More surprising, perhaps, than the final score — UK 12, Georgia 7 — was the way the Wildcats dominated a good Georgia team . . . before a hostile crowd . . . a hostile Homecoming crowd. Sonny Collins (again) paced UK's suddenly potent ground game, while the Wildcat defense kept the Bulldog offense under wraps most of the day. Kentucky's next opponent — unbeaten Tulane in Saturday's Homecoming game.

THERE ONCE WAS a time when the Kentucky Wildcat football team's "annual upset" would give them a sterling 3-8 season.

Back in 1970 UK beat the "man in the White Shoes" Lynn Dickey and his Kansas State cohorts 16-3. They went 2-9 that year.

The year before it was the Ole Miss Rebels with Archie Manning at the helm, falling UK 10-9. They went 2-8 that year.

NOW IT'S THE Georgia Bulldogs, picked by many pre-season prognosticators to finish at the top of the heap in the SEC, with Heisman Trophy candidate quarterback Andy Johnson and tailback Jimmy Poulos.

Well, the Cats smothered the mighty Dogs 12-7 last Saturday in Athens for their third win of the season. Sound like the same old 3-8 season?

It could, but when you consider UK gets to play Vanderbilt, the quickly sinking Florida Gators and an annual grudge match with Tennessee at Commonwealth Stadium yet this season, things are looking better for UK football prospects.

THE CATS WON this one the hard way. Their accustomed second half slip fell the wayside as they controlled the latter part of the game from beginning to end. The Cats scored but once during the second half, two points when the Dogs Poulos recovered a fumble in his own endzone for a safety, but threatened many times.

The legend of Sonny Collins has added another page to it's already thick volume. The "Super Soph" tailback from Madisonville tossed and turned his way to another 156 yards in 29 carries, that's 5.4 yards a carry.

Collins has now raised his school record rushing mark to 883 yards as he tears his way to the coveted 1,000 yard mark.

QUARTERBACK Mike Fanuzzi had another fine game leading the offense down the field into scoring position a number of times, only to be foiled by Ron Steele's usually reliable toe. Steele connected from 17 yards out to put the Cats ahead to stay in the second quarter, but missed on his next three attempts from 48, 22 and 26 yards to keep Vince Dooley's Bulldogs close on the Cats heels.

Georgia win
brightens
Cat prospects

UK running back Sonny Collins, shown celebrating a touchdown in the season opener against VPI, was up to his old tricks again Saturday. Collins, leading rusher in the Southeastern Conference, gained 156 Saturday as UK upset Georgia 12-7. (Kernel photo by Bruce Hutson.)

But it was the defense that carried the banner of the day. The Cats allowed only 263 total yards to the regarded Dog offense while forcing a safety, three interceptions, two by safety Darryl Bishop and one by linebacker Frank LeMaster, and a fumble recovery.

The Cats are now 3-4 overall and 2-2 in conference, the two conference losses coming from Alabama and LSU. Saturday they take on the Tulane Green Wave in UK's Homecoming.

ONE INTERESTING note. There were some Gator Bowl officials scouting Georgia at the game Saturday. The way UK should have impressed them, and if the Cats can win the rest of their games, perhaps the team will be in Florida New Years Day.

Breckinridge outlines impeachment stance

By RON MITCHELL
Kernel Staff Writer

Sixth district representative John B. Breckinridge outlined his position on impeachment procedures Saturday morning to about 50 members of Citizens to Impeach Nixon.

The group, which consists mainly of UK students, faculty and union representatives, heard the congressman take a somewhat conservative attitude about impeachment, the war powers limitation bill and the confirmation of Vice president nominee Gerald Ford.

"I HAVE NOT said I would vote to impeach the President," the Lexington Democrat said. "All I have said is that I am part of a group interested in setting about the process to see if proper procedures should be taken to investigate to see if there are grounds for impeachment."

He added that if any investigation reveals evidence that Nixon should be impeached "then I will vote that way." Breckinridge said such an investigation would be the first step toward impeachment procedures.

Congress was caught off guard by Nixon's announcement Friday night that a new special prosecutor would be named by Acting Attorney General Robert Bork, he said.

