SELECTION OF CKJF ADMINISTRATOR ANNOUNCED

Linda Ravvin has been named the new administrator of CKJF, succeeding Judy Saxe.

Her selection was approved by CKJF's board on June 25 and her official starting date was set at July 1.

Linda, who has been active in a variety of Jewish organizations, said she hopes to have the CKJF office continue its role of bringing together the Jewish groups of the community.

"There has been an incredible precedent for the kinds of things accomplished in the job of administrator," she said.

She said she would like to work to increase the cohesion of the Central Kentucky Jewish community.

"There's been a certain amount of apprehension about CKJF among different segments of the community."

In addition, she said, "The office should be a major contact point between the Jewish community in Lexington and the non-Jewish community and a contact point with other Jewish communities."

She said another major goal is to assist committee members in enlarging the CKJF campaign and educating people about the campaign and Israel.

Linda is immediate past president of the Lexington Chapter of Hadassah and serves on the board of the Central States region of the group, for which she does leadership development work.

She is a member of Temple Adath Israel, where she is co-chairman of the library committee. She has also headed the interfaith-intrafaith committee of Sisterhood.

At CKJF, she has been serving on the Camp Shalom Committee, the Forum Committee and the Community Relations Committee.

She is also on the board of the Fayette County Medical Auxiliary.

She and her husband, Leon, a neurosurgeon at Lexington Clinic, came to Lexington in 1980 from Montreal.

Linda, who has a masters in library science, worked for nine years as a librarian at Dawson College in Montreal. After coming to Lexington, she worked at the library at Transylvania University.

The Ravvins have three children, Michael, 8, Heather, 5, and David, 3.

CKJF Allocations to Other Charities Announced

According to the constitution of CKJF, seventy percent of all general campaign funds received must be forwarded to the United Jewish Appeal for allocation. Monies received which have been designated for a specific purpose, such as Project Renewal, are sent directly to the UJA and are not included in the general campaign total.

A portion of the remaining funds are used for operating expenses which include the many activities coordinated by CKJF committees such as Camp Shalom, Forum, Interact, Shalom Lexington, the annual Yom Ha'Atzmaut celebration, "Another Israel", etc.

Finally, even pre-dating CKJF's existence, come the allocations to "other charities". These allocations represent our community's participation in the welfare of the local community as well as the American and world Jewish communities.

Several years ago, in an attempt to more clearly define the areas of our responsibility and concern, the committee divided all requests into five broad categories: Preservation of Jewish & Judaic Learning, Welfare, Medical, Social Action, and Jewish & Israeli Youth.

This year's Budget and Allocation Committee, chaired by Evelyn Geller, examined the multitude of requests and, with some adjustments made by the CKJF board, arrived at the list presented below. As always the decisions were made after intense discussion by the committee and board. Serving with Ms. Geller on the Budget and Allocations Committee were Michael Ades, Harold Baker, Robert Baumann, Gail Cohen, Judy Levine, Erle Levy, Marilyn Moosnick and Ricki Rosenberg.

Demonstration for Soviet Jews

The National Conference on Soviet Jewry is planning a major demonstration when Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev comes to the United States.

The action is intended to show both Gorbachev and the Reagan administration that Jewish emigration from the Soviet Union and the rights of Jews still living in the USSR are of the utmost importance.

The conference is hoping that a thaw in U.S.-Soviet relations will allow renewed emigration from the USSR.

In a brochure outlining plans for the demonstration, the conference characterized the situation of Soviet Jews in this way:

"Except for a few symbolic although important gestures, the status of Jews in the USSR, and especially the 375,000 known to be waiting to leave, has not changed. Only 896 Jews were allowed to leave in 1984 and 1,140 in 1985. Harassment and the imprisonment of Hebrew teachers and cultural and religious activists have actually intensified."

The Central Kentucky Jewish community plans to participate in the demonstration -- which will likely be held the Sunday preceding the visit or during the visit itself. When the date of the visit is set, the Soviet Jewry subcommittee of the CKJF Community Relations Committee will announce details of how people here can participate.

Looking Ahead to "SHALOM LEXINGTON"

CKJF Executive Committee members Gail Cohen and Leon Ravvin are organizing CKJF's annual community-wide welcome to newcomers, "Shalom Lexington" to be held September 7.

