Talk About Tough

Watch those cleats dig in! No matter who wins the game, the grass gets a terrific beating.

It takes good turf like that of Kentucky's field to survive such treatment. Just any old grass seed won't produce good playing turf. A scientific blend of choice varieties—all first string material cleaned and re-cleaned to remove weeds and chaff—produced the University of Kentucky's fine field.

The big games in the country today are being played on Turf by Scott's.

On the Sidelines . . .

Our tsyle observer is on hand wherever well-dressed men gather. Fom the side lines of sport and business, he sketches Graves - Cox fashions in action . . . a new sport suit, a light weight crusher hat, a pair of double service brogues. Above all else, his sketches show the wide extent clothing from Graves, Cox and Company plays in the lives of Central Kentucky men.

ABOVE — Mr. J. K. M., prominent business man and sports enthusiast, likes the ease and comfort of this new Kuppenheimer double-breasted suit. He carries the Valgora topcoat.

RIGHT — Mr. R. L. B. combines a love for football with a knowledge of god clothes. He is sketched wearing the new Graco suit with two side vents.

WYNNE TURNS TO GOLF

Chet Wynne, head football coach and athletic director at the University of Kentucky, coached the Wildcat golf team to a State championship last spring. It was Wynne's first venture in golf coaching although he had coached almost everything else, including basketball and track.

After losing their first encounter, to Washington University of St. Louis, by 11 to 7, the Wildcats won from the University of Louisville by 16 to 2 and from the University of Cincinnati by 13 to 5. Then they lost to the University of Dayton by 17 to 1, to the University of Cincinnati by 16 to 2 and to the University of Louisville by 10 to 8.

The Wildcats won their last two matches, defeating Eastern by 10 1-2 to 7 1-2, and the University of Tennessee by 9 1-2 to 8 1-2. They ended the season by winning the State intercollegiate tournament at Louisville.

Frank LeRond McVey, Te Salulamus!

FRANK LEROND McVEY, PRESIDENT
UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY

Kentucky State University, formerly known as the Kentucky Agricultural and Mechanical College after its schism from Kentucky University, now Transylvania, was suffering from growing pains during the turbulent year of 1917.

Prior to that time the State University, which now boasts the title of University of Kentucky, was hardly the Oxford of America, nor could it honestly be dubbed the Harvard of the South, but it had prospects. The institution needed to expand; it wanted to expand, but it had to have someone at the helm to direct that expansion.

The board of trustees gave the matter deep thought. It interviewed numerous prospects for the post until finally it bethought itself of a young college president who was making a name for himself and for his institution, way up at the University of North Dakota. He was invited to confer with them. That man was Frank LeRond McVey, who has served as head of the University of Kentucky since 1917.

Dr. McVey found, on his arrival in Lexington, a university that was hardly a university at all. It possessed several colleges, that is true, but most of the buildings were crumbling with age and neglect; a small library housed an inadequate supply of volumes, there were no men's dormitories worthy of the name, there were not enough class rooms or laboratories, the curriculum was not designed to attract students and—the athletic department had to be content with a cracker box gymnasium and a football field with no stadium.

The football field then was the present practice field, on two sides of which were wooden bleachers apt to fall at any minute. When not in use by the football squad, the gridiron was converted into a baseball diamond as hard as brick. But Frank LeRond McVey went to work. It was a bitter struggle, what with wrangling funds from the State Legislature for necessary improvements and such, but he obtained results.

New buildings have sprung up all over the campus; new shops, new laboratories, new museums, plenty of class room space, one of the finest university libraries in the South, a student body that has grown by leaps and bounds, a beautiful campus—and a modern, adequate concrete stadium flanking an excellent football field, to say nothing of a basketball building capable of housing nearly 5,000 spectators.

And the stalwart young man who came here from the bleak tundras of North Dakota still is at the helm, safely guiding the good ship Kentucky through the shoals. He is a bit greyer now than he was in 1917, but there is no hint of a stoop in his erect, athletic figure; the twinkle still gleams in his eyes as he surveys his handiwork, and Kentucky is proud of Frank LeRond McVey.

