

the Kentucky Alumnus

Annual Report

Fall 1976

Each autumn the UK Alumni Association publishes a report to its membership. This year the director's comments center around records-keeping and the programming of Association activities. Once again we are including a list of the Board of Directors and of the alumni leadership in your community. These are the people who help bring the Association to you and they are eager to hear your thoughts about local club activities.

The general feature addresses a spreading trend in higher education—the limiting of enrollments. Selective admissions is a way of protecting the quality of an academic program at any time and especially when funds are unavailable for the hiring of additional faculty to offset increasing numbers of students.—L.H.D.

Members of the UK board of directors work intently on Association business during the annual summer workshop. The '76 meeting was in Lexington. The '77 workshop will be at Kentucky Dam Village State Resort Park.

The Kentucky Alumnus is the official publication of the University of Kentucky Alumni Association, 400 Rose Street, Lexington, Ky. 40506. Telephone: 606/258-8905. It is published quarterly for dues-paying members of the UK Alumni Association. Individual dues are $10 annually with $2 of that amount used in the publication of the magazine. Opinions expressed in The Kentucky Alumnus are not necessarily those of the University of Kentucky or the Alumni Association. Second class postage paid at Lexington, Kentucky, and at additional offices. A member institution of the Joint Alumni Council of Kentucky and the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education.

Around Campus Briefly

Not everyone susceptible to smoking dangers

Researchers in the Tobacco and Health Research Institute say recent tests on hundreds of persons have tended to support the "high risk" theory that cigarettes pose a major health hazard for only a relatively small number of "high risk" smokers.

The researchers also are experimenting with a new blood test that might identify these high risk smokers, who then could be warned of their vulnerability to lung cancer and possible other diseases associated with smoking.

John J. Hutton, who is conducting the experiments, said the theory also is being pursued by other research groups in the country and that their combined efforts could lead to conclusive findings in a few years.

The Institute currently is supporting 46 different research projects. G. W. Stokes, who has been associated with the program for several years, said UK researchers already have been able to change the chemistry of burley tobacco. Glenn B. Collins said dramatic reductions have been made in the nicotine levels of experimental burley plants, but he added that the latest trend is toward development of plants with relatively high nicotine levels but with low tar levels.

Researchers agree, despite the immensely complicated job of identifying and removing any harmful elements in cigarettes, that gradual progress is being made in the drive for a safer cigarette.

Getting to School With Alumni Help

Twelve students are attending the University of Kentucky on merit scholarships this fall. Funds for the UK Merit Scholar program are provided by 1) the UK Alumni Association's superior student program, 2) UK Research Foundation and 3) the Mary Swinney Corbin fund, set up recently by Mrs. Corbin, a UK alumna '21 and her husband, David C. Corbin, both of Akron, Ohio.

All the UK freshmen were finalists, or semi-finalists, in the National Merit Scholarship competition, a nationwide search for academically superior students.

Under the Mary Swinney Corbin fund, a $4,000 scholarship, payable at $1,000 each year, went to Michelle Faris, Lexington, and $1,000, non-renewable scholarships went to Sarah C. Cox, Louisville, and Sarah E. Wyatt, Mayfield.

In addition to Corbin Fund scholarships, $4,000 Merit scholarships went to William L. Boston, Murray; Robert W. Fisher, Frankfort; Taresa M. Hays, Lexington; Robert Anthony Hess, Louisville, David R. Klueh, Lexington, and Gary Blake Ross, Rt.

11, Paducah.

Awards of $500 went to Bobby Copeland, Benton; William F. Heath, Louisville, and James Bryan Saltz, Ashland.

"I Live in Holly Tree"

Holly Tree Manor Apartments at 1435 South Limestone Street are part of the University Housing system now.

The University paid $1,335,049 to Holly Tree Manor, Inc., for the 123-unit complex including all furnishings and equipment. Funds for the acquisition came from the University's housing and dining revenues accumulated over several years. There were no state appropriations involved in the transaction which took place in July. The ten-year old facility is located on a 3.2-acre tract across from Commonwealth Stadium on Limestone Street. "It is well situated to serve our students and complement other University housing," according to Jack Blanton, vice president for business affairs.

"We are fortunate to be able to obtain this property adjacent to the University at what we consider to be an attractive price. The sale is much less than the cost of building comparable housing today."

Blanton said the apartment complex is housing some 240 graduate

Continuing Education For the MD

Most colleges on campus are involved in continuing education, but one of the newest programs, which also is attracting participants from a number of other states, is the Office of Continuing Education, College of Medicine.

Frank Lemon and Scott Donovan reported that during fiscal 1974-75, 2,292 physicians attended programs held on campus and 2,491 were enrolled in off-campus seminars. Of this number, 35 percent, or 802, were Kentuckians who came to the campus. In the off-campus programs, 98 percent, or 2,441, were Kentuckians.

students. The apartments were ready for occupancy August 25. Only cleaning, repainting, and completing University inventory procedures was necessary to convert the facility to University use.

The Holly Tree complex is fully carpeted and air-conditioned. It has 54 one-bedroom units and 69 efficiency apartments, each fully furnished including stove and refrigerator. The efficiencies rent for $120 per month and the one-bedroom apartments for $140 per month.

Dr. John Oswald Becomes an Eponym

The new Lexington Technical Institute building has been named the John W. Oswald Building.

Dr. Oswald, who served as president of the University of Kentucky from 1963 to 1968, is now president of Penn State University.

"It is fitting that the new facility be named for John Oswald as his foresight and strong commitment to the community college concept laid the groundwork for the excellent Community College System we have today," said President Singletary.

The building will be dedicated October 2nd. There will be a president's reception honoring Dr. Otis Singletary and Dr. John Oswald on Friday, October 1, from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. at the King Alumni House.

The Community College System was formed by the UK Board of Trustees in 1964 during Oswald's administration. During his term as UK president, new community colleges were established at Elizabethtown, Hopkinsville, Prestonsburg, Somerset, Louisville (Jefferson Community College) and the Lexington Technical Institute, and plans were completed for the expansion of the system to include Paducah Junior College and new colleges at Maysville and Hazard.

The UK Community College System now has 13 community colleges, including LTI.

The Oswald Building, located on Cooper Drive near Commonwealth Stadium, was ready for occupancy this fall semester. The building includes 13 classrooms, three laboratories, a library and offices and cost about $4.6 million. LTI formerly occupied space in Breckinridge Hall on the central UK campus.

Aids is the Aim

A new student-service facility designed to furnish academic information and help in study skills problems and primarily aimed at filling needs of ill-prepared freshmen who are not eligible for the Developmental Studies Program or cannot be handled by the Counseling and Testing Center has been launched.

