—1903

The 1946 University of Kentucky Homecoming was begun Saturday morning, October 19 at 11 o'clock, when the Alumni Association presented to the University a memorial to the 320 Gold Star men of World War II who were alumni of the University. The presentation was made by Chauncey Forgey of Ashland, president of the Alumni Association, and the gift was accepted by President Herman Lee Donovan. Howard C. Bowles of Hazard, president of the U. K. Veteran's Club expressed his organization's appreciation of the gift.

The site selected for the roster is directly in front of the Armory and on the west side. The spot is secluded and quiet and yet the memorial can be observed by passers going in either direction. The ceremonial was attended by about a thousand guests, many of whom came from far away points. Quite early the reserved chairs were occupied by the invited guests and many students, faculty and other friends stood near forming a semi-circle in front of the roster. The October weather

Going Our Way?

In the annual membership letter, sent out in July to graduates and former students of the University, we told you that the University, at long last, was well on its way in the most successful period of its history.

What concerns the University, what affects its progress and development, also affects the Alumni Association; therefore it is a foregone conclusion that your association is enjoying the most successful, the most cooperative and the most encouraging year in its history.

At this time we have more active members than at the same given period in any previous year in the history of the association. We have reached an all-time high in the number of life memberships. We have more active alumni clubs, and more interest manifested in

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS AUGUST 24, 1912, AND MARCH 3, 1933.

Of KENTUCKY ALUMNUS, published quarterly, at Lexington, Kentucky, for November 15, 1946, State of Kentucky, County of Fayette.

Before me, a Notary Public, in and for the State and County aforesaid, personally appeared Helen G. King, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that she is the editor and business manager, of the KENTUCKY ALUMNUS and that the following is, to the best of her knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 411, Postal Laws and Regulations, to wit:

1. That the name and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor and business manager are:

Publisher, Alumni Association, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky.

Editor, Helen G. King, Lexington, Kentucky.

Managing Editor, G. Lee McClain, Bardstown, Kentucky.

Business Editor, Helen G. King, Lexington, Kentucky.

Associate Editor, Marguerite McLaughlin, Lexington, Kentucky.

2. That the owner is Alumni Association, further organization than has been evidenced for some time. In other words, the Alumni Association, along with your Alma Mater, is really on its way, lacking only the added zip, the added enthusiasm which YOU can give it, to make it the vital, living link between the University and its children which it needs to be.

You alumni are in a position to do that for your association, and through it, for your Alma Mater, which we here on the campus are unable to do without your help. You can spread the gospel of your Alumni Association broadcast, so that other former students, hearing you preach, will become indoctrinated with the aims of the organization, and with the necessity of becoming active members.

We need every former student: we need your interest, your enthusiasm AND your membership dues. Without all three we cannot do the job as it should be, and as you expect it to be done.

ARE YOU GOING OUR WAY?

tion, University of Kentucky, Lexington (non-stock corporation). Officers are Chauncey E. Forgey, President; James S. Shropshire, Vice-President and Treasurer; Helen G. King, Secretary.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees and other security holders owning or holding 1 percent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: None.

Alumni Guests for the Homecoming Dance

They Were Here 20 Thousand Strong

BY MARGUERITE McLAUGHLIN

Were you in Lexington on Saturday, October 19, for the University's first real Homecoming in six years? If you were then you know all there is to tell but if you were not then—here goes.

McLean Stadium, with all the bleacher seats obtainable, was filled to capacity and there were of course hundreds who heard over the radio of the Wildcats trip down Victory Lane to make the day one to be remembered a long time and then some. It was Kentucky 10—Vanderbilt 7 and that is the story. Stoll Field was a scene of beauty fit for a picture in technicolor.

Just like before 1942, after the game alumni, faculty and friends strolled down the ramp, and up Rose street to Maxwell Place for tea and a pleasant visit with President Donovan and Mrs. Donovan as hosts.

Maxwell Place was lovely with fall flowers, the ladies living up to the best standards of Kentucky beauty and the happy conversation (much of which was football) made the minutes go quickly by. It was a gay party and the evening came all too soon.

Many former Wildcats return to Lexington to see a game, either basketball or football, but owing to conditions of accommodations in hotels many do not plan to stay over after the game. It was different this year after the Kentucky-Vanderbilt game. Old grads didn't seem to worry about food; they just wanted to talk the thing over and they did.

was perfect and the slightly lowering clouds reflected the distress of those assembled for the ceremony. Feelings of sadness and of pride were evident and in keeping was the gentle fall of the leaves from the branches overhead, those gorgeous brown and golden leaves that come with the fall in Kentucky.

The time required for the unveiling and presentation was comparatively short but very definitely the occasion was impressive. The devotionals were offered by Bart Peak, University Y.M.C.A. secretary and the music was furnished by the University band. At the conclusion of the program "Taps" were sounded. Strangely sweet were the strains of "Taps" as they were wafted on the breeze to the accompaniment of the muffled roll of drums. The assembly stood as the Colors were carried past and the band played the national anthem. With the benediction a memorable occasion in post-war campus events was recorded.

At the annual meeting in June, 1945, George Kendall of Lexington, a returnee addressed the meeting and asked that a roster of the names of the University's World War II dead be put on a tablet to be erected on the campus. The chairman explained that the Field House which had been planned would be a memorial but in the discussion it was brought out that such a tribute would be delayed possibly two or more years and that a temporary record could be arranged with propriety. The then president, Grover Creech, appointed a committee composed of D. V. Terrell, E. B. Farris, Mr. Kendall and Marguerite McLaughlin, to formulate the plans and design the memorial. Later after the plan had been carried out to completion the fire which destroyed the service building also destroyed the memorial. The task was undertaken anew and was completed in time for the presentation on Homecoming Day this year. The committee in charge of the final arrangements was composed of Miss Helen King, Doctor Alex Capurso, Lt. Colonel John Carter and H. D. Palmore. Letters were sent to the families of the honored dead extending an invitation to them to attend the services. Many who were able to do so came to the campus and

From 8 to 12 o'clock the Alumni Association entertained informally in the Gold Room of the Lafayette Hotel and invited all former students and old grads to come in and dance for a while. Approximately 300 were present. An orchestra furnished the dance music and the association's president, Chauncey Forgey, and Dr. E. C. Elliott, Bernie Shively, Kyle Whitehead, H. C. Robinson, Jeanette Graves and Marguerite McLaughlin assisted in entertaining.

Old Grad Celebrates First Homecoming Win In 20 Years

By A 1926 Graduate

The story that has been in the hopes of University of Kentucky alumni for 20 years can be told today . . . the Big Blue Wildcats have won a Homecoming game.

The "old grads" of the South Limestone institution who have been willing to brave repeated trips to Lexington to witness a Blue and White adventure received their expense money's worth yesterday when the Cats punched the jackpot over the Commodores of Vanderbilt by a 10-7 tab.

We who have broken family budgets to pay respects to our alma mater year in and year out on Homecoming occasions have been trained to take defeat as a matter of course. We have fought for hotel reservations and battled crowds with a hope that our loyalty would be well invested.

But the schedule makers in the generation past have given us Tennessee and Alabama, alternated on homecoming events, and history tells the story. The Vols have engulfed us on uneven years here and Alabama has been our nemesis on even years.