We, who have sought education—and if we failed to find it, it was our own fault—at the University of Kentucky, respectfully take off our hats to Dr. McVey, scholar, educator, author, artist, administrator, and a real Kentucky gentleman.

Head Coach Chester Allen Wynne

Star fullback and world's champion high hurdler at Notre Dame, maker of championship football teams at Creighton and later at Auburn, native of Kansas but adopted Kentuckian, attorney-at-law, close friend and favorite pupil of the late Knute Rockne, the man all Kentucky is banking on to lead the Wildcats eventually to Southern football supremacy.

That is Chet Wynne.

This mild mannered, cultured gentleman who once shared the National football limelight with George Gipp in Rockne's backfield of the early 1920's, is entering on his third season at Kentucky with ambitions of turning out a team that will make Kentuckians everywhere glow with pride.

When Wynne came to the Blue Grass he found football in a deplorable state. Hope had all but died. Victories had been scarce. Friends had turned away. There was muttering by fans whose enthusiasm had curdled. Alumni turned their heads.

But there were still loyal friends of the Blue and White. These stretched out their arms toward the South, where Chet Wynne had performed the miracle of creating a great football machine on the deep Alabama plains. He heard their call and left Auburn and his successes there to start building all over again at Kentucky.

It was a dreary struggle for the Chetter. Material was scarce. Spirit on the campus was at a low ebb. He was faced with the toughest assignment of his career. But the Chetter was undaunted.

With a dissipated squad, Wynne turned out a fighting team his first season at Kentucky. Teams that had been defeating the Wildcats handily found the going hard. Kentucky was beginning to win back its self-respect. The Wildcats showed improvement in breaking even in a ten-game schedule.

When the second Wynne season started last fall at Lexington hope had been born again. The material was better but there was lack of reserves. The Wildcats were faced with a back-breaking schedule but, with Wynne at the helm they came through to win six of their ten games, showing gradual improvement. They were magnificent in defeat when they lost to Ohio State's great team by 19 to 6 at Columbus, and they won a world of respect in that game.

With two great stars, Bert Johnson, halfback, and Stanley Nevers, tackle, out because of injuries, the Kentuckians slumped after mid-season, but they came back to end the season in a blaze of glory in handing Tennessee a 27 to 0 defeat, the first Kentucky victory over the Volunteers in a decade and the worst beating taken by Tennessee in years. That victory did more to arouse enthusiasm at Kentucky than anything that had happened in a generation. It proved that those who believed in Wynne were not mistaken.

Wynne had given Kentucky the team it had hoped for — a team that fought from the first kick-off to the last whistle. It drove on the offense; it fought for every inch on defense. It was a TEAM.

Another year is at hand, and a new Kentucky spirit has been born to give encouragement to a Kentucky's own team. The dissatisfaction of the old days is gone; a new confidence and a new esteem rule in its place. Win, lose or draw — Kentucky has done its best. That all-pervading spirit is the stuff from which tradition is built and is the foundation stone for greater and more glorious years to come.

Now the dark-eyed Wynne is facing another season with a high-spirited crew of hard-fighting Wildcats who believe they are as good as the best. They are eager for action, fearless, self-confident, superbly coached, capable. They are a tribute to the ability of Chet Wynne.

GRADUATE MANAGER

What follower of the Wildcats doesn't know Daddy Boles?

He has been connected with the University of Kentucky as football coach, basketball coach, graduate manager of athletics, gymnasium teacher, program manager or general major domo for so many years that many believe he is one of the founders of the institution.

No football program would be complete without him and here he is.

In the ante-bellum days, Daddy Boles wore a moustache and a high-necked sweater. The sweater finally went to pieces. The hirsute facial adornment went out of style. But Daddy goes marching on in his easy-going way, making friends and keeping them.

"Happy" Chandler -- Governor -- Athlete

His excellency, the Honorable Albert Benjamin Chandler, Governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, if he were not the chief executive of the State and if he were not a brilliant attorney, probably would be coaching athletics at this very minute.

