They Have Earned Their "L" For Loyalty

Below are listed additional contributors to the alumni "giving" program inaugurated late last fall as the University of Kentucky Loyalty Fund. It is heartening to announce that the drive has passed the $5,000 mark, and while this figure is insignificant as compared to sums collected by other institutions, the committee feels that this is the beginning of bigger and better drives. In the February ALUMNUS the scholarship committee announced the establishment of its first, $2,800, all-expense scholarship, to become effective with the opening of the fall school term. Perhaps, as time passes, more scholarships as well as other beneficial projects may be established by the alumni, for the University.

A QUARTERLY MAGAZINE DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF THE ALUMNI AND STUDENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY

Don Whitehead, Ex. '27, Dinner Speaker

Thirteen Classes To Reunite June 3

'08 Group To Hold 40th Anniversary

June 3-4 will be gala days on the University of Kentucky campus, for they will see the return of a large group of alumni and former students to the campus to celebrate class reunions and to honor visiting celebrities.

Thirteen classes, including the class of 1908, forty years old this June, will celebration reunions. They are, beside the 40th reunion class: 1892, '93, '94, and '95; 1911, '12, '13, and '14; 1930, '31, '32 and '33.

The commencement week activities actually begin on Sunday, May 30, when the baccalaureate services for the 1948 graduating class will be held at four p. m. in Memorial Hall. Dr. Leslie R. Smith, pastor of the Central Christian church at Lexington, will give the baccalaureate address.

On Tuesday, June 1, the quarterly meeting of the Board of Trustees will be held in the office of President H. L. Donovan, and on Wednesday afternoon, June 2, the Class of 1908 is planning a class reunion picnic. More detailed information about this affair is being sent direct to members of the class.

On Thursday afternoon at one o'clock the annual meeting of the Kentucky Research Foundation is scheduled in the President's office, and at four p. m. President and Mrs. Donovan will be at home to trustees, faculty, alumni, seniors and guests at a tea in the gardens at Maxwell Place.

The alumni banquet, at which

DON WHITEHEAD

Don Whitehead, Ex. '27, will speak, is scheduled for 6:30 p. m. Thursday in the Bluegrass room of the Union. The program will include introduction of distinguished guests; recognition of reunion classes; announcement of the new officers of the association, and the annual meeting of the general association.

Friday morning at ten o'clock registration of alumni will be held in the Alumni office, room 124, Student Union, and will continue until noon. The annual commencement luncheon will be at 12:30 p. m. Friday, in the Bluegrass room, and James Park, '15, of Lexington, representing former trustees of the University, will be the speaker.

The administration is planning to invite all former trustees back to the campus for the June Week festivities this year, and they will be

War Correspondent To Receive Degree

Don Whitehead, Ex. '27, ace war correspondent and until recently chief of the Associated Press bureau at Honolulu, T. H., will be the speaker at the annual alumni banquet to be held Thursday evening, June 3 at 6:30 p. m. in the Bluegrass room of the Student Union.

Mr. Whitehead, who was granted an honorary LL. D. degree by his Alma Mater in 1945, and who was unable to come to the campus at that time to receive it because of the war, will have the degree conferred upon him at the 82nd commencement exercises this June when he returns to the campus to address the alumni.

Don Whitehead reported the European war for the Associated Press from the beginning of the North African campaign through V-E day. He flew to Egypt to join General Montgomery and the British Army for the North African campaign, went across Africa with them, was in the invasion of Sicily and at the Anzio beachhead; was in England during General Eisenhower's preparations, and was one of four newspaper correspondents with the first move in the Normandy invasion.

He landed, under fire, on the Normandy beaches, rode with Patton, sent the first story out of Paris and went to Aachen with the liberators. Ernie Pyle was his tent-mate during part of the conflict and his close friend.

His wife, the former Marie Patterson of Pineville, is also a former University of Kentucky student, and his brother, Kyle, was graduated from the University in 1926.

"Come Back, Mavourneen"

Nostalgia wells up within us, like a resurgent wave, when we recall our University days. Shaded walks, friendly banter, pep meetings, football games, the tenderness of young love, all combine to recall that never-to-be-forgotten time when we were eager, carefree, and young.