The Academic Information-Developmental Skills Center (AIDS):

- *Helps in setting up workable study schedules for students who find themselves unable to fulfill all requirements of their various courses.

- *Teaches efficient note-taking methods—from both textbooks and lectures.

- *Shows the student how to more efficiently prepare for a test and to deal with the different kinds of items likely to appear.

The study skills assistant gives no help with content, only with methods. Problems requiring a longer time for remediation are referred either to the Developmental Studies Program or the Counseling and Testing Center.

AIDS also is designed to assist students experiencing difficulty with writing, from simple mechanical problems to the more complicated standards of footnoting. The staff works not only with freshmen but with students through the graduate level, either on a one-quick-session basis or in continuing sessions of specialized help.

In coping with the many concerns and problems of students, AIDS makes use of many of the programs, published materials and resources of the University.

Appalachian Satellite Project is Expanding

The Appalachian Education Satellite Project, for which the University served as the central source of all course planning, development, production and evaluation activities, is being expanded to allow more receiving sites, more participating institutions and more Regional Education Service Agencies, which implement the courses at the local level.

Course development for the project began in the College of Education in June, 1973, and a recent survey of participants indicates that they liked the course as well, and in many cases better than those provided in campus-based instructions. Also, it was found that the cost of satellite-delivered courses is competitive with campus-based instruction.

Participation in the program has afforded Appalachian teachers a unique and varied in-service training experience. Rather than depersonalizing the sessions, use of the satellite has created excitement and engendered a feeling of closeness among the participants at the dispersed sites.

Plans include programs for diverse professional groups as well as for individual residents of the Appalachian region in continuing and adult education, and undergraduate and graduate education.

The University Office of Instructional Resources pioneered the design of satellite-delivered courses, the first in the nation to be delivered live—using a format of interactive televised seminars and pretaped instructional TV programs via satellite to persons over a wide and far-flung area.

Break-Away

Recognizing that collisions with utility poles alongside highways result in many traffic deaths and injuries, a civil engineering team headed by John W. Hutchinson, is exploring the economic feasibility of installing "breakaway" poles that are strong enough to support wire but will give way when struck, resulting in fewer damages to the vehicle and passengers.

The team also is studying different design ideas, hoping to find the type of breakaway pole that would best serve the purpose.

Hutchinson's team and a Texas group are sharing $150,000 from the U.S. Department of Transportation to study vehicle-pole collisions and characteristics of the accidents themselves to determine where the poles would be needed and whether it would be possible to finance their installation.

The UK team is working with state and local police in several Central Kentucky counties in its study of pole-collision accidents.

Some of the Oldest; Some of the Largest

The University serves another constituency right on campus that annually equals the number in the student body.

Robert Figg, director of conferences and institutes, reports that during the last fiscal year 20,374 people attended 158 different meetings on campus through the aegis of his office.

Some of the oldest and largest are the Kentucky Fire School, now in its 47th year and the oldest in the nation, which entertained more than 1,400 firemen from all over the state; the Kentucky School of Banking, now in its 29th year, with more than 300 young bankers in attendance, and the Kentucky Youth Seminar, with 350 in attendance.

More than 1,000 4-H'ers were here for Kentucky 4-H Week meetings and 200 persons attended a Title IV Personnel Training Conference, chaired by Figg and C. R. Hager of the Council on Aging.

One national conference is held at UK on urban hydrology, and the Conference on Crime Countermeasures, chaired by John Jackson, already has earned an international reputation. One conference attracted 18 participants from 16 foreign countries.

Last year participants in conferences at the University were from every county in Kentucky, from every state in the Union, and from nearly two dozen countries.

Significant Activities of Faculty and Staff

Eldon D. Smith, agriculture economics, has been named a center associate of the Southern Rural Development Center.

The National Council of Teachers of English has appointed Michael E. Adelstein, English, as a regional judge for the NCTE Achievement Awards in Writing Program.

James P. Noffsinger, architecture, has been selected for a Fulbright-Hays award and will lecture and do research in England in architectural preservation.

Fekreya A. Aly, social services, conducted a workshop on professional responsibility and assertiveness in medical social work at the Veterans Administration Hospital, Nashville. She also chaired and coordinated a health task force institute on social work training in long-term care facilities.

Sports Gleanings

Curci Conducts Pre-Season Clinic

Perhaps the best pre-season information on Kentucky's current football team came direct from coach Fran Curci at the second annual football clinic for women. In the past two years, Curci has instructed more than 200 women in the basics as well as some of the finer points about the game of football.

If you have any questions about the wishbone formation the Wildcats will be using on offense this year, ask the lady next to you. She just might be able to tell you what its all about.

In the overall scheme of things this year, there will be no superstar. "We don't need a superstar. Everybody has to help everybody to make the wishbone work. We have three good, steady runners," Curci assured the women.

"Major changes you'll see on the field is the movement of the wide receiver to the backfield. The other big change from last year's lineup on the line of scrimmage will be a reduction in the spacing. Our linemen will be in there tight."

He also said the quarterback will be calling the plays "with a few exceptions". For the first time Kentucky will be playing football with the help of the computer. "We have ourselves and our opponents on computer. We can predict, within a certain percentage, what our opponent is likely to do in any given situation. When we detect ourselves establishing a pattern of play in a game, we can change our tactics and put the opponents off-balance."

Were you one of the groaners as UK lined up again just like they'd lined up before time after time last year? Curci promises more action this year. The Cats now have a minimum of ten offensive sets.

Curci feels that the experience of last season has aged his players some. "We were a young team, playing lots of freshmen and sophomores and making lots of mistakes.

We shouldn't be making those mistakes this year for two reasons—we're a year older and we've changed to the wishbone which eliminates some of the situations which gave us trouble last year. We didn't have a Mike Fanuzzi to quarterback and that's what it takes to run the veer offense."

Kentucky's line will be average for the Southeastern Conference this year with a mean height and weight of 6'4", 250 pounds. Last year UK executed more plays than any other team in the conference and expects to do the same again this season. "If a team is averaging four yards a play, then the more plays they can get off, the more yards they'll gain. There's also a greater chance for confusing the defense when you move quickly," Curci said.

There will be some changes made off the field, too. The players will be housed together in one of the dormitories, lights out will be at 11 p.m. and everyone, both married and single players, will be in the dorms the two nights before the game. There's no more carbohydrate pre-game diet plan. "The boys just don't like spaghetti and pancakes and, really, to do any good they'd need to eat that for at least three days leading up to each game. It's steak and eggs on Saturday again," says Curci.

The Big Blue Machine

There's a new book available about the glorious story of basketball at the University of Kentucky. "The Big Blue Machine" written by Russell A. Rice, sports information director at UK, is on sale at Kentucky's bookstores.