Details will be announced later, but in the meantime, members of the community are urged to contact the CKJF office with names, addresses and phone numbers of newcomers.

CKJF will, in turn, circulate the names throughout the other Jewish organizations in the area.

Opportunities in Israel

High school students have the opportunity to spend a year studying in Israel through the auspices of two kibbutzim.

Tenth graders can study at the Huleh Valley Regional High School at Kibbutz Kfar Blum in the Upper Galilee. About 800 Israeli students from 20 kibbutzim and moshavim attend the school.

The 11th graders study at Kibbutz Beit Hashita High School in Jezreel Valley at the foot of Mount Gilboa. Most of the Israeli students are members of the kibbutz.

In both programs, the American students are "adopted" by kibbutz families, who provide them with a friendly home environment. The students actually live alongside kibbutz youth in modern quarters.

The 10th and 11th grade program meet the requirements of most American high schools. Hebrew language and literature and other Jewish subjects are included in the curriculum.

Further details on both programs are available from: Department of Education and Culture, World Zionist Organization, American Section, 515 Park Ave., New York, NY 10022; (212)752-0600, ext. 259.

Jewish Heritage Weekend, Louisville

Jewish Heritage Weekend in Louisville, to be held Sunday, July 13, will feature a computer game that tests your Jewish I.Q.

The trivia game features questions, among others, about entertainment, Jews in government, and the practical aspects of day-to-day Judaism. Winners will receive a T-shirt.

Also featured at the Heritage event will be a concert by the Jewish Community Center Orchestra, as well as folk tunes by Bob Rosenthal and performances of Israeli and Jewish music by soloists from Cincinnati and Columbus.

The events will be held at Riverfront Plaza and Belvedere.

Visiting Israel,

.....a unique mitzvah

There are two Israels. The first is the Israel of the evening news. That is the Israel of the Arab-Israel conflict, of west bank disturbances, of war threats and of politics. Then there is the other Israel, where 4,000,000 people live, love, raise their kids -- and spend the week deciding what they will do on the weekend.

The first Israel can best be experienced from afar. Israel's problems are more readily apparent on U.S. television than on Ben-Yehuda Street (any of the Ben-Yehuda streets). As for the other Israel -- the real Israel -- you can only experience it by being there. For some reason, it just doesn't come through on videotape.

That is why it's time to start thinking about going to Israel this summer or autumn. Israel does not need its supporters spending their time and energy agonizing over its fate. Israel certainly doesn't need tears. It does need support and, right now, support for Israel can be best demonstrated by booking an El Al flight and going.

Spending time in Israel is no hardship. The fact is that Israel is a fun country of beautiful beaches and landscapes, fascinating historic sites and an unusually friendly population.

You can't worry about the "Middle East" when you are strolling along the Mediterranean promenade in Tel Aviv, nor when you are sitting on the balcony overlooking Jerusalem's old city at the King David Hotel. The Middle East of the headlines just disappears -- obscured, as it should be, by the Israel of reality.

Sure, it's very nice to check out the ruins of Greece or the cathedrals in Italy. But these places have very little to do with most of us. Israel is different. Seeing the ancient City of David in Jerusalem is exciting because our ancestors lived there. Tel Aviv is thrilling because the people there look like -- and sometimes are -- relatives.

You do not leave a kibbutz the way you do a Scottish castle, remarking on how nice it is. You leave proud. Because that kibbutz has something to do with you. Everything in Israel does.

Of course, visiting Israel is a two-way street. It is good for the tourist. And it is good for Israel. Last year, 1.4 million tourists (430,000 from the United States) came to Israel. While there, they spend $1.3 billion -- more foreign currency than the country derived from all its exports.

Israeli officials had hoped that 1986 would be an even bigger year. In fact, Israelis were counting on an increase in tourism revenues to help sustain and advance the economic recovery of the last year. Any drop in tourism could seriously retard that recovery.

Unfortunately, a drop in tourism seems to be happening. This winter the number of tourists visiting Israel was down 41 percent. If the summer figures are anything like that, Israel's economy could face some serious new troubles.