Perhaps we can't quite recapture the romance of youth, but class reunions offer an opportunity to look back for a few hours, over the gayest, happiest period of our entire lives. That is why your Alumni Association designates a date each year upon which you are urged to return to Alma Mater, to renew old friendships, and to revitalize old memories.

June 3-4 are reunion days on the campus of the University of Kentucky this spring. June 3 is Alumni Day, when all of you are urged to come back for a brief period to recapture, if possible, the glamorous days of youth. June 4 is commencement, when almost 1,000 young men and women will leave the campus to carry the spirit of Alma Mater into a busy world.

"Come Back, Mavourneen," to the scenes of your youth. Plan now to reserve these two days from your crowded routine of living, to walk the magic lane of memories with old classmates and friends.

Over 100 scholarships, fellowships, prizes and awards are offered University of Kentucky students each year.

The Alumni Invest In Youth

Just a year ago this month, May ALUMNUS carried an excellent editorial from the columns of the Kentucky Kernel, in which the student newspaper referred to the University as "Kentucky's best investment."

It pleases us beyond measure that now, a year later, alumni of the University have established a scholarship fund for the youth of Kentucky, and at the same time have inscribed a new slogan beneath the old: "Kentucky youth are Kentucky's best investment."

At this writing a $2,800, four-year all-expense scholarship has been established through contributions to the University of Kentucky Loyalty Fund, an alumni-sponsored project and the goal of the alumni committee in charge of the drive, $5,000 has been passed.

But we are not through! This drive will continue through June 30; in hope that enough funds may be raised to insure more scholarships the years to come. This is to be an annual "giving" campaign, personally, and those who have responded to the Alumni committee's efforts on behalf of the Loyalty Fund drive, are urged to send in their contributions now for 1948 and through the succeeding years, so that youngsters who might never have had an opportunity to obtain a college education may enjoy the privileges which have been yours.

'Cats End Season as National Collegiate Net Champs

Cop 36 of 38 Games
To Win Nat'l. Crown

By Roy Steinfort, '46, Athletic Publicity Director

Say it fancy or say it plain. Shout it or whisper it. It's all the same.

The Kentucky Wildcats were the greatest basketball team ever to be assembled on a college hardwood last season.

Champions of their own South-eastern Conference tournament for the fifth consecutive season, Baron Adolph Rupp's wonderful Wildcats went on in postseason play to win the Eastern N. C. A. A. title, the Eastern-Western N. C. A. A. Play-Offs crown, and the college division of the Olympic trials.

It didn't take the Kentuckians a lifetime to achieve these basketball honors. It took them just one season.

In collegiate competition, the wonder 'Cats went to the post 38 times. On 36 occasions they emerged victorious.

This record against the nation's best available competition perhaps never will be surpassed or even equaled.

Even in defeat against the Phillips Oilers, National A. A. U. champions, the Kentuckians were magnificent. The score was 53-49, but the experts of the cage world had predicted that the rangy, veteran Oiler quintet, deep in reserves, would skin the 'Cats with ease.

Following the Madison Square Garden game, here's just what a few of the Gotham scribes wrote:

Dave Eisenberg, New York Journal—"The Oilers and Wildcats played the best game I've seen in 24 years of watching basketball."

Hy Turkin, New York Daily News—"Those of our Olympic basketball foes who don't get stiff neck from gawking at Bob Kurland (he's seven feet tall) will certainly get cross-eyed from trying to follow the greatest of all-around amateur cage players in the world today—Ralph Beard."

Adolph F. Rupp

Coach Bud Browning of the Oilers—"Kentucky was the best team we've played against this season. Beard is the greatest player I've ever seen."

As winners of the College division of the Olympic Trials, Kentucky's entire first team—Alex Groza, Ralph Beard, Wah Wah Jones, Cliff Barker and Captain Kenny Rollins—will represent the American colleges on the 14-man Olympic squad.

Coach Adolph Rupp will go to England with his team in July as the assistant coach to Oiler Mentor Bud Browning.