"WE THOUGHT he had cancelled the Friday night appearance as he had been doing since Wednesday, but it seems he decided to change the game," Breckinridge said.

Breckinridge said this proposal is unacceptable. He is cosponsor of a bill stipulating the special prosecutor be selected by Congress. He added that on Friday, prior to Nixon's speech, he anticipated what was going to be said and attempted to draw up a statement denouncing the President's speech.

Breckinridge released figures illustrating the number of phone calls, letters and telegrams he has received concerning the impeachment of Nixon.

THE CORRESPONDENCE is divided into three different categories: within the district, within the state and nationwide.

The correspondence is from two days: Oct. 21, the day following the resignations of Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson and Deputy Atty. Gen. William Ruckelshaus and the firing of special prosecutor Archibald Cox; and, last Thursday, following Nixon's Wednesday night speech that he would release the tapes to Judge John Sirica.

The Oct. 21 tally was: for impeachment, 506 in the district, nine in the state out of the district and 66 nationwide. The Oct. 21 tally against impeachment was: seven in the district, and zero in both state and nationwide.

THE TOTAL after Thursday's correspondence was: for impeachment, 693 within the district, 25 in the state out of the district and 79 nationwide. The tally against impeachment was: 10 in the district, 11 in the state but out of the district, and 1 nationwide.

Correspondence from constituents doesn't always stipulate how a congressman will vote, Breckinridge said, but it does have an impact. He added that the current volume of mail is spontaneous and not form mail, which is usually all a congressman receives.

BRECKINRIDGE made no friends with the crowd pressed into his local office when he said the President's veto of a bill limiting his war powers would probably be upheld by the House of Representatives.

Adopt Adopt-a-House

Remember the Coca-Cola ad on television, in which a crew of neighborhood helpers descend on a bleak house, refurbish it completely, and quench their thirst, all within a minute? Well, Lexington may just adopt that ad and put it to practical use within the community.

The program is called Adopt-a-House, which is an accurate description of the program's intent. In essence, a civic or fraternal group will adopt a Lexington house and see to its exterior upkeep for a year—the entire outside of the home, plus the surrounding grounds.

Groups may also expand their responsibilities to include free dinners for the home owner, exchange of presents on holidays, and the like.

Sound like a family? It does, and we like the idea.

Here's a chance for groups to help neighbors in a practical way—paint walls, rake leaves, ect.—as well as sharing some old fashioned friendship.

In the midst of Watergate, high prices, dwindling supplies of fuel, and a general distaste for the '70's, people now have a chance to "get back to basics." Instead of tackling huge projects with little chance of fruition, groups can now take on a house.

A weekend's work can transform drab walls into a bright, welcoming exterior, another few hours and all the autumn leaves can be dispatched. Yet another couple of hours and all that slushy snow will be just a memory. And a day or two of hoeing, discing, and planting will ready that little garden for another spring.

We are hopeful the Adopt-a-House program, like so many other well-meaning endeavors, isn't just a one year affair. It would be a point of honor for Lexington to display such a program. It would also be a selling point to citizens of other towns who are likewise interested in a worthwhile civic endeavor.

We ask that any group with a few hours a week to spare get involved with Adopt-a-House. We can promise hard work and a feeling of satisfaction. We can't, however, guarantee a tray of Cokes for all the workers. You'll have to work that out with the owner of the house you have adopted.

LOS ANGELES — Col. Ed Miller says that for five years and four months the closest he came to a woman was finding a long hair in the boiled pumpkins his jailers served him. When he tells you about that, he has a big grin on his Iowa face as he lifts his eyes toward the ceiling in a small gesture of good humor. His most frequent remark is, "I got no complaint."

Ed is a combination of traits that would be at war with each other in another personality, but in him they are under control. Discipline and compliance, a reckless adventuresomeness and a strong ambition are yoked to an ability to adapt and accept things as they are, extracting whatever good can be gained from them.

MILLER SAYS THAT until it happened he never thought the North Vietnamese could shoot him and his Marine Corps F-4 Phantom down. That was his ambitious self-confidence: "Everything I go into, I aspire to the top." The other side shot him down anyway, breaking his back and crushing his ankle. Still, he tried on the second day of his captivity to escape, and that, you might say, was his recklessness.