But there isn't much that Israel can do to attract tourists who are afraid of becoming the victims of a terrorist attack. Israel already runs the world's most secure airline, El Al. The country itself is about as terrorist-proof as any nation can be.

Every major and minor public place is protected. Purses and shopping bags are routinely checked in theatres and supermarkets.

This may make some people feel insecure. It should have just the opposite effect. In Israel, the entire instrumentality of the state works full time to prevent attacks on the entire population. This is true nowhere else.

In short, there is no reason to avoid traveling to Israel out of fear. There is, of course, a small element of risk in traveling anywhere. Take Manhattan, for instance, or Miami. The only safe place, really, is at home. But, then again, you may live near the San Andreas fault, or within a few miles of a nuclear reactor.

Risk is simply a part of life. Fortunately, in Israel, the risk is very small indeed. As for the rewards, they are obvious. You will be doing Israel a favor if you go there this year. But it is you who will be the real beneficiary.

CKJF Board Notes

At the May meeting of the CKJF board of directors, Jack Miller, past president of CKJF, presented a report on the April gathering of the national board of the Council of Jewish Federations, of which he is a member.

Three important CJF resolutions came out of this meeting:

International Terrorism: "We (CJF) believe that the recent action against terrorist-related targets in Libya was fully justified in view of the extensive and irrefutable evidence of Col. Quadaffi's continuing involvement in fomenting, aiding and encouraging terrorist acts directed against American and other innocent civilians around the world.

"We will continue to support a policy of consistence and strength while seeking international cooperation in the long term battle against terrorism."

Ben-Gurion Centennial: "David Ben-Gurion was a man of towering importance to the Jewish people, and to all people who cherish freedom.... As Israel's first Prime Minister, he led the newly formed State through its most difficult times and to the firm establishment of its democratic traditions.

"...In this, the hundredth anniversary year of David Ben-Gurion's birth, we urge every Federation to participate in the centennial celebration by sponsoring appropriate events and activities..."

The Farm Situation: "CJF calls the attention of its member Federations to the following statement which is part of NJCRAC's Program Plan:

"The Jewish Community Relations field should call attention to the economic and social problems affecting a large segment of America's farm belt population and should explore participation in coalitions that support private funding and social services and should study appropriate legislation to alleviate the plight of farmers and their families"."

In response to a request from CJF, the CKJF board noted tourism to Israel has decreased significantly in light of terrorist incidents.

In keeping with a resolution passed by many national organizations, the board went on record as encouraging travel to Israel, noting that Israel's airline El Al has maintained strict security measures and has not been affected by recent incidents. Security within the State of Israel remains comprehensive. Travel within Israel is safe. We cannot allow terrorists "to be our travel agents".

The CKJF board notes with sadness the passing of Stanley Rose. Stanley was one of the original CKJF board members and was recently an appointed representative to the board from Temple Adath Israel.

The Israel Bonds Honoree in 1981, Mr. Rose was an outstanding leader in both the Jewish and general community.

THANKS

The board and officers of CKJF, as well as the entire Central Kentucky Jewish community, extends sincere thanks ...

to: Temple Adath Israel for the use of their facilities for both the Israel Bonds Tribute Dinner and the community-wide Yom Ha'Atzmaut celebration, to: Ohavay Zion Synagogue for the use of their facilities for the Elizabeth Rosenberg Memorial Program and Rabbi H.D. Uriel Smith for the Havdalah service, and to: David Green for the generous contribution of his time and talents as editor of the CKJF Bulletin over the past few months. We take great pride in our bulletin and expend great energy in making it as comprehensive and informative as possible. Its quality has been enhanced significantly with David as editor.

WANTED

CKJF BULLETIN EDITOR: Volunteer position beginning August 1; nine issues per year; work with professional staff on content and layout; 5-6 hours per month. "We can adjust to your time."

Israel Bonds Tribute Dinner held in May

The annual Israel Bond dinner produced a rousing tribute to former Governor A.B. "Happy" Chandler and a substantial commitment, $381,000, to Israel Bonds.

Chandler was given the Ben-Gurion award -- this year marking the 100th anniversary of David Ben-Gurion's birth -- and was praised as an early supporter of Israel.

