While Katherine Christian solemnly watched the service for the Sept. 11 victims at Memorial Hall amphitheater, a few students chatted on cell phones.

While the UK Chorale led the group in singing "The Star-Spangled Banner," some students whispered and giggled with their friends.

singing "The Star-Spangled Banner," some students whispered and giggled with their friends.

While acting Provost Mike Nietzel spoke about the effects of the terrorist atacks, one student read a chemistry textbook.

One year after the Sept. 11 attacks, the UK community gathered to remember those lost. Some students cried and clutched wadded tissues in their hands. Others were preoccupied with friends and acted as if they had moved on.

Mary Bolin-Reece, the director of the Counseling and Testing Center, said people deal with grief in different ways.

"It's normal to have feelings and normal not to show them," Bolin-Reece.

Other students were worried the traged, would soon be forgotten.

"Unfortunately, the American memory is not the best in the world," said Evan Sullivan, a political science sophomore.

At ground zero, the names took precedence, 2,801 of them read aloud, from Gordon Aamoth Jr. to Igor Zukelman. Patriotic resolve held sway at the Pentagon. And in a field near Shanksville, Pa., grief was partially offset by pride.

At each of the three sites, and in communities across the nation and world Wednesday, Americans and their allies relived the staggering events of one year ago and remembered those who died.

"They were our neighbors, our husbands, our children, our sisters, our brothers and our wives. They were our countrymen and our friends. They were our countrymen and our friends. They were families at the site of the World Trade Center.

New York's roll call of the dead and missing began after a moment of silence at 8:46 am. ETJ, the time when the first terrorist-piloted plane struck the trade center. It took 2 1/2 hours — 50 minutes longer than planned — for 197 readers to complete the list of names.

While wistful cello music accompanied the ground zero overmony a booming rendition of the national anthem set the tone for commemorations at the Pentagon, where 184 people died when American Flight 77 smashed into the building.

"Though they died in tragedy, they did not die in vain," declared President Bush, a fist cleenched for emphasis. "As long as terrorists and citators plot against our lives and our liberty, they will be opposed by the United States Army, Navy, Coast Guard, Air Force and Marines!"

Test of Florida election system fails

Test of Florida election system fails MIAMI — Despite a $22 million renovation, Florida's new election system crashed in an embarrassment that, like the 2000 election, lelf voters wondering whether their votes counted, candidates pondering recounts and everyone asking who's to blame. "You guys have NO idea what a mess this has been," state election monitor Mike Lindsey wrote his Tallahassee bosses in a pre-dawn e-mail from Broward County on Wednesday. "The mess was the result of no planning, poor leadership, lack of 'process ownership' and passing the buck." The debacle, echoing the 2000 presidential state, drew even more scrutiny because once again, Florida had a high-profile race that was too close to call. With 1 percent of precincts still to report by late Wednesday, former Attorney General Janet Renortalled Tampa lawyer Bill McBride for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination by 1,000 votes out of more than 1.3 million cast. The voting problems ranged from technical to human error.

KARACHI, Pakistan — Police commandos fought a pitched battle with al-Qaida suspects holed up in an apartment Wednesday, with combat spilling out not adopting rooftops. Two suspects were killed and five captured in the fighting, as Pakistan stepped up pressure on the remnants of the terrorist movement a year after it made its mark on the world. Six officers, including two intelligence agents, were woulded when police stormed the top-floor apar mount of the street and on the roofs of nearby apartment blocks. Two of the wounded were reported in critical condition. Police said one of the dead milliants and one of those arrested were Arabs, but their nationalities were not known. The rest were Afghans, he said.

The tape read.

The tape was also inscribed with the initials of two men and his hometown fire department.

Summers is from Long Island, N.Y. The men were his little League coach and the father-figure of a close friend. They were firefighters who died in the World Trade Center.

