities, his teammates often do. Former Wildcat wide receiver "Joker" Joe Phillips, Ransdell's former roommate, gave him a nickname two years ago that has stayed with him. He was labeled "Dollar" Bill because he is "always on the money."

Ransdell's response? "I don't know why he did that."

The one thing Ransdell does know is that right now, football is his life. "I love it. I wouldn't trade it for anything," he said, but "it all comes down to the actual game. All the practices during the week before a game don't make any difference because nobody sees what you do or how hard you work until Saturday. We play for 11 Saturdays a year and that's what it all comes down to."

Brian Williams celebrates after making a tackle in the Georgia game last season. After being suspended before the Hall of Fame game, Williams has added zeal for his senior season.

Fame game absence has Williams eyeing last season as Cat

there with them. It meant a lot to me to be down there."

With Kentucky's opening game against Bowling Green just over a week away, Brian Williams sat on the edge of the practice field at Shively Sports Center in a sweat-soaked "Kentucky Pride" T-shirt.

It means even more to him to be back.

He spoke quietly about his trip to Birmingham, Ala., more than eight months ago — the one he made not as a Wildcat player, but as a Wildcat fan.

As part of their punishment, the three players were taken off their scholarships for a semester until they re-proved themselves. In the locker room just after the game, Williams gave a short speech to his teammates that defined his plan of action for getting his scholarship back.

Williams, along with defensive colleagues Tony Mayes and Russell Hairston, was suspended from the Kentucky team about three weeks before the Hall of Fame Bowl last December for disciplinary reasons.

"I got up and told the team that I was going to do all that was in my power to win a spot on the football team," Williams said.

"I was down there supporting the team because I still felt like I was part of the team," Williams said. "If there was any way I could help the team, I was going to be there in person and show that my heart was still

Weighing in at 209 pounds after the winter workouts, Williams decided to reduce his weight and increase his strength during the summer. He reported to fall practice at 201; his benchpress had increased from 380 to 390. Now, more than eight months

Placekicker Joe Worley kicks the game-winning 52-yard field goal against Wisconsin. Worley and senior Jim Rider are both experienced placekickers for the Wildcats this season.

UK's kicking game 'twice' as good

By BRETT HAIT
Staff Writer

It's doubtful that Jerry Claiborne will hold open tryouts for placekickers this year.

Unlike the punting situation, UK has the good fortune of having two top-notch kickers in Jim Rider and Joe Worley.

"It's unusual," said offensive line and kicking coach Farrell Sheridan. "We've never had two kickers of this caliber. Either one could kick in any Division I program."

Rider began the 1984 season as the starting placekicker but suffered a groin injury in the fourth game against Rutgers. Worley got the starting call in the next game against Mississippi State.

"Joe just stepped in and did a great job for us," Sheridan said.

Indeed, for the last eight games of the '84 season, Worley was outstanding. He connected on all 15 of his extra-point attempts and made seven of 11 field goals. Tying the school record with a 52-yard field goal in the Hall of Fame Bowl against Wisconsin capped an impressive season for the freshman.

"It's a wonderful feeling to think about all I've accomplished since I've been here," Worley said.

Now a sophomore, Worley will be battling with Rider for the No. 1 kicking position.

"I think I have more of an advantage this year coming in than I did last year," Worley said. "Because of what I've done (last season), I'd say it's given me an advantage."

Rider agreed. "With the season he had last year, it'll be real hard to beat him," he said.

"From the way spring ball went, I would say right now it's a toss-up," Sheridan said. "Both of them are pretty even. I think it will come down to consistency. I wouldn't say one has the advantage over the other. We're going to start them off even and let them kick it out and compete against each other."

Worley, an Oakwood, Va., native, came to UK last year after he had attended the UK summer football camp in 1983. "I guess I impressed them when I made some from 55 yards," he said.

When Chris Caudell, UK's kicker in 1983, was dismissed from the team, Worley was offered a scholarship to attend the University.

Rider, who made the team as a walk-on last year, received one football and two soccer letters at Lexington's Lafayette High School.

As Rider put it, Worley is "already on top and already there. All he's got to worry about is losing his job. I've got to worry about winning one."

But he added that he likes being in the position he's in. "I've got nothing to lose," he said.

Competition between the two kickers since the end of last season has been "pretty rough," Worley said.

"It's been tight between us. He's really giving me a run."