In the camp he lost nearly half the body weight on his 6-foot-2 frame and all his hearing, but he exercised his broken bones and muscles so that to watch him move today you'd never know. Of that experience, of the weeks in solitary confinement, he doesn't quite say he has no complaints, but he puts a face on it that not many men can. His jailers were so much smaller than he that he says he'd taken worse licks on the basketball court than he got from their rifle butts. Ed even had a formula for accommodating to the progression of lost years by telling himself that each day he grew younger. By the world's reckoning he is 42; by his own he is 29.

THE FATHER OF five sons, Ed Miller came back to be divorced. "My wife told me she wanted a separation the first weekend home...I had already decided over there that if she met another man—well, good luck," he says. No complaint again, but whatever Mrs. Miller's reasons they didn't concern another man. To Ed they are a mystery.

"The only thing that bothered me was that I didn't understand it," he says, accepting what he cannot change. The nearest he comes to a reproachful remark is something like, "The oldest boy was an honors student when I left and a dropout when I came home."

BUT GENERALLY the America Ed Miller returned to isn't an alien place. Perhaps part of the reason for that is that he has little trouble comprehending what we were doing here while he was in jail. Even before he was shot down he had serious doubts about the war his soldier's duty had made him fight. The years in the camp solidified them so he did not come home feeling his country had betrayed him.

A teenage enlistee, he made it from private to colonel, but he lacks the social isolationism, the obdurate right-wingism we might presume of a man who looked forward to becoming the Marine Corps Commandant until his war wounds forced him into retirement. A career man, a veteran of the Korean War also, Ed is a mildly liberal, not very political Iowan with big ears and a hayseed accent who voted for Ike, JFK and Johnson and stayed in the American middle.

"AMERICA HASN'T changed much, but what has changed I like better," he says. "People are more honest, there's less hypocrisy, and people don't ignore that everybody likes sex or smokes a little weed."

"I haven't had a haircut in two months and I own a pair of red pants and a Hang-Ten shirt with three-quarter-length sleeves."

HIS POLITICS AREN'T terribly optimistic, but they're hardly out of joint with the times. "Agnew? He's law-and-order-after-I-get-mine. Isn't that what Hitler did in the 1930s? Well, I figured we'd go fascist, but now with Watergate I don't think so any more."

ED HAS DARK stories to tell about what actually went on in the camp, about the Pentagon public information officers teaching the men to step off the plane and thank God and Nixon for peace with honor. He may write a book, but for now he has granted Nixon amnesty and is getting ready to go to law school.

The anger that ought to be in anybody who lived his first five years in an orphanage, grew up in a foster home and lived his life as Ed has, is either absent or under control so fierce that it is invisible, because Ed is living well, seeing his kids, accepting the present and ambitious for the future. No complaint.

'SOON EVERYONE WILL BE SATISFIED—WE'LL HAVE REGAINED OUR HONOR, AND THEY'LL HAVE THE LAND!'

Voters fortunate

Lexington voters are fortunate to have a number of good people running for office. I would like to make special mention of three candidates who deserve support.

Joe Graves is running against a good man. We will have a fine state senator whoever wins. Graves was the first politician to speak out against a dam in the Red River Gorge. He has actively pressed for meaningful water pollution control standards, helped save the trees on North Broadway and spoke out publicly against the proposed Rosemont Extension. He shows real concern for the problems of the little person, a remarkable characteristic for a Republican, and is universally respected by those who know him.

Larry Hopkins had a fine record as a new representative. He joined Graves and our Mike Moloney in strong but unsuccessful efforts to stop strip mining. He sponsored a bill to ban throw away bottles and was a central figure in the turkey incident to dramatize opposition to the Governor's notorious industrial loan bill which sailed through as a payoff of a campaign promise to a special financial interest group. Hopkins, a somewhat conservative Republican, is tough and honest and deserves reelection.

Pam Miller, candidate for Metro Council, is the most dynamic and exciting personality to enter local politics in my memory. She is for bicycle paths, against Rosemont Extension and wants to stop the parade of zoning changes that is destroying our city. She is responsible for the farmers' market beside the recycling center downtown.