Summers, a journalism freshman, sat with his high school classmates on Sept. It, 2001, and listened to the events unfold on the scanner of a friend who was training as a volunteer firefighter. Later, Summers would wonder why schools around the country were dismissed. He and his classmates had nowhere else to go. Summers' classmates frantically called family and friends, cried and listened to radios. "You could see the smoke starting to cloud over our town – and we live an hour away," Summers said. Miller was in the subway when the first tower was hit. Earlier that morning, she had decided to spoil herself by putting on a pair of new sneakers for the commute to work. She said she is glad sause she walked all over Manhattan that day. Miller climbed in an abandoned bus when the towers began to collapse. "It (the towers collapsing) didn't sound like it did no TV. It sounded like a third plane nose diving. We werelike, "Where is it? Where is the third plane?" she said. She and the others in the bus climbed in to escape the air that had become choked with ash and debris. A man on the bus had a pager hooked to the Internet. At his high school, Summers said his teachers were doing the best they could to help the students deal with the events.

As Summers' town clouded from the smoke, Miller's horror culminated with the smell. It was the smell of the buildings, the plane fuel and the people. The smell crept into buildings so that her office smelled of the attacks months later. It was so overpowering that, when walking past mounds of dead fish in East Manhattan, Miller felt as though she was finally breathing fresh air.

Miller reached her mother on the phone that day and gave her the phone numbers of two women she had met in the street. The two women had escaped the Trade Center and couldn't get in touch with their families to tell them that they were alive. One woman's husband was in the hospital recovering in the hospital recovering

"He began to have chest pains, which indicated that a heart attack was coming. Just then, news got to him that his wife was alive. She said it helped him recover more quickly than expected." Miller said. "She says that we saved his life."

Now, a year later, Summers wears his arm band.
"Ifelt it was a good thing to do to remember and get their names down," he said. He skipped class yester-day morning. It was too hard to go, to tear himself away from the TV.

Miller counts her busy law school days as a blessing.

Since the networks won't likely re-enact Farnsworth's big moment, you'll have to visualize it for yourself. The setting, his modest San Francisco lab where, on Sept. 7, 1927, the 21-year-old self-taught genius transmitted the image of a horizontal line to a re-

Celebrate 3-0 start a bit early

Last year's 'Gator Roast' was an unparalleled success — the biggest campus event of the year for students. This year, as our Wildcats are steamrolling their way into a

This year, as our steam rolling their way into a powerful Big Blue season of football, we are hosting 'Hoosier Daddy'? Friday before the Indiana game Saturday. 'Hoosier Daddy'? will be a monumental street party, on Euclid between Limestone and Martin Luther King Boulevard. But it is just the beginning. Student Gramman is bringing year. Big Student Gramman is bringing year. 'Hoosier Daddy'? 'kicks off the Big Year of Bashes in grand fashion. Students will be entertained by the sounds of Lexington favorite Voodoo Symphony's musical style has been compared to artists such as Dave Matthews Band, Tom Petty, Ben Folds Five and even Elton John. Their skilled musicianship and versatile style has won them legions of local fans who like to hear good music. Voodoo Symphony bass guitarist Steve Morgan promises, "This show will definitely be one to remember."

SG is providing all the popcorn you can eat, Peps products, lemonade and water. To express our patriotism and American pride, we will be distributing free red, white and blue Maria Gras-style beads throughout the crowd.

President and Mirs. Todd have graclously made special arrangements as they return from overseas to be without for the condition of the gramman and all of SC. I urge you to come out Priday night as we celebrate asking our opponent in Saturday's game "Hoosier Daddy".

School and state cooperating well

Lexington's traffic problem may never be solved, but help is on the way.

A proposed 1.25-mile extension of Newtown Pike through South Broadway and onto the UK campus was announced last week by University, city, state and federal offi-

The most noticeable difference will be the decrease in downtown traffic.

Now, if you plan on heading north or west, it is almost impossible to reach 1-75 from campus without traveling through downtown.

But if this extension is completed, students will have access to Newtown Pike from campus, effectively bypassing downtown.

And of course the extension would also ease travel from the insaid Monday that a potential New-town Pike extension had been dis-cussed for years, but this plan was the first to incorporate the needs of the neighborhoods the project will affect.