Rice uses the same style he introduced last year in his book about Kentucky football, "The Wildcats". It takes about 100 more pages to tell the basketball saga which is current through the 1976 National Invitational Tournament championship.

Some of the highlights of the book are the story of Adolph Rupp from his birth to his arrival at UK which was written by the Baron himself. In addition, there are time-out chapters about individual stars and echo chapters which recount the early 40's, late 40's, the 50's and the 60's.

There are numerous anecdotes and personal glimpses by and of many players and, of course, Coach Rupp.

The book sells for $8.95 and is published by the Strode Publishing Company as part of its sports series.

UK's First Women Signees

Thirty young women have been signed to athletic grants-in-aid in six varsity sports at the University of Kentucky.

The scholarships are the first ever offered or awarded to women athletes at the University of Kentucky. Twelve of the grant-in-aid recipients are entering freshmen, one is a junior college transfer student and the rest are already attending UK.

"We are trying to recruit the best women athletes in Kentucky and to keep them at UK," said Sue Feamster, director of women's athletics at UK. There is scholarship money remaining, Ms. Feamster added, "available for walkons."

Golf grants-in-aid have been awarded to Vicki Coker, freshman, Montgomery, Ala.; Tennyne Ohr, freshman, Irvine, Ky.; Cynthia Frances Powell, junior, Winchester; Diane Frances Tuttle, freshman, Frankfort; and Myra Van Hoose, senior, Lexington.

Gymnastics—Judith Steinlage, junior transfer student, Louisville.

LIMITING ENROLLMENTS: A MATTER OF QUALITY STILL

Limited enrollments have long been associated with the Colleges of Law and Medicine, but today the practice of limited enrollments is expanding.

At some universities, the limitations have been the direct result of budgetary squeezes. The State University of New York is holding enrollments at the present levels for the next five years on 20 of its campuses. Michigan State University limited its enrollment during two recent semesters seeking to lower this fall's total enrollment by about 1,000. The University of North Carolina, too, has imposed some enrollment restrictions at its Chapel Hill campus. Others exercising some controls are the University of Illinois—Champaign—Urbana, the University of Wisconsin system and Appalachian State University. Some of the others considering limits are North Carolina State University and universities on the state system in Florida.

Here at UK limitations on enrollments have been confined to a few specific colleges. "We haven't had to make blanket restrictions to limit total campus enrollment as some other universities have had to do," says Lew Cochran, vice president for academic affairs at UK. "Most of the restrictions have been initiated by individual colleges to keep enrollments compatible with available resources."

In addition to law and medicine, programs in architecture, education, allied health professions, nursing, pharmacy, dentistry and the graduate school utilize a selective enrollment process.

The College of Architecture began selective admission procedures in 1975. Before that time 75 to 100 new students were being taken into the program each year while only around 45 were graduating. A combination of academic and interest inventory testing and a personal interview was employed last fall resulting in 37 new students being accepted.

It is expected such a selection process will reduce significantly the amount of frustration and failure associated with the program since those who enter probably will be better motivated and more highly qualified. "The selective procedure helps us identify students with the greater potential for successful completion of the program." Cochran said.

The College of Education has implemented a procedure which requires aspiring teachers to be admitted to the teacher education program which leads to certification for teaching. To be admitted, students must have maintained a minimal 2.0 grade point average in all college work, have previous supervised experience working in a helping relationship with children or adolescents, complete certain required tests and have a positive recommendation from the appropriate major program faculty.

"It is too early to see the effect of this program since it applies to second-semester sophomores. So far only transfer students have been affected by the admission requirements. This spring the first large number of students will apply as members of the class of '79 become eligible for the upper division teacher certification program," Cochran pointed out.

He added the primary reason for the restrictions was quality—a further effort to train the best of teachers. Some thought, he said, also was given to the job market. "We are training the best teachers possible to meet the job opportunities available to them."

In other programs, limits are dictated by available resources—personnel and instructional material and equipment. The master's program in social work is limited to 60 and the master's program in public administration to 20. An entering class of dentists doesn't exceed 60. The doctoral program in clinical psychology can accommodate only eight.

The nursing program at UK is taking a dramatic turn with the inception of this fall semester. According to Dean Marian McKenna, there are no freshman-level nurses; next year there will be no sophomores. The nursing curriculum has been redesigned as a degree program for registered nurses, persons who have already received their basic nursing education elsewhere. Embracing a career ladder concept, the baccalaureate program is aimed at training individuals to meet nursing service demands for school, industrial and clinic nurses, nurses with advanced training in a specific area of nursing care and supervisory nurses.

The master's program will go on to train the individual nurse for additional career options. At this level, a nurse may choose to be a clinical specialist in midwifery, medical, psychiatric, surgical or pediatric areas, to be a teacher of nursing, to be an administrator or to be a beginning nurse researcher.

Before the move to this unique and innovative curriculum, it was determined that persons wishing to become nurses will have adequate opportunity within the state to obtain basic nurse's training in existing diploma (hospital-affiliated) or associate degree (community college) programs. There are also other universities in the state system which provide a basic nursing baccalaureate degree program such as UK used to offer.

Thus, limitations at UK, rather than an economic bane at the present, are actually enhancing the quality of education the student is getting here. By keeping the student population in line with present faculty and material resources and with job opportunities upon graduation, a student can be assured his interests are number one, his education of the highest quality.

Annual Report

Increasing Numbers/ Expanding Programs

By Jay Brumfield
Director, Alumni Affairs

As with all alumni associations across the land, your UK Alumni Association has experienced considerable growth in numbers during the past ten-year period. In this time, the number of alumni of record has increased from 31,000 in 1966 to over 65,000 this year. One of the more startling facts is that fifty percent of all of UK's graduates have earned their degrees since 1962! For the last several years 3,200 to 4,000 have been graduated yearly. In May of this year (one of three annual commencements), 2,068 received degrees from the University.

Membership in the Association has also increased correspondingly as the records show that 17,840 alumni are currently "active" because they are either annual dues-paying members or are life members. In 1966 only 4,420 alumni were considered "active".

One would think that such numerical increases as stated above would also call for like increases in staff positions, but fortunately your Association has been able to "keep up" with these increases and make some progress in terms of programs, publications, et cetera with few additions to the staff. In July of 1966 there were 11 persons involved in alumni programs and records. This July there are 13 persons employed to do the same work, an increase of only two in ten years.

The area of greatest growth—records—has experienced no increase in personnel. In 1966 we had three ladies in the records area and today, ten years later, we still have only three. Changes in methods and reliance upon data processing has saved the day. Thanks to David Scott, now chairman of the board of Allis-Chalmers Corporation, the Association's visual records were converted onto magnetic tape for computer utilization. This tremendous task of key-punching 40,000 records of graduates, former students and deceased alumni was encouraged and financed by Mr. Scott. Having made the change in 1968 and 1969, it has been encouraging to find the University's computer center so willing to assist us and actually devise methods which makes our records-keeping procedures as efficient as they are.

