PREFACE

Each University has an obligation to preserve for posterity a systematic record of its origin and growth. The preparation and publication of this bulletin—The University of Kentucky: Its History and Development—is a recognition of this responsibility.

Professor Ezra L Gillis, Director of the Bureau of Source Materials in Higher Education, directed the preparation of the bulletin. He and his co-workers have spent a great amount of time at the task. Minutes of the Board of Trustees, catalogs, reports of administrative staff and faculty, and other official records of the University have been used in assembling the information which is so interestingly and systematically presented. Professor J. S. Horine of the College of Engineering drew the original charts.

The University is pleased to publish this bulletin, and, in behalf of the University, I wish to thank Professor Gillis, Professor Horine, and all others in the various administrative offices who assisted them in this work.

H. L. DONOVAN