More than 120 people attended, including state Attorney General David Armstrong, University of Kentucky President Otis Singletary, Transylvania University President Charles Shearer, U.K. Medical Center Chancellor Peter Bosomworth, city councilmen Barkley Blevins and Bob Babbage, Transylvania basketball coach Don Lane and developer Wallace Wilkinson.

The featured speaker was Yosef Yaakov, Israeli consul general for the Mid-Atlantic States. Yaakov emphasized the strong military, economic and diplomatic ties between Israel and the United States.

He also discussed Israel's economic problems and the steps that are being taken to solve them, including a 22 percent cut in defense expenditures. Money for capital development is central to improving the nation's economy, Yaakov said, and that is what Israel Bonds help to fund.

Yaakov also noted that an important source of revenue for Israel is tourism.

"Don't let terrorists dictate travel plans; come and participate in a memorable experience," he urged.

Steven Caller presented the case for Israel Bonds. The dinner, co-sponsored by Temple Adath Israel and Ohavay Zion Synagogue, produced $81,000 in bonds purchased by individuals. In addition, a dozen people joined to guarantee a $300,000 loan to Israel by First Security Bank.

With Marilyn Moosnick acting as mistress of ceremonies, the speakers paid tribute to Chandler's lifetime of accomplishments.

George Schepps, president of the Texas Baseball Hall of Fame, recalled how Chandler, as commissioner of baseball, was an advocate of racial equality in athletics. During Chandler's tenure, Jacki Robinson became the first black to play major league baseball.

Chandler also spoke, recalling his early support of Israel. He said he visited former German concentration camps after World War II and was convinced that there needed to be a haven for the Jews.

He also talked about a visit he paid to Israel in the 1950s, when he met Ben-Gurion. He said he had Ben-Gurion sign a Bible for him.

The success of the Bonds Tribute Dinner was due in great part to the outstanding leadership of CKJF Israel Bonds Campaign Chair, Charles Stern.

CKJF's officers and board extend deep appreciation to Temple Adath Israel and Ohavay Zion Synagogue for co-sponsoring this event, and thanks to the Temple for the use of their delightful facilities.

FIRST ANNUAL
ELIZABETH ROSENBERG MEMORIAL PROGRAM
ROUNDS OUT ACTIVE YEAR

Winding up a month of outstanding activities in the Central Kentucky Jewish community was the first annual Elizabeth Rosenberg Memorial Program on May 31.

The Rosenberg family established an endowment to fund this program because of their continuing commitment to Betty's concern for and involvement in the local Jewish and general community.

Carol Meyers, a noted archaeologist and scholar, presented the exciting story of the discovery of a section of a holy ark.

Ms. Meyers explained that there was plentiful evidence of Torah arks in medieval synagogues, but that descriptions of earlier structures had not indicated the presence of an ark.

This discovery was made in 1981 at Nabratein, the site of an ancient synagogue in northern Israel. It provided a link in the record of use of such structures to hold the Torah in the years following the destruction of the second temple.

Ms. Meyers was able to impart the excitement of the discovery by using pictures which recorded the actual moment the piece of ark was lifted out and cleaned off. The official photographer was so excited he used the wrong camera, and the only picture available is in black and white instead of color.

The reception following Carol Meyers' talk was hosted by Harry Rosenberg and his children Joe and Ricki Rosenberg, Joyce and Jim Mischner, Gloria and Alvin Lipson.

Dr. Carol Meyers and Harry Rosenberg

The Central Kentucky Jewish Federation wishes to thank the members of the Rosenberg family who have made this and future programs possible through their generous endowment to CKJF.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Our Loss.. is Our Gain

No, that isn't a typographical error. It's an observation on Judy Saxe's decision to resign her position as CKJF's first administrator.

We are losing a dedicated professional who, in the five years she served as part-time administrator of the Federation, molded a loosely organized, completely volunteer-run group into the professional organization we are today.

Under her direction we established our first full time office; creating a central location from which our committees now function.

As she developed her contacts and resources within UJA and CJF, Judy's expertise with fund raising has enabled her to provide the campaign chairpeople with the assistance and support that helped increase the annual campaign from $175,000 in 1980 to 1985's total of over $300,000.