Errors are still found and will continue to be made simply because the mechanics of coding alumni information into numeric data and then keypunching from coded forms allows for human error. If a two is thought to be a seven or a five interpreted as a "S", then all sorts of things can happen to the record. With all of us having a six-digit identifying number, an error in any one of those numbers produces changes in a file other than that being updated. With better cooperation from the postal service and assistance from alumni in the matter of new information, our records clerks could perform even better.

The office needs to be informed about deaths, changes of address, marriages, new degrees, et cetera. Clipping newspapers and relying upon postal carriers just doesn't provide the information which is constantly needed. All alumni ought to assist this records operation by sending us new addresses or other pertinent data.

Other than numbers, many things remain the same. UK alumni interests continue to center around activities that retain a traditional and strong interest in UK athletics. Your UK Alumni Association has always taken advantage of this overt interest and plans more than one-half of its annual events around the sports theme. After all, what other university can report an average home football attendance of 57,035 (17th in the entire nation) while winning only two of eleven games? And how many universities can afford to give up an 11,500 seat basketball arena on the basis of inadequacy to accommodate the expected hordes of fans? Much good has come of this alumni/athletics arrangement and we fully expect future benefits to offset the negative PR resulting from disappointed or even irate alumni members who will be unsuccessful in their efforts to secure season tickets in the new Rupp Arena.

There is also a small, and hopefully growing, group of alumni becoming UK fans for other than athletic reasons. The amount of gift dollars being received by the university is coming from an increasing number of loyalists who are restricting their gifts to academic programs. In the first six months of this calendar year, $110,109 were earmarked for use by the 16 various colleges at the University. But at the same time, the Blue-White Athletic Fund received $170,978.

Alumni tour programs, largely outside the United States, have been quite successful especially when viewed from the standpoint of achieving greater alumni fellowship and expanding individual knowledge. Many new and lasting friendships have resulted from the sixteen UK alumni tours programmed since 1972. It is fervently hoped that these alumni travelers have also become better world citizens, understanding and appreciating the different cultures and lands to an even greater degree than before.

The office needs information about changes of address, new degrees, career advancement and honors, marriages and deaths.

Some other achievements may be found in those programs created simply to give balance to the total. Several attempts have been made to stimulate interest in art and photography and the Alumni Artists series will be continued this fall and in 1977. Thanks to the generosity of our alumni and the interest of the UK Development Council, awards in the form of monetary grants and scholarships were provided by the Association last year and also will be continued and expanded, particularly if the proceeds from the sale of C. G. Morehead's print of the Administration Building live up to expectations. Six UK professors were recognized in 1976 as Great Teachers (making a total of 55 since 1961) while 16 undergraduates received financial grants and another six students were awarded marching band scholarships—all a part of the UK Alumni Association's awards program. Many more scholarships are available to UK students. Supported by either alumni contributions to the annual giving fund or by individuals who really care, these grants totalled some $250,000 last year. Loan funds and government financed awards are not included in this total.

Your Board of Directors is always at work studying programs which they feel may have popular appeal and add to the development of the individual as well as the Association. One such recent study involved several areas of University life as well as alumni participation and may be casually referred to as continuing education. No doubt many of you have read or even experienced summer programs held on this or other university campuses and titled mini-university, alumni college or similar name. Many such programs include activities for children so that the parents are free to participate in discussions to the fullest. Others are, of course, limited to adults. Needless to say, the courses offered in such summer programs range from ceramics to 17th century politics.

While there is some evidence that UK alumni would like to participate in similar institutes, the question considered by the Board of Directors was not an evaluation of the value or worth of such programs, but rather who ought to sponsor them. It was finally agreed by your Board that the Division of Extended Programs or the more professionally-oriented colleges should be the responsible agent. After viewing the many circulars, brochures, et cetera published by various UK departments, I can assure our readers that there is probably something offered for just about everyone who wants to return to the campus.

"I hope the next 10 years will find us identifying and pursuing more enriching avenues."

While I am extremely pleased with the progress toward a well-rounded, purposeful program made by this Association and delighted with the enthusiasm and dedication of your Board of Directors, I hope that the next ten-year period will find us identifying and pursuing more enriching avenues as well as the many programs geared to entertainment only.

The volunteer work of our alumni as trustees, advisors, counselors to the young, contributors of time, talent and wealth needs far greater recognition than has been granted to date. Perhaps just recognition can be more easily attained if these same alumni make a sustained and concerted effort to assist their peers to become better citizens, to develop an understanding and toleration of human beings, and to maintain as individuals an uncompromising ethical conduct.

Annual Report

Membership

Statistics continue to show upward trend

Membership in the Association increased during the 1975-76 fiscal year with 1,493 members added to the rolls, evidence of ever-increasing interest in the Association's benefits and programs.

Approximately 72 percent reside in Kentucky with the remaining 28% out-of-the-state. Fayette County is the largest membership area claiming approximately 4,500 members and Jefferson County ranks second with more than 2,000 members.

Following is a membership report as of June 25, 1976:

Annual members	12,626
"Free" members (1975 graduates)	1,076
Life Members	4,138
TOTAL	17,840

Rupp Arena, the new 23,000 seat basketball arena will open and your Association has purchased a block of tickets to be sold on an individual game basis to members in various club areas. Details are being formulated to offer packaged plans for alumni to come to Lexington and watch the wildcats battle for the SEC crown.

Alumni group travel tours at reduced rates are popular with our members. Eight tours were scheduled in 1976 and five have been scheduled tentatively for 1977.

A special order form for UK Basketball Invitational Tournament tickets will be mailed in November to all members. The UKIT will be played December 17 and 18 with Kentucky, Bowling Green, West Virginia and Utah competing for the championship.

Spindletop Hall, the beautiful alumni-faculty club, continues to offer excellent dining and recreational facilities to active alumni members. Approximately 1,300 memberships at the club are held by alumni.

Despite inflation, membership fees have not increased. Annual membership fees remain at $10 for an individual and $12 for husband and wife. Life membership fees are $175, individual, and $200, husband and wife if paid in full. A five-year life membership installment plan is offered to individuals for $225 and a joint membership at $250. Payments of $45 or $50 are made annually. However, if an installment life membership contract is paid in full prior to the end of the five-year period, the amount due will be reduced by $10 per year for each year of prepayment.

Members keep up with UK today by reading The Kentucky Alumnus published quarterly. Feature stories about the University and alumni, class notes and campus activities continue to interest readers.