But, somehow, we who left memories on the UK campus have been willing to take one more chance each year. We have found pleasure in the renewal of friendships with classmates. In fact, a University of Kentucky Homecoming was turned many years ago into a test of loyalty to classes rather than loyalty to football teams. We have been sent back home with glowing reports of the "best band in Dixie" and with the slightly worn promise, "We'll get them next year."

Members of the 1926 class and others have waited a long time for a Homecoming that would give reason to throw caution to the winds in a celebration. The years have been marked by adverse scores and next year's prospects until yesterday when, for the first time in 20 years, we were able to swagger off Stoll Field and gather in downtown hotels to celebrate rather than drown results.

Saturday, Oct. 19, 1946, was a red-letter day in the lives of grid-minded UK grads. We found the sun in yesterday's overcast skies and we patted the backs of football players after the game rather than the backs of the band's brass section. For once in a long time we felt we had been to a football game rather than to a band concert.

The grads of the University of Kentucky, mindful of the interest Dr. H. L. Donovan, president, has paid to a winning football team, are taking a new interest. They are feeling the surge of revitalized blood in veins that are growing old.

Grads who paid little attention to the birth of the Atomic Age are turning attention to the Bear Bryant Age at the University of Kentucky. The old grads understand the kind of atoms that exploded against Vanderbilt yesterday. They hope that the young mentor of The Kentucky Project has a stock of similar bombs to drop later on Alabama and Tennessee.

Next year's menu we look forward to . . . Alabama. That, we hope, will be another Homecoming victory that will surpass the Homecoming of this year.

There was not an unhappy UK grad yesterday . . . and next year we'll be back.

French Girl Gets UK Scholarship

Miss Helene Bourdis of Grenoble, France, has been selected as the 1946-47 recipient of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs scholarship to the University of Kentucky, Miss Jane Haselden, assistant dean of women, has announced.

A graduate in law from the University of Grenoble, Miss Bourdis plans to study political science and international law at the University.

Dime Novels Record Pioneer History

U.K. Library Has Large Collection

(From Public Relations, University of Kentucky)

"The deadly rifle spoke—and then another redskin bit the dust!"

Although this dramatic sentence hardly seems to represent source material of the type used in institutions of higher learning, the University of Kentucky library maintains a valuable collection of rare old dime novels in which many a sentence of a similar nature appears.

"Few students," Miss Margaret I. King, University librarian, explains, "have anything but a faint conception of what dime novels are. The first dime novel series was published some 86 years ago and the last of this type of literature went out of existence as such soon after the turn of the century.

They were very popular tales of adventure, combat, love, history and similar subjects, according to Miss King. While popular, they also were regarded with suspicion of being sensational, if not immoral, and often earned their youthful readers trips to the woodshed.

Nevertheless, the dime novel survived to bring us vivid pictures of the life of the times, Miss King said. "They reflect a great deal of the history of our early days and afford an excellent means of studying the colloquial language and customs of the period."

The University collection, valued at several hundred dollars monetarily and much more historically, was acquired from a southern book company in 1944 and includes 33 dime novels in seven different series published from 1861 to 1909.

Among the collection, which is generally stored in the library's fireproof vault are three prized selections of the original dime novel series brought out by the Beadle brothers around 1860.

These earliest types of dime novels, referred to as "Yellow backs" because of the yellowish-orange color of the cover, had such engaging titles as "The Trail-hunters," "The Hunted Life" and "Queen of the Woods." The first title is No. 24 of the series which eventually reached 381 numbers. Such titles have brought prices ranging from $5 to $22.50 per copy at auctions.

It was these dime novels that originated such colorful characters as Lantern-Jawed Bob, Long Bob of Kentucky, Ben Bramble, Old Honesty, Hunter Ham, and Star-face the Slayer.

"Few libraries in the country have so complete a collection of source material dealing with the pioneer wilderness section which is now the Kentucky-Tennessee-Southeast United States area," Miss King declared.

"A better understanding of the history of Kentucky and the whole area can be gained from these simple forerunners of American literature and journalism, called the dime novels."

Students at the University of Kentucky will receive physical training based on their needs to meet a specific physical-fitness standard, the school has announced.

Scribe's Son Given Scholarship Award

A fund collected by the friends of the late J. Howard Henderson, former University student and Frankfort columnist for the Louisville Courier Journal, amounting to $2,316.19, has been invested in an insurance policy for Henderson's son John, seven, which will assure the youngster $74.07 a month for ten months a year for the four years of his future college career.

Knowing of his impending death, Mr. Henderson, who died last December was anxious about the education of his son and the contributions were made by 176 of his friends.

If John should die before college age, the proceeds of the policy will go in a lump sum to the school of journalism at the University of Kentucky to be invested, the interest to be used for an annual J. Howard Henderson memorial cash award for the junior student majoring in journalism who "shows the best promise in reporting and interpreting public affairs."

recently by the College of Arts and Sciences, but the faculty has voted to make it applicable throughout the school.

Essentially the same physical training has been given all students in the past, but adjustments in the amount needed for any given student was made at the beginning of the school year in September.

The University also announced that the number of work-hours in R.O.T.C. elementary courses have been reduced from 5 to 3 per week in conformity with a new War Department policy.

UK Football Is On Upgrade—And How!

By JIM DANCE

Football at the University of Kentucky is definitely on the uptake as you may be able to discover by, (1) reading the newspapers, (2) glancing at the stack of requests for information in the publicity office, (3) listening to the woes of Coleman Smith, who is in charge of the ticket sales. Every home game for this season is already a sell-out as far as stadium seats are concerned. These things are not every-fall occurrences at the University as you undoubtedly know and there is a definite reason for all the interest. It is simply a football team, a real team, and not what is usually known as a Kentucky team. The present team is the result of much hard work on the part of Head Coach "Bear" Bryant and the members of his staff, who have gleaned every section of the country in their search for boys who really want to play.

Evidently these quests were not in vain, for the first day of practice this fall saw more prospects out for football than at any other time. With the aid of a few returning vets who had played before the war at Kentucky and some of the outstanding freshmen in the country, the Wildcats should have one of the best teams in years. However, the real work of Bryant and his assistants will not be as evident this year as it will in the two or three seasons following. Bryant has said that he will have a good team in a few years, although such statements must be taken with a bit of understanding on the listeners' part. All football coaches seem to be infected with a strange disease at the first of every season, the symptoms of said disease being that the coach seems to have trouble with his eyes in that he can't possibly see how his team can win over two games. In fact Bryant had little trouble convincing the local curbstone quarterbacks that the Wildcats wouldn't have anything this year. This was to be expected, for this season was to be a sort of reconstruction period. Of course, it is a little early in the season to predict the final outcome for the Wildcats, but with the start they have in defeating Mississippi, Cincinnati, Xavier and Vanderbilt, it would be difficult for them to have a bad season considering what little time Bryant has had to work with them.