Letters policy

Letters to the editor may concern any topics as long as the content of the letters is not libelous. However, so everyone has an equal opportunity to respond, we ask that you limit letters to 250 words. We also ask that they be typewritten and triplicated for the convenience of the typesetters. All letters must be signed, including campus address, telephone number and classification. Each letter will be restricted to two authors; those with more than two signees will be signed "and others."

UK tries to obtain planetarium funds

By RON MITCHELL
Kernel Staff Writer

After abandoning plans to construct an observatory to replace one given to Eastern Kentucky University several years ago, UK is currently attempting to obtain private funds for a planetarium.

When the observatory was transferred to the Richmond campus, during construction of the Blanding-Kirwan dorm complex, University officials promised they would attempt to secure a replacement.

Since that time, the University has abandoned plans for an observatory. Now attempts are being made to obtain close to $1 million for a planetarium, said Wasley S. Krogdahl, astronomy professor.

"WE ARE NOW more anxious to get a planetarium than the observatory," Krogdahl said, noting President Otis Singletary is interested in obtaining the funds.

The University has been attempting for the past two years to get private sources to donate the money for the planetarium and progress of the project depends on the success of the funds drive, Larry Forgy, vice president for business affairs, said Wednesday.

UK's astronomy department currently offers about 12 courses and would have major use of the facility.

TWO OTHER state universities, Western Kentucky and the University of Louisville, have planetariums but no observatories.

U of L is planning an observatory, although the institution lacks an astronomy department. The three astronomy courses are carried through the physics department.

FUNDING FOR the structure will come from a university facilities bond package and will cost about $100,000.

The initial instrument, a 22-inch diameter telescope, has been donated by the Louisville Astronomical Society, said David Baker, U of L public relations director.

Although plans are currently "up in the air," the facility is expected to be completed within the next year. Baker said since the initial instrument has been donated, most of the money will be used to build a structure to house the instrument.

SAE receives Mancini Award for public service

The UK chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon recently won the 1973 Mancini Award for public service and $1000 for the university.

The Mancini Award, given annually by the national SAE chapter to the outstanding chapter in the area of public service, has been won by the UK chapter four out of the six times it has been given.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE activities which contributed to the earning of the award included such activities as heart fund collection, P.O.W. bracelet sales and Greek work day.

The award money will be donated as an undesignated gift to be used at the discretion of the University.

'Tristana' tells of human change

By JOEL ZAKEM
Kernel Staff Writer

Luis Bunel's Tristana is a gripping story of lost innocence, set in modern Spain.

The Spanish film, with English subtitles, will be shown tonight 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. in the Student Center Theatre as part of the international film series.

Bunel has long been a force in modern cinema, and is considered the premiere Spanish film maker.

He directed and wrote the screenplay for Tristana.

Like many of his films, there is not that much surface action.

Instead, he keeps you glued to your seat in following the changes of mood the characters go through.

Tristana (Christine Deneuve) is a young, innocent girl recently orphaned. She becomes the ward of Lope (Fernando Rey).

Tristana is very devout, Lope is an atheist. She is pure while his known to be a lecher, and she believes in hard work and compassion as much as Lope detests work, putting honor above all things.

The friendship Tristana has at the time of the adoption for a young deaf-mute shows what she considers important.

But events soon change her feelings.

Film review

After being seduced by Lope, Tristana abandons the habits of her earlier life.

She meets a painter (Franco Nero) and takes him as a lover. She abandons Lope, but still tries to maintain her innocence by refusing to marry her new lover.

An illness, resulting in the loss of a leg, further hardens her.

She returns to Lope and marries him, though she remains openly contemptuous of him.

Her relationship with the deaf-mute also changes, with friendship replaced by mocking cruelty.

At the same time, Lope is going through an opposite kind of metamorphosis, becoming devout and kind as he approaches death.

Deneuve is superb throughout the film, going through personality changes with ease.

Her performance alone would have been enough to exult Tristana.

Rey is also good in his portrayal of old Lope.

The only low spot in acting is Nero, who is too stiff and unfeeling in his role as Tristana's lover.

The photography helps capture the mood of the film with stark, realistic shots.

TRISTANA won't overwhelm you with action, but it holds your interest with the relationships of the characters and the changes they go through.

It is a powerful film—one I recommend.