The Alumni Board of Directors voted in 1975 to offer graduates beginning with the class of '75 an opportunity to join the Association during their first five years out of school at one-half the annual rate. Further study on this proposal indicated that it was not economically feasible due to rising costs. The board voted to rescind this action at its 1976 workshop. Free memberships will continue to be offered 1976 graduates who have not received a prior degree from the University. Graduates must return a card to the alumni office indicating they wish to enjoy this free membership.

Annual Report

Finances

Budgets, Balances and Investments

The UK Alumni Association finished the year with a budget balance of $20,469.73. For the first time since the Association began operating on a dues system, it was not necessary to withdraw funds from the principal of monies on deposit.

The Association's investment portfolio came within 0.5 percent of a targeted yield of 6 percent during its first year under professional management. The invested sum of $356,666.85 had a market value of $378,860.32 as of June 30, 1976. Estimated annual income from the investments on that date was $20,956.00.

The University of Kentucky Alumni Association maintains four accounts. Their definitions follow so that you might have a greater understanding of the numeric and graphic information presented in this section of the annual report.

The restricted account is funded largely by the dues and the contributions of alumni to the UK Alumni Association. This account is the primary account of the Association. It is used to fund those activities which form the majority of the Association's daily operations.

The century fund is composed of contributions of alumni to the Association. This fund is primarily used to pay for major purchases of furniture or major additions to the Alumni House.

The alumni awards and professorships fund, as indicated, receives funds from alumni gifts and other contributions secured by the UK Office of Development.

The life membership account is derived from the dues of those persons who become life members of the Association. These dues are primarily used to establish an endowment fund whose investments are being managed by a leading U.S. brokerage firm. Also, some funds are transferred to the above restricted account for financing daily operations of the Association.

Alumni Service

Betty Carol (Pace) Clark

Dr. Glenn Dorroh & Judge Robert Spragens

"for dedicated effort on behalf of the A

Betty Carol (Pace) Clark is a graduate of the class of 1952. She is currently serving on the UK Board of Trustees and the UK Alumni Association Board of Directors.

She has been an active alumna, having served on the alumni board since 1969. Last year she was national membership chairman of the Association. She has been a trustee of UK since 1971.

At UK she was president of Chi Omega Sorority and is a past national secretary of Mortar Board. Mrs. Clark is also a graduate of the Harvard-Radcliffe program in business administration, is listed in Who's Who of American Women, was the first woman elected a director of the Glasgow-Barren County Chamber of Commerce, served on the Kentucky Youth Research Foundation board of directors, and is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Glenn U. Dorroh is currently a member of the UK Alumni Association Board of Directors. He served as national president of the Association in 1963-1964. In addition to his continuous service to the Alumni Association, Dr. Dorroh has served as chairman of the Lexington-Fayette County Board of Health for 13 years. The city-county government recently announced plans for a new health department building which will be named in honor of Dr. Dorroh. Dorroh earned his BS degree from UK in 1925, was awarded his MD degree from the University of Louisville in 1931 and did post-graduate work at Harvard Medical School and several Army medical schools. Dr. Dorroh has a general medicine practice in Lexington. He is married to Pearl (Neal) who is a graduate of the UK class of 1925.

Service Awards

f of the Association and the University"

Eugene C. Royse, who earned a BS degree in commerce in 1931 and an LIB degree in 1934 from UK, is senior partner in the law firm of Royse, Zweigart and Kirk in Maysville. Mr. Royse is currently president of the Mason County-UK Alumni Club, an office he has held for two years. He is a past member of the UK Alumni Association's Board of Directors, having served continuously from 1966-1974. While a member of the board, he served as parliamentarian, co-chairman of the resolutions committee, and a member of the community college relations and alumni seminar committees. As a collegian, Royse was president of Phi Sigma Kappa social fraternity and Phi Mu Alpha honorary musical fraternity. He was also a member of Omicron Delta Kappa honorary leadership fraternity, Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity, Strollers the orchestra and glee club.

Eugene Royse & Judge Robert Spragens

W. Hugh Adcock, class of '32, was diligent in his efforts for the UK Alumni Association and the University. He was president of the Greater Atlanta, Ga.,-UK Alumni Club on three occasions and served as national vice president and national president of the Association. He also served ten years on the Association's Board of Directors and served one year as chairman of that group's past presidents advisory council. While an undergraduate, he was elected to Alpha Tau Omega social fraternity, Sigma Delta Chi professional journalism fraternity, Phi Mu Alpha music honorary fraternity and Omicron Delta Kappa leadership honorary fraternity. He was director of Strollers Dramatic Society and was a member, and later managed, the Blue and White Orchestra, a nationally recognized music group.

Programming

New activities directed toward undergraduates

Some of the new programs generated by the Association in '75-'76 were directed at gaining the attention of undergraduates. Associate director Bob Whittaker began laying the foundation for the activation of a Student-Alumni Council. A nucleus of 12 undergraduate student leaders have been interested in chartering the council which will plan a variety of activities and become a conduit for interaction between alumni and students. The introduction of the Alumni Association to the students during the school years is expected to more clearly define the Association and attract a greater number to join upon graduation.

The first annual cake day was held in April at cafeteria locations throughout the campus. Alumni board members and staff served small portions of cake marked with an alumni blue "A" to several thousand students. The event promoted some sound questions from students about alumni services and programs they can look forward to enjoying.

The Association also participated in the first Little Kentucky Derby balloon race. The hare or lead balloon carried the Alumni Association logo across the sky. Later the balloonists and student participants enjoyed a reception at the Alumni House.

Another program designed as interaction between students and alumni was held in conjunction with the College of Arts and Sciences. Alumni who can give a portion of their time to talk with students who are undecided about a major area of study are being sought. A registry of resource persons is being kept in the dean's office. During the career interest counseling phase, students are directed to these people who are working in an area which the student is considering for his life's work. By talking with the alumnus, observing his job setting and getting an understanding of the responsibilities associated with that career can help the student decide upon his future.

Membership Policy

The board of directors formulated a policy protecting the value of membership in which dues-paying members of the Association have invested. The policy states that only dues-paying (annual or life) members of the UK Alumni Association shall receive mailings announcing club activities. Clubs will be permitted to open one event a year to all alumni in an area. And, of course, dues-paying alumni can bring friends to any event. It is hoped by the board, however, that if the friends are likewise alumni that they will be encouraged by the club leadership to join the national association.

Currently non-members receive "the Open Door" newspaper and reunions are sponsored for all class members of record. Reunions in '75-'76 were held for the classes of '50, '55 and '60 during the football season and for the classes of '16, '21, '26, '31 and '36 during commencement weekend in May. The largest turnout was for the 25th reunion of the class of 1950.

Sports

A championship basketball team was cheered to victory by two contingents of alumni who took advantage of Alumni Association charters to New York City.

In New York the Association sponsored two receptions hosting more than 450 people.