As is the custom at various other schools, the idea of having one player kick off and one kick field goals and extra points is possible. "I'll just say I've been working extra hard on my kickoffs this summer," Rider said.

Wildcat linebackers pass test; returning starters offer depth

By JIM WHITE
Contributing Writer

The linebacker is often the blood and guts of any football team, and the UK linebacking corps this year couldn't be defined any more accurately.

The Wildcats are blessed with a group of talented and experienced linebackers. Assistant coach Terry Strook said he can depend on any one of them in a game situation.

The loss of the graduated Cam Jacobs — UK's leading tackler last season, who was drafted by the Pittsburgh Steelers and remains on their injured reserve list — did not seem to hurt the position.

"The depth is there," he said, "and I believe I can play four or five backers a game."

The linebackers will be led by returning starters Jeff Kremer and Larry Smith. Kremer, an outstanding high school athlete, was recruited by UK as a safety. Standing at 6-foot-2 and weighing 190 pounds, he toughened up after his first spring season and increased his weight to 231.

Kremer, a sophomore, did not go through any special weight training but gained the 40 pounds through the standard football program.

The coaches then moved him to linebacker.

He became a starter last season when Smith suffered a knee injury in the fifth game against Mississippi State. The injury kept Smith on the sidelines for the remainder of the season. After surgery the long rehabilitation road followed.

Smith's older brother, Jeff, a recent San Diego Chargers' draft choice, started at defensive tackle last year before an injury shortened his senior year.

The younger Smith was the leading tackler for the Cats before the injury brought him down, and he admits that he still feels soreness in the knee. But pain or no pain, he is anxious to begin where he left off when UK opens against Bowling Green tomorrow.

Strook was impressed with Smith's performance last year and is confident the 6-1, 220-pound junior will be the stopper Jacobs was last year. "Larry gave us a great effort last season and should be strong again this year," he said.

The athletic ability of both Kremer and Smith is symbolic of the entire UK linebacking corps this season.

Pressing both Kremer and Smith for starting positions are junior Don Yarano and redshirted freshman Chris Chenault. Yarano saw action in all junior varsity games last year and should be strong this season despite a knee injury. Strook said the 224-pounder is not yet at full speed but will play tomorrow.

Chenault backed up Kremer in spring drills and is expected to be a solid player this year. He has gained weight and strength since last year and is playing well, Strook said.

Also adding strength to the linebacker position are juniors Guy Neal and Jacky Crawford. Neal was the leading tackler in the Hall of Fame Bowl last year with eight solo tackles and two assists. Crawford participated in all junior varsity games last season and saw some varsity action.

Even though the competition among this year's Wildcat linebackers is intense, both Kremer and Smith agree that the competitive spirit is good for the team.

"Everybody will really be pushing everybody else," Kremer said, and Smith agreed that the depth of the linebackers "makes us all better players."

Despite a tough road schedule, players and coaches expect that UK will have another winning season. "There's no reason we shouldn't have one if we play like we have the past two years," Smith said.

Preseason polls had UK ranked low this year, but Kremer said they mean very little. "You can't listen to them, it's what you do when you go out there and play."

Wildcat captains display leadership on, off field

By JASON WILLIAMS
Contributing Writer

Some people are born leaders. Others get elected.

Ken Pietrowiak and Jon Dumbauld are hoping that they're both as the Wildcats begin the 1985 football season.

Both seniors — Pietrowiak, a center, and Dumbauld, a guard — have been elected team captains by their teammates.

Both were team captains in high school, but as Pietrowiak noted, "Just about everyone here was probably a team captain in high school. I'm sure most of them were the outstanding players on their team."

"Here it's different. It's not so important to be the best player. It's more of a motivational role."

"There's a lot more public relations involved," Dumbauld said, "not just with the media, but with the other players, especially the younger ones."

The captains held a meeting with the incoming freshmen at the beginning of preseason practice "just to get them settled in and feel part of the team," Dumbauld said.

"We wanted to let them know we're accessible," Pietrowiak said. "They shouldn't be intimidated by the older guys."

By the same token, UK's captains aren't planning on being intimidated by the bigger guys — the opposing

"There's no point in talking about a win-loss record. We'll just take one game at a time, and at the end of the season, we'll see how we did."

Jon Dumbauld, defensive captain

linemen they will face on such Southeastern Conference powerhouse teams as Georgia and Florida.

"We've just found that technique and second effort make up a lot for lack of size," said Pietrowiak, who is "only" 6-foot-2 and 230 pounds.