Some of the freshmen who have a lot of good football in them that is bound to come out, are: Dopey Phelps, Pat James, Carl and Ralph Genito, Jimmy Babb, Jerry Claiborne, Harry Ulinski, Bill Dawson, Dominic Fucci, and Ben Heinzinger. These boys have nearly all shown out-

Bryant Answer To Kentucky's Prayer

By JIM DANCE

Kentucky's new football coach, Paul "Bear" Bryant has shown, indirectly, why the students at Maryland walked out of classes in protest when Bryant resigned to accept the position at Kentucky. Bryant, although quiet and extremely bashful, has captivated the student body at the University with his approach to the problem of building a good football team. He has accomplished this through hard work and devotion of his time to the job and has allowed the results to speak for themselves.

Bryant is a Fordyce, Arkansas boy, and picked up the name "Bear" in that town at the tender age of thirteen, when he saw fit to "rassle" a bear in a traveling carnival which was in Fordyce. Although the outcome of this encounter is not known, Bryant didn't come out of the battle completely uncompensated, for the name "Bear" has been with him ever since.

Bryant has done exceedingly well thus far this season in the opinions of various backers and sportswriters. This has been accomplished with what Bryant has termed the "leavings", I hate to think what the rest of the teams have. The performance of the Kentucky team thus far certainly doesn't indicate any deficiency in talent or ability, and it is believed that Bryant is a trifle sharper on recognizing the real players than some of the older members of the coaching profession.

standing ability in the games to date and will be the backbone of future 'Cat teams.

Bill McCubbin Named 5th Aide On Bryant's Wildcat Grid Staff

BILL McCUBBIN

Bill McCubbin of Louisville, graduate of the University in 1940 and end on the Wildcat grid team that year, has been named by Coach Paul Bryant as the fifth member of his grid staff for the current football season.

McCubbin has been serving as director of intramural athletics for the past year, and was assistant to Bernie Shively, athletic director, when Shively coached the Kentucky team last season. McCubbin was also in Coach Ab Kirwan's staff in 1941.

He served in the Air Corps during the war and attained the rank of captain as a bombardier, winning the Distinguished Flying Cross with two clusters, and the Air Medal.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. McCubbin of Louisville and is a graduate of Louisville Manual High School. His wife was the former Mary Joan Gruneisen of Louisville.

While he was in the armed service McCubbin became a life member of the University of Kentucky Alumni Association.

Former Wildcats Playing Pro Ball

Milt Ticeo and Wilbur Schu, former Kentucky basketball stars have signed with the Youngstown Bears, professional basketball team, for the coming season, and Bob Davis, former Wildcat half-back and all-around back for the Boston Yanks of the professional football league is again playing for Boston this year.

Ticeo and Schu are "freshmen" in professional ball. Ticeo having been in Army service since 1943, and Schu completed his college athletic career last spring.

Davis is now starting his eighth year in the National Football League and has played every back-field position with the Yanks.

Sully Jacobs Goes To Pikeville High

Sully Jacobs, former Wildcat football player and equipment manager for the U. K. Athletic Department since 1945, has left the department to accept the position of head football coach at Pikeville High School.

Sully came to the University in 1937 as a freshman from Paducah,

M. E. Potter Heads Air Force Association

M. E. Potter, M.A. '32, head of the department of physical education at the University, was named temporary commander of the Lexington squadron of the Air Force Association at an organization meeting held in Lexington in August. Other temporary officers elected included: W. H. Jones, '33, vice commander; Marvin Wachs, '33, publicity chairman and H. D. Phillips, University of Kentucky liaison officer.

He returned to the University in 1945 to assist his old line coach, Bernie Shively, in the double capacity of assistant coach and equipment manager. When Coach Paul Bryant took over the gridiron reins at U. K. Sully remained in the equipment room.

At Pikeville Jacobs succeeds Junie Jones, another former Kentucky athlete, who is now back-field coach and track coach at St. Xavier High in Louisville.

U.K. Research Foundation Fulfills Urgent Need

Established in '45 to Promote Research, Public Service and High Scholarship

Every alumnus of the University of Kentucky who has followed its history, knows that Kentucky, like many other state universities, has been hampered in its capacity of service by lack of funds. This is not necessarily a reflection on the operations of government, it is merely a commentary on the fact that all of the needs of a state university cannot be met by public taxation.

It is essential, therefore, that an institution like the University of Kentucky supplement its income from public sources with gifts from alumni and friends. Since there was no established procedure at the University whereby such gifts might be received and administered, and since the need was acute, in May 1945 a group of University faculty men formed a non-profit corporation, under the name of the Kentucky Research Foundation, as a medium for the promotion of research, public service and scholarship at the University of Kentucky.

The Kentucky Research Foundation offers to the alumni of the University and to its many other friends, opportunity, through contributions and gifts, to assist in the promotion of research and public service and to encourage the attendance at college on the part of worthy boys and girls who could not finance their advanced study without assistance. The foundation is particularly desirous of promoting research projects through which Kentucky's industrial, business and agricultural interests may cooperate with the University to the end that the state's economic resources may be increased as rapidly as possible. It is equally concerned that there be no waste of the state's human resources. Many students who rank in the upper one-half of their high school graduating classes are unable to attend college because of low family incomes. The foundation has as one of its purposes the assistance of these worthy young Kentuckians.

It is the purpose, also, of the foundation to act as the agent of the University in the solicitation of and administration of gifts for a variety of purposes: research, public service, scholarships and fellowships, publication, the endowment of professorships, the provision of new buildings and equipment, and any other purpose consistent with the institution's governing regulations and policies. While the foundation is concerned primarily with the administration of gifts in the interest of the University, it is empowered to receive and expend funds for other purposes consistent with the provisions of its articles of incorporation and by-laws.

During the first year of the foundation's existence, while most of the efforts of the board of directors and officers have been directed to matters of organization and policy, a beginning has been made in building the financial resources of the foundation and in carrying out certain of its purposes. One of the first problems which faced the foundation was to secure sufficient funds for its day-to-day operation and for the promotion of certain of its projects. No money being available for that purpose, the Alumni Association, at the request of the foundation, loaned the organization $1,000 for operating expenses. This loan has been repaid with interest, but it is interesting for you alumni to know that money which you had paid into the association in dues was thus used to launch such a worth-while project for the University.

In addition to this original operational fund the foundation has administered, during 1945-'46, the following gifts:

The Kentucky Distillers' Association scholarship and research fund of $15,500. Of this sum $7,500 was assigned to 30 freshmen scholarships at $250 each; $4,000 was allotted to fellowships in the College of Agriculture covering research in (a) utilization of distillers' by-products and (b) development of farm crops in Kentucky; and $4,000 was assigned to the equipment of a modern animal nutrition laboratory.

The Frances Jewell McVey Memorial Fund now totaling about $13,300.

The Fannie L. Jones Scholarship Fund of $5,000.

The William S. Webb Portrait Fund now amounting to about $545.

The by-laws of the foundation provide that its membership shall include the members of its board of directors, the members of the Board of Trustees of the University and not more than 30 additional members elected by the Board of Trustees and classified as (a) national councilors, (b) alumni members, (c) industrial councilors, and (d) research members. Considerable time has been given to the nominations for membership in the foundation and to date fourteen persons have been elected to membership, with the membership, at present, constituted as follows:

Officers of the foundation for 1945-'46 were:

Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, University Dean and Registrar, president.

Dr. W. S. Webb, head of the Department of Physics, vice-president.