The UK Athletics Association is permitting the Alumni Association to purchase a block of 300 basketball tickets for the new Rupp Arena and the board of directors has approved a plan whereby members of the National Association may have access to these tickets. UK will play its 12 home games and the UKIT in Rupp Arena beginning with the UK-Wisconsin game on November 27.

The allotment of tickets for the Association is located at the end of the arena, but are chair seats and will be priced at $5.00 per ticket. The distribution plan approved by the board calls for all tickets to be re-sold through active alumni clubs to members of the Association. Special club nights will be established throughout the season and those persons are encouraged to travel by bus as parking spaces near Rupp Arena are extremely limited.

Some clubs, such as Fayette and Jefferson, have such a large membership that more than one game will be available to them. Special notices will go out to all members in club areas listing the dates available to that club and procedures for securing the tickets. Members living in areas without active alumni clubs are requested to contact Bob Whitaker, associate director of Alumni Affairs, (606/258-8905) for guidance in forming or reactivating a local club.

Merchandising

The Association's merchandising program continued ahead on three tracks. The Wildcat Specialties merchandise accumulated sales of $3,002.78, with an income to the Association of $645.73. This income, however, did not offset expenses in providing the program for alumni. As of June 30, 1976, proceeds from the sale of the Morehead print of the Administration Building amounted to $5,420 for the Association. The money is being held for scholarships. The book purchase plan continues to be the most successful merchandising opportunity provided by the Association. In addition to the many books purchased by alumni from the University Press of Kentucky at a 30 percent discount, the book called "Wildcats" (about Kentucky football) by Russell Rice and another book, "Wildflowers of Eastern America" by James Cunningham were offered to alumni as a service of the Association.

Tours

With 278 reservations, it was a banner year for overseas travel. Six tours departed under the sponsorship of the Association. In testimony to the quality of the tours, many of the alumni were repeat travellers with the Association. Nancy H. Jefferson '49, '53, could be our greatest salesperson having participated in eight tours since the program began and she's signed up for more. Trips scheduled for the '76-'77 fiscal year include Alaska, July '76; Munich-Vienna-Budapest, August '76; Austrian Alpine, September '76; Trans-Panama Air-Sea Cruise, February '77, and a repeat of the much demanded Rhine River Cruise in May '77. Two additional trips are yet to be announced.

Club Leadership

Community-alumni relations continued to progress through club development and activity, as five new clubs were organized and others stepped-up programs.

New clubs were organized in Philadelphia-Southern New Jersey, Greater Knoxville, Cumberland Valley (Bell, Harlan, Knox, Laurel, Leslie and Whitley Counties), Winchester-Clark County and Carter County. Others are being organized in Richmond, Virginia and Cincinnati.

Highlighting the year were several unique activities. The Joe Creason Tennis Benefit in Louisville, sponsored by the Jefferson County Club, raised over $3,000 for the lecture series fund. More than 600 turned out for the Jefferson County Belle of Louisville summer river excursion. The dinner-dance on the sternwheeler was a cooperative effort by the club and National Association to promote membership. Active and inactive members of the Association, from throughout the state, attended the function.

In '75, the Fayette Club had a football picnic at Commonwealth Stadium and alumni toured the press box facilities. Alumni sat in on an authentic Wildcat practice session directed by Coach Joe Hall after a buffet dinner at Memorial Coliseum. The club also hosted nearly 300 persons gathered for a kick-off party at the Alumni House in September and the national board of directors summer workshop in June.

Visitors and local alumni attended a dinner-dance organized for the occasion.

Alumni from Ashland and Owensboro met during a career night with students from their areas that planned to attend UK. Over 100 students and parents attended the Ashland affair, and over 200 participated at Owensboro. Owensboro also hosted the third annual UK Day In West Kentucky. The area's coaches and alumni attended a dinner along with university and athletics department officials and coaches.

Annual meetings were held by Trigg, Christian, Mason, Franklin, and Hopkins Counties, Greater Detroit, Greater Memphis, Greater Knoxville, Cumberland Valley, Northern Kentucky, Montgomery, Alabama and Denver clubs.

Post game parties were held by the Atlanta, Chicago and Nashville clubs. A party was also held by the National Association for alumni and friends attending the University of North Carolina-UK basketball game at Charlotte last year.

Sports banquets were successful in Northern Kentucky and Jefferson County.

Many clubs sponsored bus trips to ball games.

The Washington, D.C. Club continued its successful format of conducting monthly meetings.

Derby parties were held in Atlanta, Chicago, Denver, Detroit, Los Angeles, Nashville, New York, Philadelphia-Southern New Jersey and Syracuse.

Charles Bickel '05

Mr. Bickel: Dean of Alumni Members

Charles Bickel '05 may well be the Association's eldest member in chronological age. He'll be celebrating his 91st birthday on October 6. His diploma, which he keeps close at hand, is signed by James K. Patterson, president of Kentucky A & M College, as the University was called in those days, and by J. C. W. Beckham, president of the Board of Trustees.

Bickel, who was graduated with a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering, believes that students didn't have quite as much fun as they do today. "Our schedule was more regimented—all of it from sun up to sun down. We lived in a serious environment where almost every energy was directed toward studies. Besides, the President knew all of us so you couldn't be too mischievous."

Bickell was a member of the Tau Beta Phi engineering honorary and completed his degree requirements in three years. He began his career upon graduation with Allis-Chalmers in Cincinnati and later in Milwaukee. During World War I, he was in charge of construction of electrical equipment under a government contract for torpedo boat condensers. He also held executive positions with several sand and gravel corporations and worked for 36 years for the Vang Ready-Mix Concrete Company retiring in 1960.

Much of his time is now devoted to gardening (both flowers and vegetables flourished under his care this summer), to wood carving and to painting. Some of his loveliest carvings are of birds and animals. A watercolor of his father's birthplace hangs in the living room attesting to his skill with this medium.

The UK Alumni Association has been in regular contact with Bickel since his graduation. Recently he made a family visit to Louisville with just one sidetrip—a tour of the UK campus with a special stop at the Alumni House. One of his impressions was the sense of beauty that prevails despite the tremendous growth in the campus. "It wasn't too great a shock after reading about it in the magazine, but you still have to see it to realize the changes."

Though Bickel's son is not a UK alumnus, a contemporary tie with UK remains as Bickel's nephew, Harry Chapman, is on campus for post-graduate study in the College of Architecture.

With the changing season upon us, Bickel plans to finish up his garden chores and turn his attention to his painting. In good health and dedicated to being active and interested in living, Bickel is having a good life.

"The Kentucky Alumnus" extends its appreciation to Logan (Van Meter) Nelson '35 for interviewing Mr. Bickel at his home and providing the information for this profile.