"I don't consider myself all that smaller," said Dumbauld, who at 6-3 and 260 makes a good argument for himself. "I might not be as strong as them, but I like to think I'm a lot quicker."

Such positive thinking has infected the Wildcat troops, who have lately been ending practices with the battle cry "SEC champs!" Not long ago, those thoughts would have been later, Williams is again a scholarship Wildcat.

"When I came back to spring practice, I had in my mind that I had to earn my respect," Williams said. "I had to get the younger kids looking up to me again. When (the suspension) happened, I felt like the world was crumbling on me. That was the time period that I had to overcome that and get everybody thinking that I wanted to play ball again."

In the spring, he didn't really know where he stood on the depth chart, having lost his position and all. He and Mayes chatted, plotting how they were going to break back into the lineup. They went all out in scrimmages and one-on-one drills.

"He made a mistake," said defensive end coach Dave Likins. "We all make mistakes. We don't want to make them, but he has come back real well from it. He had been a fine example since then and I'm sure he is a better person right now because of it."

Now, looking down the barrel of his senior season, Williams said he is on top of his game. He's in his best condition and seemingly has his best attitude in a football career that has reached its fruition. The senior season, whether it be high school or college, is the one season football players live for, he said.

"Everybody looks forward to his senior year because you've been here for three years and most of the younger kids look up to you," Williams said. "And you just want to show them that you want to be a leader."

After all, Williams has waited a long time not to enjoy this season. As a three-sport standout at Middlesboro High School, situated just 50 miles from Knoxville, he seriously considered going to the University of Tennessee. That is, until Coach Jerry Claiborne came calling.

"When Coach Claiborne visited me, there was no doubt in my mind that I was going to Kentucky because there was that state pride and there's that chance of going into a program and rebuilding that program," Williams said.

He came to UK as a defensive back and ironically started his first game as a freshman against Tennessee. He was burned on a long pass to UT's Mike Miller, and it was then that Williams found out he wasn't cut out for a defensive back.

He switched to defensive end that spring.

That position in Claiborne's defensive scheme is the closest thing to a fourth defensive back in that it rushes the passer and drops back in pass coverage. "I moved and fell in love with it," Williams said.

At 5-foot-10, Williams said he has made up for his rather small height with mental preparation.

"It's that mental toughness Coach Claiborne is always talking about," Williams said. "I see myself taking on bigger people sometimes when I'm laying around. If you don't have mental toughness, you'll go out there and get destroyed."

So now for Williams, his football career is just 12 games long, if the Wildcats go to a bowl, that is. And he is approaching it with all the zeal of a freshman.

"He's playing better right now than he ever has," Likins said. "He's running real well, he's faster, he's stronger, he knows the position inside and out."

And for Williams, this is when it all pays off.

Heated battle begins for No. 1 in nation

Florida, Oklahoma, Auburn, SMU will show no signs of cooling down

The thinning-out process to see who's No. 1 in college football ignited last weekend, and the race for the Heisman Trophy has caught fire.

During these first few weeks of football in September, game time temperatures will never be less than 75 degrees. And in games south of the Mason-Dixon line, 90 degrees is not rare.

I love the hot weather, but when college football is mentioned, I conjure up thoughts of blankets, hot chocolate and peppermint schnapps.

Somehow going to a game in shorts is contradictory to the sport. But in states like Florida, Oklahoma, Texas and Alabama, where football is the hot topic, that's a common sight.

Teams seem to play much better in hot weather, too. In the past few years, the teams whose homes are covered with snow by late October have melted into oblivion. Gone, for a while, are the days when the Ohio States, Michigans, and Notre Dames dominated.

Of the five national champions of the '80s, three of the teams were located in the Sun Belt: Georgia, Clemson and Miami. And if it weren't for Brigham Young's dimly weak 12-0 season last year, Oklahoma would have been on top. Only Penn State has the dubious honor of being in the north, and they only missed the Mason-Dixon line by about 100 miles.

The Sun Belt teams are hot. Even the Southeastern Conference has been dubbed as the best in the nation.

In the official Kentucky Kernel Top 20, the first seven teams—Florida, Oklahoma, Auburn, SMU, USC, Florida State and Maryland—enjoy playing at home in the warmest parts of the United States. And 13 of the 20 own that same luxury.

In fact, in the past three years, those seven have a combined record of 170-56-6, good for a 76 percent winning mark.