Working closely with each of the committees Judy has helped organize our many on-going programs over the years such as CKJF's annual welcome to newcomers "Shalom Lexington", young leadership development Interact, outstanding Forum presentations, and Yom Ha'Atzmaut and Yom Hashoa observances.

From her attendance at conferences and institutes, she acquired the information we needed to establish innovative new projects such as Super Sunday, Interact, and Jewish Family Life Education.

As a resource person to the board of directors Judy has been invaluable, providing the history and continuity we had lacked in the past.

Her dedication to CKJF is evident everywhere. She has been the "voice" of the Federation with both the Jewish and non-Jewish community and has often been the first person people have contacted when in need of emergency assistance.

In essence, Judy has been the strength of CKJF, and she will be missed. But, as I said at the beginning, our loss is our gain. We may have lost her as an administrator, but we have gained (actually regained) her as a volunteer.

Starting July 15th (after a two week rest) Judy has agreed to serve as counselor to our new administrator, Linda Ravvin, and as the temporary editor of our newsletter.

We wish you luck, Judy. We've been fortunate to have you as our first administrator and appreciate your willingness to continue to serve...as a volunteer.

ANYTOWN, KENTUCKY

Anytown, Kentucky, the weeklong leadership and human relations camp jointly sponsored by the Bluegrass and Louisville Chapters of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, was held from June 20-26 at the All Saints Episcopal Center in Leitchfield.

The Central Kentucky Jewish community was well represented by Ruth Belin, who received a partial scholarship from CKJF in recognition of her past participation in Jewish community activities and her future leadership potential. She was joined by Daniel Dickstein of Louisville.

Natalie Saxe, also of Lexington, served as a counselor; and Lauren Weinberg, Director of the Bluegrass Chapter of NCCJ, was a co-director.

Campers were selected from current sophomores and juniors and are generally sponsored by local schools, civic or religious organizations. CKJF has made two awards available each year, although only one was used for this season. It is not too early to encourage your teenager to think about participating next year.

A Last Word

from Judy Saxe

Good-byes are hard. Especially if separation is involved. Fortunately for me the farewell is to the job but not to the place.

Lexington has been my home for almost 25 years. My husband has been an integral part of the University of Kentucky College of Dentistry since the first class was admitted. Together we have built a life within the Jewish and broader community. Our three children were born here, and we have often remarked that this is a good place to raise a family.

It has been a challenge and a deeply satisfying experience to serve as the first CKJA(F) professional staff person for this community. We have all grown and, I think, matured in the past five years. I hope we have become more sensitive to the needs of our Central Kentucky Jewish community and more aware of our Jewish connections outside of Lexington.

Special thanks to the three presidents with whom I have served, Judy Levine, Jack Miller and Gloria Katz; all of whom have brought extraordinary dedication, energy and creativity to a demanding leadership role. A special salute, too, to David Wekstein and Chuck Gorodetsky who were instrumental in bringing CKJF into existence and provided valuable support and guidance as we moved together into a new era.

The boards of directors of CKJF over the past five years deserve recognition from all of us. They are called on to fulfill many responsibilities and make hard decisions. The sincerity and commitment they exhibit deserves recognition from the entire community.

Many more of you have given of your time and energy on behalf of Lexington's, Central Kentucky's, and, indeed, the world's Jewish community. You should turn to each other, and express your appreciation for what we have accomplished so far.

And then, with the guidance and stimulus provided by our new CKJF Administrator Linda Ravvin and the continued participation by all of you continue to build a dynamic Jewish life for ourselves and generations to come.

CAMP SHALOM 1986

Eight and a half counselors, 47 active and excited kids, and 11 hard working women -- put them all together and we come up with Camp Shalom 1986.

Mix in Hebrew songs and dances, lots of games and crafts, judicious seasoning from field trips to "Lunch With the Arts", Jacobsen Park, swimming at Woodland Pool and more. The result is CKJF's own special blend of a day camp, which has just completed its 18th year.

The Hebrew equivalent for 18, chai, means life. Certainly this, the 18th season, was a lively one. It definitely proved the vitality of Camp Shalom and showed, once more, how important it is to the quality of Jewish community life in Central Kentucky.