Profile

Herman Harrison '50

Harrison: A President Since the '60s

It's a quantum leap from London High School where Herman Harrison was valedictorian of his 1950 graduating class to senior vice president of the prestigious Young Presidents Organization with 3,100 members scattered around the globe from North America to Japan.

But UK Alumnus Harrison, graduate of the University of Kentucky College of Engineering, has made it.

Today, living in Cincinnati, he is president of the Harrison Corporation, a holding company, and its sole stockholder. He is also president of Kinetics Corp., an engineering and design firm, and the Foster Transformer Company, manufacturers of transformers found in telephone systems, television receivers, computers as well as heating and air conditioning systems.

How he was admitted to the Young Presidents Organization gives some idea of his success since working his way to a BS degree.

The YPO admits only those youthful executives who are chief executives of their own firms. They must have approximately 50 employees and have a minimum of $2 million dollars annually in sales.

Harrison qualified early at the age of 30. He has been head of his various companies since he was 28. Now at 44 he is approaching the YPO "retirement" age of 50.

In the meantime, both his professional work and his YPO assignments have taken him to Japan and Europe, as well as to every state in the nation.

More than that he has not forgotten his alma mater. He is a life member of the Alumni Association and the UK Development Council.

In other business and industrial activities, he serves on the board of the Lodge and Shipley Co. and the Shepherd Chemical Co.

His hobbies have a Kentucky background, the breeding and showing of quarter horses and blue ribbons at the Kentucky State Fair.—GK

Alumni Activity Line * Clubs

Christian County

UK Alumni board member and All-American basketballer Frank Ramsey was guest speaker at the Christian County summer outing. Tom Nelson announced plans for club trips to the UK-Vanderbilt football game in Lexington and the UK-UT game in Knoxville. The club also will journey to the Notre Dame basketball game in Louisville.

Fayette County

The annual Commonwealth Stadium picnic was held September 4. UK Alumni toured the coaches' offices and players' facilities after enjoying a noon buffet luncheon.

Dick Rushing recently was elected chairman of the Fayette group.

Cumberland Valley

A Blue and White party and dinner meeting kicked off the new six county (Harlan, Leslie, Bell, Knox, Laurel and Whitley) club of the UK Alumni Association. Dr. Otis Singletary, University of Kentucky president, spoke to the group.

Plans for the club members to attend the September 25 brunch at the King Alumni House prior to the UK-West Virginia football game in Lexington were announced. The club also will journey to the UK-UT football game in Knoxville.

Jefferson County

Over 600 alumni and friends of the University enjoyed the UK-Jefferson County Belle of Louisville river cruise July 23. The club sponsored the excursion on the grand old stern-wheeler in cooperation with the UK National Association as a membership promotion. Prospective members became acquainted with local, area and other members of the Association, and the Jefferson club. A buffet dinner was served and The Graduates supplied dance music.

Mason County

At a luncheon meeting of the executive committee, plans were finalized for a bus trip to the UK-West Virginia football game September 25. Details of the trip are available from club president Eugene Royse.

Northern Kentucky

The annual summer picnic was held July 30 at Devou Park. Tickets to the Notre Dame and Florida State basketball games in Louisville were sold to club members.

Approximately 100 alumni and friends of the University enjoyed the summer outing.

Big Sandy

A fall dinner meeting will be held October 26 at Jenny Wiley State Park. University of Kentucky President Otis Singletary will be guest speaker.

The Big Sandy (formerly Highlands) Alumni Club recently reorganized and elected William G. Francis, Prestonsburg, chairman. The five county organization also elected as executive committee members: Floyd County, Dr. Fred Meece; Johnson County, Howes Johnson and Gary Knight; Martin County, Dr. Charles Arnett and Mrs. Raymond Wells; Pike County, Don Combs and Richard G. Wells Jr; Magoffin County, Darrell Bailey and Carter Conley.

McCracken County

Chairman Burnham Jones announced that ballots would be mailed for the purpose of electing new members to the executive committee. Tentative plans call for a fall or winter dinner meeting after new officers are installed.

Jerry Stricker sells some basketball tickets to fellow Northern Kentucky-UK Alumni Club members.

Bunny and Dan Abbott and John Nichols were among the alumni on board the Belle of Louisville for a summertime cruise sponsored by the Jefferson County alumni club and the National Association.

Montgomery alumni club recently hosted student athletes Chris Hill and Vicky Coker. Above are Hill, club chairman Ron Forrester, Coker, and her mother.

Trigg County

A fall dinner meeting will be held in Trigg County with alumni from Caldwell and Lyon Counties invited as guests. A UK speaker will be featured.

Carter County

UK National Alumni Association president-elect Henry Wilhoit recently conducted an organizational meeting, and Robert P. Brown, Grayson, was elected chairman of the new club.

The club plans a trip to the UK-LSU football game, October 16.

Alumni and friends of the University interested in participating in club activities contact: Brown, 128 E. Main, Grayson, Ky. 41143.

Clark County

UK National Board member Jane McCann got the ball rollin' in Clark County with a group of interested alumni that launched a club with a dinner meeting September 23. University of Kentucky President Otis Singletary was guest speaker at the 6 p.m. get-together at the Winchester Country Club.

Alumni and friends of the University interested in the club should contact: McCann, 109 Ashford Drive, Winchester, Ky. 40391.

Greater Atlanta

Club leader Tom Moseley announced the club would journey to the UK-UT football game in Knoxville. Moseley, at the national alumni summer workshop, said he was working on a schedule of activities and programs for the club to be announced soon.

Greater Detroit

A bus trip to the UK-LSU football game in Lexington is set. Miles Kinkead, head of the club, said alumni had received notices telling of several optional plans for the October 16 encounter.

Colorado

Overseeing the activities of the Denver-based Colorado-UK Alumni Club are presidents, Ruth and Jim Newman; presidents-elect, Frances and Ed Earle; secretary-treasurer, Lois and Jim Snee; corresponding secretaries, Carolyn and Roger Simmons; membership, Barbara and Billy Prebble; nominations, Martha and Harry Hardgrove; publicity, Carola and Larry Steffek; program, Melba and Leon Hildenbrandt and Lynn and Roy Huffman; friends, Virginia Theiling; and historian, Frances Hahn.

Greater Knoxville

A summer picnic was held at Cove Lake State Park near Knoxville. The area alumni enjoyed swimming, games and just relaxing together.

In cooperation with the National Association, the club will host a dance at the Hyatt-Regency the night before the November 20 encounter with Tennessee. A brunch on Saturday prior to the game is also set.

Greater Memphis

Club head John Speer announces a bus trip to the UK-Mississippi State football game in Jackson October 9. The local alumni will leave Saturday morning, enjoy the game and return the same day.