Dr. E. N. Fergus, professor of Farm Crops, temporary secretary-treasurer.

The executive committee for the first year was composed of President H. L. Donovan, Grover Creech, Louisville, alumnus-trustee; and Dr. Frank Murray, professor of Law, together with the president, secretary and treasurer of the foundation. Later in the first year the last-named position was divided and Frank D. Peterson, University Comptroller, was named treasurer.

1. The Board of Directors:

Herman Lee Donovan, President of the University.

Leo M. Chamberlain, Dean of the University.

Grover Creech, the Creech Coal Company, Twila, Ky.

John C. Everett, the J. C. Everett Company, Maysville, Ky.

Ernest N. Fergus, Professor of Farm Crops.

search committee, (4) an auditing committee, and (5) a nominating committee. In addition, the board of directors may authorize, from time to time, the appointment of such other committees as it deems necessary.

As yet the finance and investment commissions have not been named, as it seemed desirable to include in the membership of each of these at least one or two elected members of the foundation who, because of their experience and business connections, could be especially helpful. These two commissions should probably be named early in the next fiscal year or perhaps sooner.

The membership of the other committees is as follows:

Research Committee

Thomas P. Cooper, Dean of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics and Director of the Experiment Station, chairman; Thomas D. Clark, Head of the Department of History; William W. Dimock, Head of the Department of Animal Pathology; Alvin E. Evans, Dean of the College of Law; William D. Funkhouser, Dean of the Graduate School; James W. Martin, Director of the Bureau of Business Research; Louis A. Pardue, Professor of Physics; Morris Scherago, Head of the Department of Bacteriology; William S. Taylor, Dean of the College of Education; and Daniel V. Terrell, Dean of the College of Engineering.

Auditing Committee

Frank D. Peterson, University Comptroller, chairman.

Edward S. Dabney, president of the Security Trust Company, Lexington, Kentucky.

William S. Webb, Head of the Department of Physics.

Nominating Committee

Frank Murray, Professor of Law, chairman.

Herman Lee Donovan, President of the University.

Clay C. Ross, Professor of Educational Psychology.

It is interesting to note in this connection that besides the alumni on the foundation as official representatives of the association and of the Board of Trustees, there are other alumnus members besides those so designated, who were selected because of their prominence in research and industry.

Government Sends U.K. Graduate, Judge Advocate For EATS

To Study Disease Of Orange Trees

Carlyle Wilson Bennett, of Riverside, Calif., a member of the class of 1917 and pathologist with the United States Department of Agriculture, left Miami, Fla., for Brazil on August 20 on a special assignment from the Division of Fruit and Vegetable Crops and Diseases of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, to work on a relatively new disease in South America which has already destroyed about 70 per cent of the orange trees of Argentina and Brazil. He will be gone a year.

Mr. Bennett spent seven months in 1940-'41 studying two diseases of the sugar beet and had an opportunity at that time to see some of the effects of this disease. He expects to be located at the Instituto Biologica, Sao Paulo, Brazil.

According to Mr. Bennett, a peculiar feature of the disease which he has been assigned to study is that it attacks only those trees that have been budded on sour orange, while those of the sweet orange are uninjured. Orange growers of South Africa have never been able to grow oranges on sour stocks and the same has been true for Java, in more recent years.

"It now seems probable", according to the Kentucky scientist, "that a disease native to South Africa kills all trees on sour stock and that the Dutch carried this disease to Java. About 1931 it was introduced into Argentina and has since spread over most of Argentina and Brazil. Our interest in this disease," says Mr. Bennett, "comes from the fact that about 50 per cent of the orange trees in California, almost 100 per cent of those in Texas, and about 70 per cent of those in Florida are on sour stock. If the disease should be introduced into the United States and if it spreads as it has elsewhere we could expect to lose all of these trees that are on sour stocks within a few years. In South America the disease is called 'tristeza,' which in Spanish means 'sadness.' "

It would appear to this reporter that the Kentucky Research Foundation offers to alumni their golden opportunity to make substantial contributions to a University project which should pay big dividends, in both human and natural resources, to the state. The Kentucky Research Foundation is the University's concrete effort to "serve all of the people, all of the time," in an over-all program which will reach to the farthest confines of the commonwealth.

Outstanding Alumni Named On Committee

Forgey Chooses Members for Year

Chauncey E. Forgey, Ashland, president of the University of Kentucky Alumni Association, has announced the appointment of 18 members to the executive committee and selection of two others to fill out unexpired terms on the board.

Those named were Grover Creech, T. J. Beam, Louisville; Lieutenant Governor Kenneth Tuggle, Barbourville; H. C. Robinson, Miss Marguerite McLaughlin, G. Davis Buckner, L. K. Frankel, Dr. E. C. Elliott, Mrs. E. D. Shinnick, Dr. George H. Wilson, Lexington; John A. Whitaker, Russellville; T. H. Cutler, H. D. Palmore, Frankfort; E. E. Hubbard, Bardstown; John R. Bullock, Ryland; Richard Legrand, Warsaw, and Henry A. Taylor, Henderson.

Named to fill unexpired terms were Guy A. Huguélet and U. K. Athletic Director Bernie A. Shively, Lexington.

Current officers of the U. K. Alumni Association, elected in June, include Mr. Forgey, President; James S. Shropshire, Lexington, vice-president and treasurer; and Miss Helen King, Lexington, executive secretary. Present elected members serving a three-year term on the executive committee are State Senator William W. Blanton, Paris, and G. Lee McClain, Bardstown.

G. I's On Every Front Took U K Correspondence Work During War

Studied Under All Battle Conditions

(BY LOUIS CLIFTON, '25, DIRECTOR OF UNIVERSITY EXTENSION)

During the war years, thousands of young men and women in uniform were on college campuses throughout the country taking courses which would fit them for specialized services in connection with the war effort. Elaborate arrangements were made for them by colleges and universities in collaboration with the Army and Navy. A less spectacular and little publicized program—education by means of correspondence courses—was provided through the United States Armed Forces Institute for those in service.

The USAFI program had two divisions: (1) a large number of short non-credit courses provided by the Institute from its headquarters in Madison, Wisconsin, at a nominal charge of $2.00 and, (2) college credit courses from approximately seventy-five of the leading colleges and universities throughout the United States. The USAFI made contracts with these institutions so that members of the Armed Forces could register through the Institute for any course desired from the institution of their choice. The service man paid half the cost of tuition and supplies with the other half paid by the United States Government.

Through the Armed Forces Institute, the U. K. Extension Department has registered approximately 1,000 students in the Armed Forces. These students, at the time of their registration, were located in practically all parts of the globe: in the Philip-pinas and other Pacific islands, China, India, England, France, Italy, Germany, Belgium, as well as aboard ship and in various Army posts throughout the United States. Although most of the overseas students gave only APO addresses, many of them did give information as to their location.

From Iwo Jima in the midst of the campaign there came a letter.

"At the time I am rather occupied with the Japs, but I'll get started on it as soon as time will permit.

"I hate to use this stationery in writing to you, but this is all there is available.

"I want to thank you for helping my father pick a subject for me to take."