In fact, the Governor, shortly after his graduation from Transylvania, went in for athletics in a big way, coaching football and basketball at Versailles High School and scouting football games for Centre College.

"Happy" Chandler was a versatile athlete at Transylvania during his undergraduate days in Lexington, playing on the football, basketball and baseball teams at Old Transy. He was tipped off to his first coaching job by S. A. "Daddy" Boles, graduate manager of athletics here, and shortly thereafter, was turning out winning teams at Versailles.

The Governor, after his graduation with a Bachelor of Arts degree from Transylvania, attended the Harvard Law School, then returned to his native State to complete his legal education at the University of Kentucky.

Since taking the Governor's chair, "Happy" has lost but few opportunities to watch Kentucky Wildcat teams in action. Last winter he was one of the most ardent fans at Wildcat basketball games here, and usually he can be seen occupying the Governor's Box in the stadium at Kentucky football games.

McVEY HALL

“Maryville My Maryville”

The University of Kentucky Wildcats this afternoon open a brand new football season. They have no regrets over past defeats, nor do they exult over past victories. That what has been is gone. The slate is clean. Although “The saddest words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these, it might have been,” Wildcats look not into the past but are peering eagerly into the future.

There is no crystal ball to foretell the future. Many have offered surmises as to what the new season of 1936 has in store for the Wildcats, but the players themselves are interested only in each game as it comes.

Right now they are in their dressing rooms beneath the south stadium—providing you are reading this prior to 2:15 p. m. on September 19—discussing ways and means of defeating Maryville, their opponents this afternoon.

Confidently the Wildcats expect to whip the Highlanders from Tennessee but they also expect a good deal of opposition from the boys from Tennessee. Coach Chet Wynne does not allow his boys to take any opponent lightly, and it is never safe to take Maryville lightly at all.

There was a time, back in 1927, when Maryville came to Kentucky to furnish the curtain-raising opposition for the Wildcats. The fans all thought it would be easy sailing for the 'Cats, but the Highlanders believed otherwise. They had a right to, for when the game was over the score was a tie—6 to 6. No, it doesn't pay to take Maryville too lightly.

Maryville has been coming to Lexington for many years to provide the opposition in the opening game. The Highlanders also appear frequently on the University of Tennessee schedule.

These boys from the hill regions of Tennessee are not a very serious threat to Southern football supremacy but they are to be admired for the fighting spirit that characterizes them. No matter how badly a Maryville team might be defeated, it will be fighting with splendid courage until the final whistle. Kentucky licked them 60 to 0 last year but in the last minute of that game the score might as well have been 0 to 0 as far as the effort of the Highlanders was concerned.

After the game this afternoon, the Kentucky Wildcats will turn their attention to another foe that they defeated last season—Xavier University of Cincinnati, Ohio. Kentucky defeated Xavier by 21 to 7 last autumn at the Ohio city, in a freak game in which four touchdowns were made but not one of which was made on offensive football. Xavier scored on a punt return by Leo Sacks. Kentucky scored three times on intercepted passes by Gene Myers, center, and Bert Johnson, left halfback, and a punt return by Bob Davis, right halfback.

You may be planning to accompany the Wildcats to Cincinnati for the Wildcat-Xavier Musketeer game next Friday night. If so, you are in for a treat of good football. Xavier always has a worthy team. Come and see how this year's Kentucky eleven stacks up with the Wildcat team of last year.

Adios.

A PHI BETA KAPPA TENNIS TEAM

The University of Kentucky's Phi Beta Kappa tennis team of last spring, so called because of the high scholastic standing of its members, demonstrated that it was just as good on the courts as in the class rooms when it won 11 matches and lost one. This team had an excellent claim on the Southeastern Conference tennis championship.

The Kentucky tennis team was coached, in his spare time, by Prof. H. H. Downing, head of Astronomy Department.

The Wildcat tennis players cleaned up in their Southern matches, staged a victorious march through Indiana and, tired out from playing three strong teams in three consecutive days, went to the well just once too often and lost to Michigan State on the fourth straight day of competition.

