Our Guest Columnist will be contributing reviews from time to time, and we will consider for publication book notices submitted by the library staff. We will be looking forward to finding out what librarians really read.

This week, the Best Seller Candidate is our new reference addition to the library, Social Science Citation Index (by the Same People Who Brought You... Science Citation Index). This index is not used as a subject approach reference tool; instead the user begins with a reference [e.g. Ranganathan 57 Prolegema Library] which will then lead the user to sources that have cited the referenced article [e.g., Jones K.P. JAM SC Inf. 24 157 73]. The rationale behind citation indexing is the speed of citation indexing over subject analysis which, of course, means the information is available to the user long before that in a subject analysis index. We urge librarians and patrons to examine and make use of this valuable reference tool. If not a Best Seller, then, at least, a Best User Tool in the Library.

DIRECTOR'S NOTE:

I have been asked to supply a note for the staff bulletin. I would like to briefly outline the reorganization plans proposed to go into effect by the beginning of the upcoming fiscal year. An abbreviated organization chart follows:

This structure is patterned after the revised system at Columbia University. Additional reorganization may be necessary when SOLINET implementation begins. I hope that this new structure will be the first phase of a program designed to provide expanded library and information services for the University. The administrative vacancies have been discussed by the department heads and are tentatively filled, except for heads of the Services and Resources Divisions. Both of these are scheduled to remain vacant for the present time, but I would be pleased to learn of any staff members interested in either position. Further information on the director's office staff will be forthcoming soon.

The known and anticipated professional vacancies to be filled for the coming fiscal year include positions in:

1. Reference
2. Cataloging
3. Acquisitions
4. Biological Sciences (fall 1974)

If some of the positions are filled from within the University library system then, of course other vacancies will occur and they will be announced.

If you have an interest in any of the positions noted above please make an appointment with me as soon as possible to discuss your interest. Positions not filled from within the library system will be advertised and recruitment done on a national basis. Please feel free to see me concerning the reorganization proposal or any other matter relating to personnel recruitment or selection.

PERSONNEL -- Appointments: Jean Gooduck, class. IV, Agriculture; Antoinette Venable, class. VI, GPD and Marilyn Brown, class. V, CSR.

Transfer: Sandra Spahn from CSR to Education Library.

Promotion: Beverly Howard, CSR from class. V to class. VI.

Position Openings: class. VI, Engineering (Open March 11); class. V, CSR (Open now).

(UPI)--A mild-mannered librarian at Michigan State University has launched what could be called the "Librarian Liberation Movement". David Taylor said he and many of his colleagues are angry over the seeming whimsy publishers use in changing the names of their publications. The group Taylor formed is called LUTFCSUSTC. That stands for Librarians United to Fight Costly, Silly, Unnecessary Serial Title Changes.

BRANCH LIBRARIES -- Agriculture Library: Toni Powell has been acting in the capacity of a teaching-librarian for the College of Agriculture. At the request of some of the faculty, she has been guest lecturer in several classes. The topic discussed is use of the library in general and specific indexes requested by the faculty member. Two lectures have been given so far and three more are planned.

The GREEN BEAN resumes publication with this issue. We on the Library Publication Board want to make it a truly representative staff journal. This means it should include book notes, news notes, and views of the library personnel. Please send in all publication material to Suzanne O'Neill, Tobacco and Health Information Services, Medical Library, M-72L, by the Wednesday before publication. Next due date, Wednesday, March 6, 1974.

Anyone interested in joining our editorial staff? Call a member of the Publications Board: Dottie Green, 73831; Anita Morse, 75919; or Suzanne O'Neill, 35451.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry should be supported by a valid receipt or invoice. This ensures transparency and allows for easy verification of the data.

In the second section, the author outlines the various methods used to collect and analyze the data. This includes both primary and secondary data collection techniques. The primary data was gathered through direct observation and interviews with key personnel. Secondary data was obtained from existing reports and databases.

The analysis of the data revealed several key trends and patterns. One significant finding was the correlation between certain variables, which suggests a causal relationship. This insight is crucial for understanding the underlying factors influencing the outcomes.

Based on the findings, the document proposes several recommendations for improving the current processes. These include implementing more robust data management systems and enhancing the training of staff involved in data collection.

Finally, the document concludes by highlighting the overall significance of the study. It provides a clear framework for future research and offers practical advice for organizations looking to optimize their data-driven decision-making processes.