From Bhamo, Burma, . . . "I received my English course from the Extension Department yesterday and am sending my first assignment today. I have been very anxious to get started on my college courses so will do my best to complete it in due time and get started on another.

"It has been some ten to twelve years since I have had any studying on any of my high school work except for my senior year at University High in 1939. So, if I seem a bit dull at times, I'm hoping it won't be too boring."

From somewhere in Belgium, . . . "Being in Belgium via England, France and Holland, and having become somewhat settled, I am striving again to continue the course which I set out to accomplish well over a year ago. I am sure you will understand my delay as my preparation for overseas duty was quite strenuous in addition to becoming conversant with foreign situations. I shall make every attempt to continue with regularity."

The students included officers and enlisted men from all branches of the service, many of whom were in combat units. Although a majority of them were Kentuckians or former students at the University, there were others who had never had any college work but expressed a desire to enter the University of Kentucky when they returned to civilian life, or were attracted by some particular course offered by it. Among the students were found those who lacked only one or two courses for the completion of their degree requirements, and others who wanted to make use of their free time toward a degree or wanted a course of particular interest to them to relieve their boredom during inactive periods. From our correspondence it was significant that many had become conscious of the value of an education for advancement in military service as well as in civilian life. The following excerpts from letters are typical:

"I would like for you to send me some information concerning the subjects I will be required to take in order to get the right credits for the degree in Electrical Engineering. I will also want to take a few extra commercial subjects if I have time.

"Things are fine with me and life here isn't too bad. Just hope it won't be too long before the war is over and I can get back to Lexington."

* * *

"I have enjoyed the course greatly. It is a fine diversion for men overseas. Lack of reference material is somewhat of a handicap, but you certainly obtain mastery of the text when materials are limited. More assignments are forthcoming."

And still another wrote:

"Due to military requirements for the past two months I have been unable to keep a steady flow of lessons to your department. It seems that I have been all over Italy and France since my last lesson was mailed. However, my barracks bag appears to be stationary over there in the corner of my present residence, which means that I may pick up the old text again.

"Our stay in France has been pleasant enough under the present conditions. We have found the French people to be as gentle and courteous as one would find in the states. Many invitations have been extended to the American soldiers by the French to come and visit their homes. I have accepted quite a number of these invitations.

"Our food here has been sufficient, to say the least, and so far the weather is not like English weather."

And one apologetically said:

"Due to circumstances beyond my control, I have been unable to submit lessons for the past month or two. At present I am still on the waters and have been for some time. Books and material are packed in a box for overseas shipping and I am unable to have access to same—will not until destination is reached. Kindly bear with me in the temporary delay."

From the Pacific came this letter:

"Lessons have not been sent to you regularly. While in the states, we were busy getting ready to leave. Without a moment's notice we left and are now on Luzon.

"It has been very difficult for me to send lessons to you. During the rest periods, which were very short, lessons were worked out. I could not send them until I came back to my base. I have worked out a number of them which you will receive shortly.

"Thanks be to God the battle is over. We have won and soon the men in the service will return home.

"Some of the lessons may not be clear, but I did my best under conditions that I had to work them out."

When students had completed all of their assignments an examination was sent to their commanding officer or educational adviser to be administered. When a course had been completed successfully the instructor assigned the grade which was recorded at the University in the same manner as for civilian students. All papers and examinations were graded by University professors who taught the same courses to students in residence. After completing one course, many students registered immediately for another. One student, a senior near graduation at the time he went into the service, completed his requirements for a degree and then enrolled for a course in high school algebra in order to acquire thoroughness in that subject. Several students who were unable to complete their courses while in military service have completed them since their discharge. Those who were inactive for a period of twelve months from the date of their registration, were given a refund of part of their fees in accordance with the terms of our contract with the Armed Forces Institute.

From the many letters received, from personal conversations with men in the service, and returning veterans, one cannot doubt the wisdom of our government's providing correspondence courses to our men and women in military service. The service continues, but not on the same scale as before the close of hostilities. Before me are letters from an English student located in Pisa, Italy, another in Luzon, taking algebra, and a WAC nurse stationed at one of our government hospitals near Lexington, who is English, which is indicative of the geographical distribution of our military students at the present time.

President Donovan Discusses Crisis At The University

In a series of recent addresses before Lexington luncheon clubs, President Herman Lee Donovan has discussed the current crisis at the University where housing, classrooms, laboratories, instructors, food and other essentials are inadequate in numbers to accommodate the student body of more than 6,600.

President Donovan has told his fellow citizens that the "University is attempting to meet all the problems" and would continue with "her feet on the ground and her eyes on the stars." He has asked patience and forbearance of faculty, students and parents, and said he would ask the next General Assembly for $10,000,000 in state appropriations for dormitories, classrooms and laboratories.

"Why isn't it time," said the University president, "for Kentucky to recognize that the state needs a great state University?"

The following editorials were published in the Lexington Herald and the Louisville Courier Journal after President Donovan's series of talks, and are being republished here to show the alumni of the University that the metropolitan press of the state is earnestly backing President Donovan's program.

Kentucky Is Faced By a New Emergency

Dr. Herman L. Donovan, president of the University of Kentucky, has asked a pertinent question. Why isn't it time, he wants to know, for Kentucky to recognize that the State needs a great university?

There never was a time when the question was more in point. The old campus in Lexington is bursting at the seams with the extraordinary enrollment of 6,500, and more boys and girls trying to get in. This is 1,000 more than had been expected, 3,000 more than the normal number of students, even for whom the dormitories, class rooms and laboratories made a tight fit.

The enrollment is a matter of mingled pride and embarrassment. Such an increase is the dream and the pleasurable thrill of every State university. It vindicates the feeling of every proper educator that higher education is desirable and that there should be an eager zest in the search for it. Here is the proof that it is necessary to build higher and stronger to accommodate the demand. And yet when the day of hope comes to the University of Kentucky, it finds too little housing, too insufficient a faculty, too few facilities and equipment even for routine operations.

Something will have to be done, or else opportunity will be lost to the State on one hand, to many of its young people on the other. Responsibility will have been surrendered, in an avowal of an inadequacy of spirit and of will. And retrogression will have begun.

To those who know even the slightest of the requirements for great modern universities, the proposal of Dr. Donovan to ask the State for $10,000,000 for construction to match the need will not seem in the least grandiose.

• Courier-Journal, Sept. 28, 1946

The Bigger Game

All those who visit the University of Kentucky and Lexington in connection with Saturday's football game with Ole Miss may not have the opportunity to study the needs of the University itself, or to hear what its problems are. As busy as he is, there is one man who, we are sure, is going to tell that story to all that he can reach. This is Dr. H. L. Donovan, the fighting head of the University.

In quarters that could well accommodate slightly less than 4,000 there are more than 6,000 signed up for the University of Kentucky this year, some under the restriction that they can attend if rooms can be found. Four hundred boys are sleeping in the gymnasium and other makeshift places, on bunks such as they knew in wartime. Cooperstown is completed, Shawneetown under way and barracks are being built. Faculty members are in some cases residing at some distance. If there were ample facilities there would be 10,000 students at the University of Kentucky this year.

Dr. Donovan pays high tribute to the character and the zealotness of the GI's who have returned. They want an education badly enough to accept a situation such as is faced.