The University of Kentucky tennis team last spring completed its most successful season in history. The Wildcats easily defeated Indiana, Purdue and Notre Dame on successive afternoons. Before their clean-up in the State of Indiana, the Kentucky boys humbled Tennessee and Vanderbilt, giving them a good claim to the Southeastern Conference championship.

Chet Wynne is entering on his third season as head coach in football at the University of Kentucky. Since his coming to Kentucky the Wildcat teams have shown decided improvement, culminating last fall in a decisive 27-to-0 victory over Kentucky's oldest and most respected rival, the University of Tennessee. It was the first time in a decade that the Wildcats were able to whip the Volunteers.

Dave Rogan, University of Kentucky distance track star, never has lost a race in college competition. In the Southeastern Conference meet at Birmingham last May he won firsts in the mile and half-mile runs, establishing a new record in the mile. He does not know the meaning of fatigue. Against Tennessee in a dual meet he came in first in the half mile, the mile and two mile runs, then took part in the mile relay.

Chet Wynne, athletic director and head football coach at the University of Kentucky, took on additional duties last spring when he coached the Wildcat golf team to a State championship. The Wildcat mentor, a great fullback at Notre Dame, from which he was graduated in law in 1922, also was a star track man in his university days. He established a world's record in the indoor 60-yard high hurdles.

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY BASKETBALL TEAM IN 1935-36

For the first time in years, the University of Kentucky had absolutely no claim on the Southeastern Conference basketball title at the close of the 1935-36 season last spring. But still the season was considered quite successful as the Wildcats won 14 of their scheduled games and lost only four.

Coach Adolph Rupp had planned to build his team around a sophomore, the all-American center, Leroy Edwards, but had to change his plans when Edwards turned professional and remained at Indianapolis instead of continuing his education and his basketball at Kentucky.

Without Edwards, Coach Rupp was under a terrific handicap but he made the most of the material at hand and once more turned out a team that was a credit to the University.

Possibly one of the most surprised basketball teams ever to trod a hardwood floor was the University of Pittsburgh Panthers here last January 8. Pitt took a Southern tour and dropped off in Lexington with the idea of giving the Wildcats a lesson in basketball. Imagine how those Panthers felt when, at the end of the half, Kentucky was leading by 22 to 2. The Panthers picked up a bit in the last half but the damage was done and Kentucky won by 35 to 17.

Once more the Wildcat basketball team displayed its strength against Alabama, which has been unable to whip Kentucky in basketball since Coach Rupp took over the reins here. Coach Hank Crisp's lanky lads fell by the close score of 32 to 30 at Tuscaloosa, and by 40 to 34 at Lexington.

Other high lights of the season were the Wildcat victories over the powerful Michigan State and Butler University quintets. The worst defeat suffered by a Wildcat basketball team in years was its loss to Notre Dame by 41 to 20. They will meet again at Louisville next spring and the Wildcats hope to achieve their revenge.

Southern basketball fans outside of Kentucky thought that the millenium was at hand during the past season when the Wildcats bowed to two Southern teams, Vanderbilt and Tennessee. The 'Cats, however, evened the count with these two opponents by also beating them.

A southpaw forward-passing halfback, Jim Wadlington, may be expected to give University of Kentucky football opponents plenty of grief this season. His development during spring practice makes him certain of seeing a great deal of action this fall.

Ted Twomey, former Notre Dame tackle, left the University of Kentucky coaching staff last winter to join the coaching staff at the University of Texas. His place as line coach at Kentucky was taken by Tom "Kitty" Gorman, former center at Notre Dame. Gorman, who left the university to take over his new coaching job for spring practice, returned to Notre Dame last summer to complete his law course. He is a native of Chicago and was an assistant coach at Notre Dame before coming to Kentucky.

If Coach Chet Wynne of the University of Kentucky football team calls for "Joe" he is apt to be answered by a chorus from Joe Huddleston, Joe Orr, Joe Bosse and Joe Hagan.