It remains to be seen what bowls these clubs will go to. But they will be the teams that will top many of the polls come Jan. 2. And my bet is one of teams will sport the Heisman winner also.

Here is a close-up of those Sunny Seven:

➤Florida — The Gators have the best of both offensive worlds, a quarterback who can pass and a running game that is one of the best in the nation. Last year, QB Kerwin Bell not only had the highest passing efficiency rating (148.0) of any freshman in NCAA history, but he garnered SEC Player of the Year honors as well. Senior running backs Neal Anderson and John L. Williams are likely to wind up being the top two rushers in Gator history.

➤Oklahoma — Defense, defense, defense. That's the word coming from Coach Barry Switzer this year. In 1984, the Sooners ranked first nationally against the rush and second in overall defense. Leading the way is consensus All-American Tony Cassilas, a 6-3, 270-pound noseguard. To get points on the scoreboard, Switzer looks to sophomore tailback Spencer Tillman, who gained 1,047 yards last season.

➤Auburn — The Tigers have the best backfield in the nation: Bo Jackson and whoever is beside him. At 6-2 and 222 pounds, Jackson has world-class sprinter speed and is considered the best college baseball prospect in the country. As long as Pat Dye's boys keep winning and staying in the Top 10, Jackson is the man to beat for the Heisman.

BRECK SMITHER, Kernel Staff

UK's George Adams tries to get past Florida on Southeastern Conference probation, Florida defender in a game last season. Despite being has one of the top teams in the country.

➤Southern Methodist — In the three years Coach Bobby Collins has been at SMU, the Mustangs have been the second-winningest team in the nation, going 31-4-1. A year ago, quarterback Don King led the Southwest Conference in passing and total offense, and tailback Reggie Dupard rushed for 1,154 yards. But one tangible for this year is that SMU will be at home on New Year's Day, watching the bowl games on TV, the result of an NCAA suspension.

➤Southern Cal. — Check out these numbers: offensive tackle James FitzPatrick, 6-foot-8, 270 pounds, and guard Jeff Bregel, 6-4, 270, who bench presses 465 pounds. If the Trojan running backs ran behind these guys on every play, they'd be 11-0. Fred Crutcher will be that man, who has joined the Simpsons, Bells and Allens in the USC Tailback Hall of Fame, after gaining 1,155 yards last year.

➤Florida State — Averaging 45 points and 450 yards per game in '84, the Seminoles return most of their offensive threats this year, minus All-America running back Greg Allen and wide receiver Jesse Hester. But this is the same FSU team that beat Nebraska 17-13 at Lincoln last week. They are tested later in the season with games at Auburn and Florida.

➤Maryland — Put an asterisk next to the Terrapins because of their proximity to the North. Coach Bobby Ross has the advantage of playing in the Atlantic Coast Conference, but he also has the disadvantage of playing one of the hardest non-conference schedules in the land. Fullback Ron Badanjek is the John Riggins of the college ranks. With an offensive line that averages 6-foot-4½ and 275 pounds, who's going to stop the Terps? Their schedule.

There it is, the hottest teams in the country.

Put on your shorts, grab your sunglasses, bring your Gatorade. See you at Commonwealth Stadium tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. The heat is on, and there are no signs of cooling off.

at best dreaming, as Pietrowiak, who arrived during Fran Curci's last year as coach, remembered.

"Curci ran us more like a pro team," Pietrowiak said. "He let us discipline ourselves, and some guys that young just can't handle that. It showed on the field."

Dumbauld came to UK during Jerry Claiborne's first year in charge.

"You could tell the difference from the way the older guys acted," he said. "But year after year everyone's gotten used to the coach having more discipline. You have to make some sacrifices, but Coach Claiborne's record speaks for itself."

After college football, the captains have different plans. Dumbauld, who has been a regular since his freshman year and has steadily improved, hopes to play professional football. Pietrowiak, who came up through the junior varsity ranks and was redshirted in 1983, is pursuing a master's degree in marketing, which will take up his post-football time for a while.

"Hopefully, while Jon's getting drafted by the NFL, I'll be getting drafted by IBM or GTE," Pietrowiak said.

But for now, they plan on the season ahead, even though they are reluctant to discuss the ultimate team goal in detail.

"There's no point in talking about a win-loss record," Dumbauld said. "We'll just take one game at a time, and at the end of the season, we'll see how we did."