Careful and competent analysis of the future gives no indication that there will be a drop in enrollment in the near future. For several years there will be some overcrowding but every effort will be made to meet it through temporary construction now. The University of Kentucky needs permanent buildings for classrooms and dormitories that will accommodate a minimum of 8,000 students. The largest prewar enrollment was under 4,000.

Dr. Donovan wants and asks the support of the people of Ken-prediction of 5,500 students by over 1,000 and represents better than a 50 per cent increase over the highest previous enrollment of 4,297 registered last spring quarter. Some further indication of the size of the U. K. student body is the fact that it is more than 70 per cent larger than the normal pre-war enrollment of approximately 3,800.

Classroom space, teaching staff, library space and eating facilities are taxed to capacity by the unanticipated increase, University officials declared. The housing situation, however, is all but "licked", according to Dean of the University, Leo M. Chamberlain.

The greater portion of emergency veterans' housing had been finished by the opening of the term. Although 400 freshmen were forced to sleep on cots set up in the Men's Gymnasium temporarily, they soon were moved to barracks. No student was allowed to enter who did not have his own or University-operated housing facilities, Dean Chamberlain said.

Sam H. Ridgway, Jr., a graduate of the University in 1923 with the degree of Bachelor of Science in Mechanical Engineering and an employee of the Southern Bell Telephone Company since 1925, has been released from the U. S. Army with the rank of colonel and has returned to his home in Shepherdsville, Ky., and to the Southern Bell Telephone Company as division schedule supervisor with headquarters in Louisville.

Prior to entering Army service Mr. Ridgway was district plant manager for the company, located in New Orleans, La. He served with the U. S. Signal Corps from 1942 until he received his honorable discharge, first in Washington, D. C., then in Philadelphia and finally in the Pacific theatre, where he was attached to Headquarters, Southwest Sector, Army Communications Service. He was in service for 46 months.

His wife is the former Florence Amanda Van Bever who attended the University in 1938-39. They have two daughters, Barbara Anne, four, and Carol, who will be two in November.

Former Classmate Writes Of Graham K. McCorkle's Achievements

By WARNER SAYERS, EX. '09

Don't you remember when we were boys, everyone of us wanted to be something, generally a policeman, a fireman, a street car conductor, or a railroad engineer, when we grew up? But not so for Graham McCorkle—he wanted to be a telephone man.

Graham King McCorkle was born in Eminence, Henry county, Kentucky, attended the public schools there, and during that period, at the age of 15, became office boy of the local telephone company. After a while he had been advanced to be the night telephone operator in Eminence. From Eminence, he left to attend the Kentucky State College, now the University of Kentucky, and entered the Department of Mechanical and Electrical Engineering. During vacation periods, Graham McCorkle went to Chicago and worked for the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., stringing wires and doing other outside telephone work.

After graduation, he went on his first job with the Western Electric Co., in Chicago and as best we can remember his salary was $30 a month.

In June, 1911, he married Frances McFarland (Fanny Mc), daughter of the well known Lexington banker, J. E. McFarland, and the late Mrs. McFarland. The McCorkles reside at 1501 Hinman Avenue, Evanston, Ill., and have two daughters, one of whom is Mrs. William Mesiek, of Evanston.

From the Western Electric Co., Mr. McCorkle became associated again with the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., but was re-

Heard At University
Summer Exercises

"We could not be indifferent to the war, and we can not be indifferent to the peace without exposing ourselves to the risks of another war," the Very Rev. Thomas A. McCarty, dean of Villa Madonna College, Covington, declared in an address at summer commencement exercises August 23 at the University of Kentucky.

Speaking to 190 members of the graduating class, who were presented diplomas by Dr. H. L. Donovan, University president, Father McCarty, whose subject was "Planning for Peace," said:

"It was a people's war and it must be a people's peace. The governments of the United Nations have taken cognizance of that fact, and we all realize that whatever terms of peace are eventually resolved, one great factor will determine its success or failure. It is the consideration that must be given its moral values as predicated upon the dignity of man and his right to evolve his own destiny."

World War II was preceded by a period of "vain-glorious self-sufficiency and a world-wide wave of intellectual isolationism that tolerated rise of dictatorships with an amazing lack of concern," the speaker, a native of Lexington, stated. "It was a period marked by extremes—by the so-called golden years of prosperity and by the greatest depression."

He said that men who were engaged in the latest conflict were victims of the "fatal, time-honored error of attempting to regiment—if not plan—the lives of succeeding generations," which was committed after the last war.

"However, we can and must lay a firm foundation for a world organization to guide and help insure the peace of future generations," he said. "We must make that effort and with God's help we shall succeed."

Continuing, he said, "To achieve a semblance of world order, it will first be necessary to educate the people to an awareness of their individual and collective responsibilities in the democratic system of government . . .

"We share with all the plain peoples of the world a common desire for peace. The plain peoples of Russia, Belgium, France, England, China and Japan want peace. Certainly we do."

Lt. Col. John L. Carter, acting commandant of the University Military Department, served as marshal for the exercises and ushers were first-year advanced ROTC cadets.

The program included an organ prelude and postlude by Mrs. Lela W. Cullis; invocation and benediction by the Rev. John K. Johnson, pastor of the Maxwell Street Presbyterian church; solo, "Agnus Dei," by Lucille Haney; charge to the graduating class by Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain; the national anthem and postlude, "My Old Kentucky Home," played on the carillonic bells.

Second Summer Term Registers 2,908

All Kentucky counties except Lyon and Metcalfe, were represented in the geographical distribution of students attending the University of Kentucky during the second summer term, Miss Maple Moores, assistant registrar, reported.

In addition, the University's record 2,908 students came from 33 other states, the District of Columbia, three United States' territories and four foreign countries.

The Alumni office on June 7, 1946 witnessed much rejoicing and hand-shaking when the classes of '06 and '11 celebrated their respective 40th and 35th reunions.

These were the first classes to hold reunions on the University campus according to the Dix Plan, which was adopted by the Alumni Association several years ago, since 1941. In accordance with this plan notices also were sent to the active members of the classes of '44; '40; '39; '38; '28; '21; '20; '19; '03; '02; '01; '00; '96. However only the classes of '06 and '11 held organized reunions although many members of the other classes returned for the activities of commencement week. Special events for the class of 1906 were arranged by H. C. Robinson, of Lexington, and included an overnight trip to Herrington Lake and a dinner at the Lafayette Hotel.

Mr. Ernest L. Becker, of Cincinnati, Ohio, arranged the program for the class of 1911, which included a luncheon at the Lafayette Hotel. Both groups were honored by President and Mrs. Donovan at the Commencement tea held at Maxwell Place on Thursday, June 6th.

of the Bell Telephone Co. of the state of Maryland, with headquarters in Baltimore. From Baltimore, he returned to Chicago to be with his old company, the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and became vice president in charge of public relations. In the latter part of August 1946, he was made president of the Illinois Bell Telephone Co.

Being quite interested in public affairs, after his return to Chicago, he was made president of one of the largest civic bodies in the Chicago area—the Chicago Community Chest—and also belongs to a number of town and country clubs.