Construction won't begin until Construction won't begin until 2006, so there will be no immediate benefit for current UK students. However, future students and alumni who settle in Lexington could enjoy the wonders of a sub-stantial reduction of traffic conges-

Regardless of the fact that the project is in its earliest stages, there's hope to be gleaned from the progress that's been made so far.

It's encouraging to see that the city and state governments have been able to actually act in a cooperative manner with UK in the interest of bettoning the University. terest of bettering the University and the community.

This announcement is a step in the right direction. If the framework of the plan is justly observed, terstate to campus.

According to the plans, the proposed route would also benefit the communities the road will pass through — Davistown, Irishtown and Pralltown.

Lexington Mayor Pam Miller the right direction. If the framework of the plan is justly observed, and the needs of the nearby communities which will be most affected are truly addressed and satisfied, this plan could be a major shot in the arm for UK and Lexington.

So sorry you must read my musings

It seems human beings spend a good part of our lives saying I'm sorry. Ever worked at a restaurant or in the retail world? Ever dated? Ever stay out too late in high school? Ever come home too late and wake up the roommates?

The roommates?

Maybe I spend more time being sorry than most people, come to think of it. In light of that, here are a few things I feel warrant some kind of apology.

The athletics department should be sorry that UK basketball needs to recruit twice as many players than usual, because the staff must know that half the team will quit or get in trousing with the law.

know that half the team will quit or get in trou-ble with the law.

The NFL should be sorry that every single player feels compelled to draw attention to a 3-yard catch with a crazy dance or trash talking. I know football players get paid so much it clouds their vision, but Mr. Terrell Owens, that catch was your job. If you score the game winning touchdown, maybe then I'll allow you to celebrate.

The survival of the survival o this weekend. They are so horrible it's pathetic.

It's a sorry situation that the drinking age is 21.1 know of many responsible adults perfectly capable of making good decisions who cannot drink because they are not old enough. So lets lower the drinking age to 20 years and 380 days. That should be about right.

One day everyone may be sorry if we don't head into Iraq soon and take care of business. If the crazy leader of that country has the ability to make or buy nukes or chemical/biological weapons, it is time to make sure he will never et the chance to use them.

Vegetarians should be sorry for trying to make me feel bad for eating meat. They are called incisors. They are used for tearing your prey. Cows don't have these because they eat grass. I have these sharp teeth, I use them, leat cows.

The politics of small talk

I have no idea where I'm from. Not in the philosophical Sid-dhartha-like sense, but geographically one to UK and si people have asked me what should be a simple question: "Where are you from?"

I wish I could say I was from Louisville. I would answer with conflict.

was from Louisville. I would answer with confidence and authority,
"I'm from Louisville." From that point on the conversation could steer effortlessly into that person's feelings toward Louisville and there would be no awkwardness in the form of me trying to explain where Louisville is.
Lexington would be an even more desirable choice because then all I would have to say is 'here' and be done with the whole issue entirely.

But, alas, I am not from Louisville or Lexington. I am from Edgewood — a town that only the people who live there know about as it consists entrely of houses and, well, bigger houses.

Whenever I'm out of state I try to cheat the system by telling all who ask that I'm from Cincinnatt. This has mere and the system by telling all who ask that I'm from the system by telling all who ask that I'm from the system of the syst such as "The Greater Cincinnati Area," "The Tri-State Area" and other catch phrases which news-casters are fond of using, but everyone else thinks sound stupid. I tried "justsouthofCinncinnati" for an hour or two but reconsidered when I realized everyone I talked to thought I had some sort of speech impediment.

I've heard some students by-pass the sticky city-recognition dilemma by announcing their home is in a particular county. I have never understood this. Kentucky has 126 counties, only slightly fewer than Texas.

slightly fewer than Texas.

Perhaps my growing up so close to the border has put me at a disadvantage in this gigantic memory game, but I couldn't memorize where Madison County is if you paid me.

I guess I'm Just stuck with the vague and lifeless "Northern Kentucky."