The 1986 season was staffed by Marc Scarr, Camp Director; Ruth Belin, Andrew Diamond, Ethan Diamond, Elise Mandell, Rebecca Mersack, Eli Scarr, Laura Steiner, and Brian Weinberg.

We can all take pride in the fact that six members of the staff are former campers.

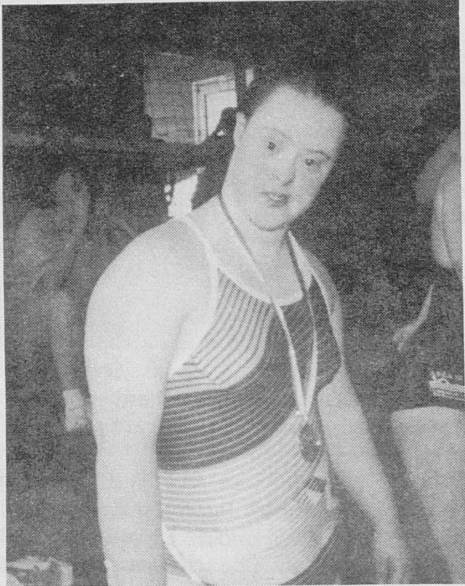

Thanks go to the tireless work of the Camp Committee chaired by Carol Veal and co-chaired by Joyce Mischner: Janice Brock, Liz Broudy, Janice Crane, Cindy Derer, Sue Ezrine, Paula Harrison, Ginny Luftman, Linda Ravvin, and Cheri Rose.

Camp Shalom is one of the many programs underwritten through contributions to the CKJF-UJA General Campaign.

WE TIP OUR HATS

A special "Tip of the Hat" to Rhonda Friedman, daughter of Rae and the late Joe M. Friedman, who captured the gold medal in the 50 M free-style swimming State Championship competition for Special Olympics and a bronze medal for the 100 M free-style swimming competition.

Special congratulations go to a number of graduating seniors who have taken special honors at their schools:

Laura Steiner from Henry Clay High School, Bluegrass Chapter of Kentucky Society of Professional Engineers Award, National Council of Teachers of English Award, National High School Mathematics Exam Honor Roll, Scholarship Trophy, National Merit Scholarship Finalist, and Faculty Cup Award.

Natasha Goldstein from Henry Clay for an award in French and National Merit Scholarship Finalist.

Tamara Fitzpatrick from Henry Clay for Art Recognition.

Jeremy Wolsk from Henry Clay for National Merit Scholarship Finalist.

And Michael Birenbaum for the Outstanding Leader in the Senior Class at Henry Clay High School.

At Lafayette High School, Barbara Baumann for National Merit Scholarship Finalist and Tufts National Merit Scholarship.

Daniel Baer as a Governor's Scholar.

And at Tates Creek, Cheryl Wilson for the Enoch Grehan Journalism Award and Lexington Woman's Club Award.

And Joshua Winer, also for the Enoch Grehan Journalism Award.

Mazal Tov to Francis Moskowitz Winstock, daughter of Adalin and the late Seymour Moskowitz, for having received the Rabbi Arie Becker Young Leadership Award from the Memphis Jewish Federation.

Fran and her husband Jeff have been involved in the Memphis Young Leadership program, attending the conference in Washington this past spring. In November, Fran will be honored at the CJF general assembly.

Fran, who has served in leadership positions of B'nai B'rith Tova Chapter, Memphis Jewish Community Center, Jewish Family Service, National Council of Jewish Women, Temple Israel, Sisterhood, and the Women's Jewish Federation, is a graduate of the University of Kentucky.

TAI Sisterhood Mitzvah Corps

At the May meeting of the Temple Adath Israel Sisterhood Mitzvah Corps officers for the following year were installed.

Carolyn Weinberger will be Chairman. Other officers include Lore Pappas, First Vice Chairman; Ruth Kessler, Second Vice Chairman; Natalie Sherman, Secretary; Helen Paritz, Corresponding Secretary; Ethel Feldman, Treasurer; Liz Levy, Sunshine Gal; and Marcia Chatoff, Membership Chairman.

Mitzvah Corps members thanked Lore Pappas for her five and a half years of service as founder and chairman of the Corps.