The 1908 issue of The Kentuckian says, "Graham King McCorkle, Bachelor Mechanical Engineering—Pi Kappa Alpha—Pan-Hellenic Council—State University Band—Staff, Mechanical and Engineering Record—Senior Poker Club and Dance Committee. Thesis: An Experimental Study of Telephony."

Just before graduation, it says. "Mr. McCorkle made this statement for the college annual, 'I am one of the Wildcat Quartette which gives a matinee every afternoon in the Senior Drawing Room. I entered State with the intention of reforming the institution and by the aid of my magnificent voice in the choir of the Central Christian Church and YMCA revivals—have done much for the promotion of religious sentiments throughout the College.

Government Praises U.K War Research

Experiments Termed "Valuable Service"

Special bacteria research, undertaken by the University of Kentucky during the war, has been singled out for special praise by A. N. Richards, chairman of the committee on medical research, Office of Scientific Research and Development, Washington, D. C., according to a letter received by President H. L. Donovan, during the summer.

The letter from Mr. Richards points out that University of Kentucky research in salmonella produced a valuable service in the war effort and a permanent contribution to medical knowledge.

Salmonella is the term applied to a large group of intestinal bacteria, including the typhoid bacillus of man and that which causes contagious abortion of mares and pullorum of chickens.

The letter, made public by Dr. Donovan, follows:

"It is my privilege to attempt to express to you, and through you to the University of Kentucky, the grateful appreciation of the committee . . . for the assistance which the committee has received from certain members of your faculty and staff in the fulfillment of the responsibilities delegated to it by the President in 1941 in the order which created the committee.

"Under the direction of Dr. P. R. Edwards (bacteriologist in the animal pathology department), typing sera for identification of strains of salmonella were prepared throughout the war. These sera are not available from other sources and have been useful to the medical and laboratory departments of the armed forces. Indeed, the greater portion of these sera have been distributed through the Army Medical School.

"In the course of the work a number of new variations of the salmonella group of organisms, apt to be associated with episodes of food poisoning, have been identified and described in the literature of bacteriology.

"The new knowledge gained through the efforts of Dr. Edwards and his professional and technical colleagues not only strengthened our war effort and increased our national security but has provided additions of permanent value to the theory and practice of medicine."

Dr. Edwards explained that to date no specific preventive or cure for salmonella infections had been found. There are many vaccines and bacterins on the market, made up wholly or in part of salmonella, but in most cases they are of doubtful value, he said.

U. K. Netters No. 1 Team In Country, Sports Scribes Say

COACH ADOLPH RUPP
Kentucky

By JIM DANCE

Coach Adolph Rupp's dismay over the burning of one of his tobacco barns, has been alleviated somewhat by the prospects for the 1946-47 edition of the Wildcat basketball team. The Wildcats, winner of the National Invitational Basketball Tournament last year, lost one man by graduation and one by way of selective service. Wilbur Schu, the only man who didn't make the all S.E.C. team last year, graduated last spring and Jack Parkinson, picked for several All-American teams, went the way of most all manhood when he was inducted shortly after the end of last season. It seems that these men will be replaced with little loss of strength, as several former stars have returned to their alma mater.

Alex Groza and Bob Brannum have recently been discharged from the Army and are working out daily as is Jim Jordan, a transfer student from North Carolina who was also named on several all-American teams as a result of his spectacular play with North Carolina. Although Jordan played three years with the N. C. team, he is eligible for four years of play at Kentucky. This bit of good news is explained by the rule that participation in college sports is not counted against a player's eligibility if the participation was during service in the armed forces. Since Jordan attended no college prior to his entry into the Navy, and since all his college competition was performed while a member of the Navy, he has, under the rules, four complete years to play.

Bob Brannum made all-American while playing for the 'Cats in 1944 and teamed with Alex Groza on one of the outstanding service teams of the 1945 season. Bob still has his eye on the basket and has been popping them in from all angles, while Groza has grown two inches during his absence and has little trouble in getting the ball off the backboard. The return of these stars plus the members left from last year's best-in-the-nation squad had caused the forecasts on basketball to name Kentucky as the number one team in the nation.

The decision of the forecasters was perhaps one of the easiest things they will have to do this year, for when a team is forced to keep a man on the second team who was one of the first five of a national championship ensemble, there must be a lot of power around somewhere. Evidently there is, because, although Coach Rupp hasn't announced any plans for the starting combination, it seems evident that he will play the three returning service men and he has three more from last year's starting five. There will probably be about 10 men on the first five, if such a thing is possible, for Rupp has the material to substitute with little or no worries as to any deficiency in ability.

Injuries Fatal To Lt. William Maxedon

First Lieut. William H. D. Maxedon of Lexington, a graduate of the University in the class of 1942, died September 25 at the Fitzsimmons General Hospital, in Denver, Colo., as a result of complications resulting from injuries sustained while taking a course in advanced tactics at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Lieutenant Maxedon was an active member of the Alumni Association, and while attending the University was captain of the Confederate Squad of Pershing Rifles; an officer in Pershing Rifles and a member of the rifle team. He was an ROTC regimental executive officer with the rank of cadet lieutenant colonel.

The young officer was a veteran of several months of overseas duty, having fought with the 103rd Division of the Seventh Army in Europe. After his return to the United States he was assigned to the 49th Division and later was attached to headquarters of the Third

'42 Alumnus Returns To Civilian Life

An interesting letter has been received in the office from Albert C. Wasser, '42, Newport, Ky., who has recently been discharged from service and who has accepted a position as assistant to the office manager of Joseph T. Ryerson and Sons Steel Company, Cincinnati.

Mr. Wasser spent three years in the U. S. Army Signal Corps two of which were spent in the central and western Pacific areas at Hawaii, Guam and Saipan. At Guam he worked in a joint Army-Navy Signal Center, the largest in the Pacific. This outfit handled all communications for the western Pacific area plus all 20th Air Force communications during the bombing of Japan.

Corps, Camp Polk, La., with which he remained until his death. He received his Army commission through the ROTC after his graduation in June 1942.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Maxedon, Lexington; two sisters, Mrs. John A. Henderson and Miss Frances Ann Maxedon; two brothers, Capt. James A. Maxedon, stationed in Washington, D. C., and Thomas H. Maxedon, Lexington.

Fowler Named Ass't. Attorney General

Ben Baylis Fowler, 30, of Frankfort, former infantry combat officer, has been appointed an assistant attorney general.

A native of Christian county, Fowler was graduated from the University of Kentucky Commerce College in 1937 and from the University of Virginia law school in 1940.

In June, 1941, he entered the Army as a second lieutenant and was discharged a major in Dec. 1945. He served in Hawaii and in France, Belgium and Germany with Gen. George Patton's Third Army.

While on terminal leave late last year, he went to work as a law clerk for Atty. Gen. Eldon S. Dummit. He was commissioned an assistant attorney general in the office of the clerk of the Court of Appeals August 1.

His mother, Mrs. W. T. Fowler, lives in Lexington and his wife, the former Eleanor Randolph, a graduate of the University in the class of 1938, is a former resident of Lexington.

E. C. O'Rear II, '32,
Engineer For State

Edward Clay O'Rear, II, of Frankfort, a graduate of the University in the class of 1932, has joined the State Public Service Commission as a staff engineer.