Sheehan opens Patterson School Guest Lecture Series

By SUSAN JONES
Kernel Staff Writer

John E. Sheehan, Federal Reserve Board Governor, opened the 1973-74 Patterson School Guest Lecture Series Thursday describing current inflationary trends and economic policy.

"The Federal Reserve is perhaps the key agency in shaping the economy of this government," said Sheehan. The Federal Reserve Board acts to vary the amount of money in the United States economy.

SHEEHAN WAS appointed to the Federal Reserve Board by President Nixon. "Members serve for 14 years," said Sheehan. "We feel responsive to Congress, not to the administration. However, we try to coordinate our activity with the executive economic policy."

"Price rises due to food and fuel shortages, inadequate fiscal policy and low profitability of industries are not within the control of the Federal Reserve Board," said Sheehan.

Some current inflationary trends are due to worldwide shortages of basic essentials, he said.

"For the first time in my life there is no grain in storage in the world today," Sheehan said. Today the whole world depends upon the North American continent for its grain supplies, he continued.

"IT'S IMPOSSIBLE not to be aware of the energy crisis today," said Sheehan. "The potential problems of the Mideast and the hesitancy to further harm the environment are just two parts of this problem."

"The fundamental problem in the American society today is inflation," said Sheehan. "However, when you begin an inflationary fire like President Johnson created, you don't put that fire out easily."

Societas Pro Legibus presents pre-law discussion panel

Societas Pro Legibus presented a panel discussion Thursday night for undergraduates interested in law. The panel informed the students how to get into law school and why people should or should not go into law.

Societas Pro Legibus is a pre-law honorary society. It was founded Feb. 4, 1968, in order to promote legal interests. It does this by informing people how to get into the field of law, acknowledging outstanding achievements and attempting to prepare pre-law students for law school, according to Pamela Horrell, president of the society.

THREE FACULTY members and three students gave their views on the law schools here and elsewhere and how to get in.

Dean George W. Hardy, of the College of Law, tried to point out the reasons for choosing law as a career and how to prepare for it.

AS FOR THE actual mechanics of getting into law, Professor W.

Garrett Flickinger covered that area. He noted that it is increasingly harder to get into the schools today. He said that only 35,000 out of 110,000 applicants are accepted nationally.

Candidates urge reform

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Opposing candidates for mayor of the new merged Lexington-Fayette county government have signed a joint statement endorsing the Legislative Reform Amendment.

Incumbent Lexington Mayor Foster Pettit and his opponent, James Amato, released a statement urging voters to approve the constitutional amendment this November, which provides for annual legislative sessions.

"WITH THE legislature meeting in regular session only 60 days every two years, many measures of great importance never come to the floor for consideration and many ill-conceived bills are passed," the candidates said. "Annual sessions will make it possible for the legislature to give more consideration to important bills."

"By providing for non-consecutive legislative days the amendment will enable legislators to consult with constituents and local officials."

News In Brief

By the Associated Press
and the Kernel Staff

- Tapes 'first step'
- Convoy arrives
- Confrontations
- Bills released
- Today's weather...

● WASHINGTON — Former Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox said Sunday the presidential tape recordings over which he was fired "were clearly only a first step in seeking a great deal of important evidence from the White House.

Cox said that as part of an investigation of campaign contributions he would have sought accounts of a meeting between President Nixon and former Agriculture secretary Clifford A. Hardin which dealt with milk pricing.

The White House has refused to make such material available in connection with a civil court suit questioning a milk price hike granted by Hardin soon after dairy interests pledged $2 million for Nixon's 1972 campaign.

● TEL AVIV — The lead vehicles of a 100-truck convoy arrived with food, water and medicine Sunday for the 3rd Egyptian Army choked off in the hostile Sinai Desert by a ring of Israeli tanks, Tel Aviv reported.

A second convoy also was allowed to carry medical supplies to the besieged city of Suez at the southern end of the Suez Canal, Israeli spokesmen said.

The first trucks rolled through Israeli lines on the west bank of the Suez Canal following a face-to-face predawn meeting between senior Israeli and Egyptian officers on a bleak stretch of Egyptian sand, the Israelis said.