Montgomery, Alabama

The UK-Montgomery, Alabama, Alumni Club got together to plan fall and winter activities. They had as their special guests, Chris Hill, sophomore Wildcat football star from Alabama, and Vicky Coker, who enters UK this fall on a golf scholarship. The club plans a trip to the UK-Miss. State football game at Jackson, and trips to the UK-Auburn and UK-Alabama basketball games in Auburn and Tuscaloosa, respectively.

Greater Nashville

Vice president of university relations, Dr. Ray Hornback, recently spoke to the Nashville alumni at a social-mixer at the Capitol Club.

He told those attending the status of UK today, its future plans and how alumni could assist the University.

The club plans a package tour of football and fall racing in the Bluegrass the weekend of the UK-Georgia game, October 23, in Lexington. Called a Wonderful Wildcat Weekend, the alumni will enjoy an afternoon at Keeneland, the game and an overnight stay.

Philadelphia-Southern New Jersey

A Kentucky day at either Monmouth or Keystone race tracks is being planned according to club leader, John E. Maziarz. A group of alumni and friends of UK will attend the horse races, conduct a business meeting and hear a guest speaker related to the horse industry and the Bluegrass. Interested alumni contact, Maziarz, 871 Revere, Trenton, N.J. 08629.

Washington, D.C.

A reception will be held at the Marriott, Key Bridge, Friday, October 29, for Washington area alumni and the UK National Board of Directors attending the UK-Maryland football game, October 30, at College Park. The board members will take a charter plane to D.C. for the weekend. Dr. Otis Singletary, on behalf of the D.C. club, presented L. Berkley Davis a beautiful plaque for his years of service to the University. UK's President also was guest speaker at the September meeting.

Development Council Chairman L. Berkley Davis, UK vice president Ray Hornback, and associate director of development James Snyder accept the U.S. Steel Award for sustained performance in annual giving by alumni. UK was one of two institutions recognized. The awards are sponsored jointly by the U.S. Steel Foundation and CASE, the Council for Advancement and Support of Education.

BUILDING AND MAINTAINING SUCCESSFUL ALUMNI CLUBS IS ESSENTIAL

The primary objective of your alumni club is to promote, by organized effort, the best interests and prestige of the University of Kentucky. Your alumni club is the unit for organized effort in your community.

Alumni Clubs are outposts of the University assume the task of maintaining the prestige and integrity of the University

promote the welfare and interest of the University assist in interpreting the University, its work and services to the community

draw together people of common educational backgrounds promote human understanding and closer bonds of fellowship

Book Reviews

Mind & Image
By Herb Greene

It is rare to find in recent structures architectural allusions that remind us of valued human experiences and teach us to prize what we may have taken for granted. Symmetry and mechanical efficiency we may find, and surface application of set architectural styles, but these make no fundamental appeal to most of us. Our deeply rooted responses to such architectural elements as texture, contour, and scale should, Herb Greene writes in his book, be more carefully studied by architects.

Greene has long been recognized as a designer of houses that excite the imagination. Now he presents a beautifully illustrated commentary on his principles and methods. Ranging from discussions of the lingering influences of Cartesian mechanism to explanations for the uninhabitability of large public housing projects, this commentary approaches the topic of organic architecture from a point of view that is philosophic as well as practical, artistic as well as historical.

To explain the mysterious power of certain architectural images, Greene offers a matrix theory, relying on the teachings of Whitehead and Merleau-Ponty about the nature of perception. He shows how he applies his theory in fascinating accounts of the design processes followed in an assortment of his one-of-a-kind houses built for specific clients.

The mass market also wins attention in this book. Greene presents fresh approaches to functional and aesthetic problems in subdivision housing, high-rise development, and the highway commercial strip. In the housing models the tenant is offered active encouragement to make his home uniquely expressive of his own interests and taste. All the developments offer suggestions for a positive relation to region and place.

Plans and photographs of many of Greene's buildings are included, and details from several of his collage paintings are reproduced. In addition a varied selection of illustrations—including examples of advertising art, Frank Lloyd Wright house plans, and pre-Columbian Indian sculpture—accompanies his explanation of the perceptual process and its effect on our response to images.—

of Tibet*

By Pradyumna P. Karan

In 1950 Chinese Communist forces marched into Tibet, forcing the capitulation of her newly installed god-king, the Fourteenth Dalai Lama. The years since have witnessed dramatic changes in this once isolated high plateau. Tibet has gradually come under the direct rule of the People's Republic and is now ruled as an integral part of China, totally dominated by Peking.

Chinese rule has brought about the construction of roads, airfields, and modern communication networks, the development of mining and industry, collectivization and modernization of agriculture, public education, and the first public health facilities in Tibet's history—all creating a vastly changed material and cultural landscape.

The extensive Han colonization has had an impact as well. While the Dalai Lama and thousands of his followers have fled to exile in South Asia, their countrymen who remained behind have found their own needs increasingly subjugated to those of the Chinese colonist and military forces stationed in Tibet. The 1959 Lhasa uprising was the high point of Tibetan resistance to Chinese rule.

Karan examines in detail the means by which the Chinese have secured political power, the extensive changes wrought in the Tibetan economy, the effects of the Han colonization and the imposition of military dominance, and the ruthless suppression of Tibet's age-old Buddhist culture, especially since the 1959 flight of the Dalai Lama and the cultural revolution of 1966-1968. He also considers the strategic implications of the heavy build-up in Tibet of Chinese military might, including nuclear installations, particularly as they relate to India and the Soviet Union, the major powers facing China on the borders of Tibet.

Karan is a noted authority on Asian geography who has travelled widely in Tibet and the Himalayan kingdoms. In his recent travels he has conducted extensive interviews with Tibetan refugees, whose views provide interesting contrasts with those of official Chinese sources. He describes in detail the plight of Tibetan refugees, both in Asia and in the scattered European and American refugee communities.

This is the first book to evaluate the impact of the Chinese occupation on this tradition-bound land. It is also one of the first books to explore the relation between ideology and landscape, providing a case study of the sudden imposition of a foreign culture upon a long stable society.

*Denotes former member of Association

W. Hugh Adcock
Member of the class of 1932 served the University of Kentucky Alumni Association for many years with idealism, devotion and integrity. His leadership as a member of the board of directors, a national president of the Association and a long-standing active director of the Atlanta-UK Alumni Club was extraordinary. We shall miss his ready wit and enthusiastic charm but trust that someone else is now the recipient of this beautiful personality.

Charles O. Landrum
Graduate of the class of 1939

served the University of Kentucky loyally and faithfully as a member of the board of trustees, as a member of the Alumni board of directors for more than ten years and as its president, giving freely and generously of his time and ability. We acknowledge in sorrow that this organization has sustained a great loss; that the University has lost a valuable and devoted supporter, and that we have lost a congenial and personable friend.