He is the son of Col. J. T. H. O'Rear, U. S. A. retired, Los Angeles, and grandson of former Appellate Judge E. C. O'Rear, Frankfort.

Mr. O'Rear worked for General Electric and Ohio Edison following his graduation, and entered the Army in 1942 as a first lieutenant. He was discharged last April as a lieutenant colonel. He served a year in China as commanding officer of the 570th Signal Battalion.

Profession Honors

DOUGLAS DICK

From Dot Tellitall, clever young columnist of the Louisville Courier Journal, comes the information that Douglas Dick, former University of Kentucky student from Versailles, Ky., is "the 1946 male Cindarella story."

Says Dot: "Hollywood Producer Hal Wallis bumped into him last year in a New York theatrical agent's office, when Doug was looking for a Broadway job, after receiving a medical discharge from the Navy. Hal sent Doug special delivery to Hollywood to be screen tested for the role of Sam in the movie version of Lillian Helman's play, "The Searching Wind," released in July. Screen tests of several young men were shown to the women employees of Paramount, and they unanimously voted Doug for the lead.

Army Vet Takes Postgraduate Work

Dr. Earl P. Oliver of Louisville, a graduate of the University of Kentucky in 1940, who spent 22 months in the European theater, has enrolled in a postgraduate course in dermatology at Harvard University.

Dr. Oliver is a graduate of the University of Louisville School of Medicine, and at the time of his return to inactive duty held the rank of major in the Army.

Mrs. Gamble Dick, and his older brother, Gamble, Jr., moved to Versailles. Several years ago his father came to Louisville and is living here now, but his brother moved to Tucson, Ariz.

"Dick went to the University of Kentucky for a year and was one of the leading lights in the school's theater, Guignol. The next year he went to the University of Arizona in Tucson, where he kept up his dramatic career in the Little Theater. After this, he concentrated completely on dramatic schooling, attending drama school in Long Island and New York City. When Pearl Harbor came, he was still in a New York school. He enlisted and stayed in the Navy three years. When he was discharged, he went to Tucson to rest, but love of the theater even got him on vacation and he starred in Tucson's Little Theater production of "The Hasty Heart." From there he went to New York, where he didn't hang around long for a lucky break.

"The vital statistics: He is 25, six feet, 148 pounds, has light brown hair, blue-green eyes. Hobbies: He plays the piano and dashes off a few songs now and then to break the monotony."

Prominent Alumnus Noted In His Field

A brochure from the St. Louis College of Pharmacy and Allied Sciences points to Dr. George F. Reddish, head of the bacteriology department and graduate of the University of Kentucky with the bachelor of science degree in 1919, as one of the most prolific members of the school's faculty.

Dr. Reddish, according to the article, has had 52 research papers published in scientific journals and five additional papers presented before scientific and professional societies. He initiated and organized the present activity of the Food and Drug Administration in the control of antiseptics and developed official methods for testing antiseptics and disinfectants. These methods have been reprinted in most recent editions of American textbooks on bacteriology. He developed satisfactory methods for testing fungicides, such methods being recognized in this country. The forthcoming Encyclopedia on Chemical Technology will feature a chapter by Dr. Reddish on antiseptics, disinfectants and fungicides.

"He has held many professional appointments and has held office in the National Association of Insecticide and Disinfectant Manufacturers, the Scientific Section of the Proprietary Association of America, the Society of American Bacteriologists, the Associated Drug and Chemical Industries of Missouri, and is also a Fellow in the American Public Health Association."

Dr. Reddish holds the Doctor of Philosophy degree from Yale University and from 1922 to 1924 was associate professor of bac-

Retires After 22 Years At Morehead

Charles O. Peratt who has been a teacher at Morehead College for more than twenty-two years retired at the close of the summer quarter.

Mr. Peratt was born in Nicholas County, January 7, 1876. At the age of eleven he moved with his family to Fleming county where his parents died and where most of his relatives still reside. He attended the University of Kentucky from 1899 to 1904 where he received his preparatory and college education. He began teaching in the Fleming county schools, after his graduation from the University. After one year's teaching in Louisiana, he returned to Kentucky and became principal of the elementary school at Junction City, in Boyle county. He taught there for two years then went to Paducah to teach English and history in the high school.

In 1908 he became a teacher in the Threlkheld Private School for Boys, in Nicholasville. Teaching five years there he then was principal of the county high school at Hillsboro. From 1915 to 1918 he held the position of principal at Elizaville. The next year was spent in Columbia University where he received his A. M. (Master of Arts) degree. Previous to this he had attained his Ph. B. (Bachelor of Philosophy) degree at the University of Chicago.

For the next two years he again taught at the Threlkheld school. Mr. Peratt went to Morehead in 1923 and has been there ever since with the exception of one year's leave of ab-

Mr. Peratt was married in 1919 to Miss Ethel Fisher of Carlisle, Kentucky. He has one daughter and two infant grandchildren who now reside in California.

Committee Thanks Mr. Bonnyman

The executive committee of the Alumni Association in monthly meeting on September 9, passed the following resolutions on the gift of a fine set of carillon bells which has been presented to the University of Kentucky by Alexander Bonnyman of Knoxville, Tenn., in memory of his son, Alexander Bonnyman, Jr., who lost his life in World War II.

"Few gifts have come to the University of Kentucky which have so directly affected the members of the Alumni Association as have the carillon chimes which were recently presented by Alexander Bonnyman of Knoxville, Tenn., in memory of his son, Alexander Bonnyman, Jr.

"Many of us knew young Sandy Bonnyman. Handsome, virile, filled with the joy of living, this valuable young American gave his life in the service of his country. All of us know his father, Alexander Bonnyman, Sr., know his fine traits of loyalty to his University and to his Alumni Association, recognize the tenderness of the gift in memory of his son.

"The executive committee of the University of Kentucky Alumni Association, now in meeting assembled, is deeply touched by the generosity of the donor and by the significance of the carillon bells which will forever be a reminder to future generations of the loss this nation has suffered in the death of such a valuable citizen as Alexander Bonnyman, Jr.

"Therefore be it resolved that the executive committee of the

Newell M. Wilder

Newell M. Wilder, 38, a Petroleum Exploration geologist and engineer at Wichita Falls, Texas, who formerly was with the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, died August 26 in Wichita Falls of a brain tumor, following an operation.

Mr. Wilder was a graduate of the University in 1933 and held the Master of Science degree from the University, obtained in 1935. He moved with his wife and two children to Wichita Falls June 1 after four year's service with the Army, in which he held the rank of major.

He was a member of the Kentucky football team and is reported to have been the last Kentucky player to carry the ball in the last football game the Wildcats played with Centre College in 1929.

Prior to entering Army service he was a member of the University geology department and then was named petroleum engineer with the State Department of Mines and Minerals with headquarters in Lexington.

In October 1936 he went with Petroleum Exploration with headquarters in Lexington, remaining with that concern until the start of the war, and returning to it after his military release.

Mr. Wilder's body was taken to his former home of Corbin for funeral service August 28, and thence to Sauquoit, N. Y., Mrs. Wilder's home town, for burial. He is survived by his widow, the former Gertrude Skinner, two daughters, Betsy, nine, and Jane, seven.