The Tel Aviv command claimed Egyptian holdouts attacked Israeli forces south of the beleaguered 3rd Army several times and that some of the 3rd Army troops fired on the convoy as it pulled into their parched desert trap. Egypt was warned the convoy would be stopped short if the firing continued.

● WASHINGTON — Congress heads into confrontations with President Nixon this week over a new special Watergate prosecutor and war powers. And the preliminary impeachment inquiry gets under way in the House.

● FRANKFORT, Ky. — More than 200 proposed bills prefiled by individual legislators or committees will be released to the public after Nov. 15 for its information.

Philip Conn, deputy director of the Legislative Research Commission said the final versions have been distilled from some 35 proposed measures received by interim committees.

...cool drizzle

A cool drizzle should descend upon UK today as November (and winter) approach. (A cool drizzle calls for nothing less than putting sweaters on umbrellas.) The high today should be in the 50s with a 40 per cent chance of rain or drizzle. There is only a 20 per cent chance of rain or drizzle tonight with a low near 40. Skies will be clear Tuesday, but the high again will be in the 50s. Tuesday night will bring an even lower low as temperatures will be in the 30s.

SEC Results

Alabama and Tennessee roll, LSU squeaks

By ED SHEARER
Associated Press Sports Writer
"I'm really embarrassed over the score," said Coach Paul Bryant of Alabama. "I didn't want the score to be like that."

There was little Bryant could do about it since he used all 68 players dressed out Saturday night as the awesome Crimson Tide buried Virginia Tech 77-6 and smashed a pair of major college records in the process.

Two other Southeastern football powers remained undefeated in Saturday's action. Louisiana State nudged inspired South Carolina 33-29 in a wild offensive outburst and independent Tulane knocked off Georgia Tech 23-14.

ALABAMA AND LSU. slated for a Thanksgiving night showdown in Baton Rouge before a national television audience, each have 7-0 records and currently share the top spot in the Southeastern Conference race. Tulane is 6-0.

In other games involving SEC teams, Sonny Collins riddled Georgia's defense for 156 yards rushing as Kentucky upended the Bulldogs 12-7, Condradge Holloway fired three touchdown passes as 14th-ranked Tennessee crushed Texas Christian 39-7, Norris Weese returned from an injury to lead Mississippi over Vanderbilt 24-14, Auburn handed unbeaten Houston its first shutout in 89 games 7-0, and Mississippi State had to settle for a 10-10 deadlock with Southern Mississippi.

THIS WEEK'S schedule is highlighted by an SEC doubled header at Jackson with LSU tangling with Ole Miss in an afternoon match slated for National Television and Alabama meeting Mississippi State in the nightcap.

Elsewhere, Florida is at Auburn, Georgia at Tennessee, Tulane at Kentucky.

The second-ranked Crimson Tide exploded for 828 yards, including 743 on the ground — both National Collegiate Athletic Association records. The total offense broke the mark of 798 set by Vanderbilt against Davidson in 1969 and the rushing yardage broke the record of 711 set by Oklahoma against Kansas State two years ago.

Four backs ran for more than 100 yards for the Tide-James Taylor for 142, Wilbur Jackson 138, Calvin Culliver 127 and Richard Todd 102.

"I'LL TELL YOU one thing," said Coach Charles McClendon of LSU. "This is the toughest 7-0 record I've ever seen. It looks like every time we go out, we have to struggle, but our character really showed through tonight."

South Carolina took a 29-26 lead with less than four minutes remaining, but Miley calmly engineered a 63-yard drive that ended on his one-yard run with 1:03 remaining to give the Tigers victory.

The passing of Condradge Holloway and the receiving of freshman Stan Morgan proved too much for TCU. Morgan hauled in eight passes for 201 yards and two touchdowns.

Mitzi Jackson rushed for 112 yards and freshman quarterback Chris Vacarella scored the only touchdown on a seven-yard run as Auburn dumped Houston from the ranks of the undefeated.

Weese, playing for the first time since injuring his knee in the season opener scored two touchdowns and set up a field goal with his passing as Ole Miss downed Vandy and stopped the Commodores' three-game winning streak.

JEFF BOWER engineered an 80-yard fourth period scoring march that lifted Southern to its tie with Mississippi State, dropping the Bulldog record to 4-1-2 for the year.