Skeletons of two Algonquin Indians were unearthed last spring by workmen reconstructing the cinder track around the University of Kentucky's football field. University archaeologists estimated that the Indians had been buried at least 300 years. The Kentucky field was used as a burial ground by the tribe that had a village site on the University campus. Probably dozens of other Indian graves remain undisturbed beneath the sod of Stoll Field.

Bert Johnson, powerful University of Kentucky halfback with a Nation-wide reputation, is the father of a husky young son who was born last spring.

The University of Kentucky football team will play a night game this fall with Xavier University at Cincinnati. When these teams met one night last fall four touchdowns were made — three of them by Kentucky — but neither side could score by offensive football. Kentucky scored twice on intercepted passes and once on the return of a punt. Xavier's touchdown was on a punt return.

"One Eye" Connelly will have his hands full trying to crash the gate at University of Kentucky football games now. A ten-foot concrete wall has been erected around Stoll Field. Another improvement to the physical plant at Kentucky is an up-to-date press box, probably the finest in the South.

University of Kentucky tennis players go in heavy for scholarship. Three members of the Wildcat team wear Phi Beta Kappa keys and another won a Rhodes scholarship last winter. The scholarship winner, Elvis Stahr, is leaving this fall for the University of Oxford, England, for three years.

There are two sets of brothers on the University of Kentucky football squad. Two of these brothers, Bob and Dameron Davis, from Dayton, Ky., are rivals for the right halfback position. Bob is a junior and Dameron, whom he calls "Honey," is a sophomore. The other brothers are Earl and Randall Phillips, from Montgomery, Ala. Randall is a quarterback and Earl an end. Both are sophomores.

Norris "Double O" McMillen, University of Kentucky's quarterback last football season, went in for professional wrestling at the close of the grid season. Although achieving phenomenal success in the grunt and grimace racket, McMillen quit the ring after making enough money to defray his university expenses. His wrestling victories came as a result of using football blocks in the ring.

The University of Kentucky football squad has a good crop of sophomores this fall. These are headed by Tommy Coleman, triple-threat halfback from Huntington, W. Va.; Earl Sands, 195-pound fullback from Louisville; Bill Boston, husky guard from Mayfield.

The University of Kentucky football team will play a 10-game schedule this fall. One of the Waldcat opponents is Manhattan College, coached by Chick Mehan, who made the New York University Violets famous. It will be the first time that a University of Kentucky football team ever has played in the East.

The University of Kentucky next spring will have the finest cinder track in the South. During the past winter and spring the old track was torn up and a new quarter-mile oval constructed with a 220-yard straightway. The new track is perfectly banked, drained and packed, and is an ideal site for the establishment of new track records.

Scribes who work University of Kentucky football games will do so in the greatest of comfort. A new and complete press box has been constructed atop the south side stadium. It is glass inclosed, electrically heated and roomy, seating 70 persons without crowding.

Two of the University of Kentucky's outstanding athletes of former years are identified with professional football. John "Shipwreck" Kelly, great halfback and track star, is president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Ralph Kercheval, ex-Wildcat fullback, starred in the backfield of the Dodgers last fall. Kercheval's 91-yard punt made for Brooklyn last fall is believed to be a world's record.

Stanley Nevers, University of Kentucky football captain, whose real name is Neverdoski, was born at Cracow, Poland. After experiencing the horrors of the 1917 revolution in that country, during which he nearly starved to death, he came to America when he was 6 years old. He has made his own living almost ever since his arrival in this country. He abbreviated his name because he wanted to be a real American. He is a powerful tackle on the football team and is an excellent student.

The University of Kentucky football team should have no trouble in dodging legal pitfalls. Two members of the coaching staff and a member of the Athletic Council are lawyers. Head Coach Chet Wynne is licensed to practice law in Kentucky, Kansas and Nebraska. Tom Gorman, the newest member of the coaching staff, received his law degree this summer from Notre Dame. Wallace Muir, Athletic Council member and one-time Kentucky athlete, is one of the leading criminal lawyers of the State.