Kentucky suffered two losses during the regular season, and one was avenged. After rolling to seven straight wins, Kentucky was edged 60-59 by Temple in Philadelphia. However, in a return match in Louisville, the 'Cats annihilated the Owls 58-38.

Only one defeat in college competition went unavenged. Notre Dame's Lucky Irish caught the 'Cats flat on a Monday night following a brawling, mauling win over DePaul on Saturday night in the Chicago Stadium. The score, 64-55.

In S. E. C. tourney play, Kentucky beat Florida 87-31; L. S. U. 63-47; Tennessee 70-47; and Georgia Tech 54-43.

In N. C. A. A. play, it was Kentucky over Columbia 76-53; 60-52 over Holy Cross and 58-42 over Baylor. Here's the way the Olympic Trials went: Kentucky 91-57 over Louisville; 77-59 over Baylor; and losers to Phillips 53-49 in the finals.

Groza for the second straight year was the leading scorer for the Wildcats with 488 points. Rapid Ralph Beard was second with 476. Wah Wah Jones, who got a late start with the round ball because of football injuries, closed with a flurry of buckets in the later stages of the campaign to earn third place with 335.

For the most part, that is the cold, factual story of Kentucky's success. The Wildcats, like any other group of college kids, are human, and probably that's the most interesting view of them.

Every time they took the floor this season, whether it be Madison Square Garden or Tuscaloosa, Alabama, they knew that they were the targets for an upset.

"Beat Kentucky and you've had a successful season," the rival mentors told their players.

That made it doubly difficult for Kentucky. But then again, the Kentuckians were difficult people, especially for the opposition.

They were a great team because they're great people.

Conquering Wildcat Team and Coach

Cliff Barker

Wallace Jones

his co-worker for "a great coaching job." LeRoy Miles, president of the J. K. Alumni Association, also expressed appreciation for the team's fine showing and the community welcome, congratulating the team on its season and tournament record of 36 games won out of 39 played.

University cheerleaders then led the throng in cheering as the parade formed and moved slowly along Main street.

The crowd, conservatively estimated at 12,000, began forming an hour before the train was due to arrive at 7:50 a. m. and kept growing until the train's arrival at 9:10 a. m.

Reception Filmed

During the interval Warner Brothers' Pathe News Photographer Phil Harnden shot 2,000 feet of news-reel film and radio stations broadcast the event.

Welcome Starts Early

Welcoming of the Cats started well back along the line.

School apparently failed to keep at Mt. Sterling, where the school band and a couple of hundred youngsters were waiting at the station as the train paused briefly.

The players hung back modestly for a few minutes there, but finally were led, one at a time, to the steps of their car and introduced individually by W. B. (Big Six) Henderson of Bowling Green, an ardent follower of the Wildcats who had arrived in New York in time to see all the games of the Olympic trials.

Each of the players as he appeared was greeted with applause, plus a chorus of delightful squeals from bobby-soxers.

The reception at Winchester, if no more enthusiastic, was noisier as the train stopped there a few minutes.

Approaches Blocked

Approaches to the station area were blocked off by fire trucks, parked with sirens screaming, and a big J. C. Codell Construction Company wrecker was stationed near by to add a continual blast from a hoarse air horn to the bedlam.

The crowd of admirers, led by S. B. Tracy, chairman of the Winchester reception committee, surged forward to jam alongside the Wildcats' car, and Coach Rupp and his players were accorded a tremendous ovation as they stepped onto the platform for a moment to acknowledge with waves and broad smiles the cheering they received.

A number of Lexingtonians who had driven to Winchester boarded the train there, mingled with the U. K. party, pumping hands and slapping backs while congratulating the champions, and preparing them—at least in part—for the kind of reception they were to receive in the home town.

Coach Adolph Rupp has accepted an invitation for the Kentucky basketballers to play in the annual Sugar Bowl classic in New Orleans, next December.

Yeah, Wildcats!

This morning The Herald welcomed the University of Kentucky Wildcats basketball world champions and respective Olympic stars.

By the way, a recent issue of Centre College Cento, student publication of Centre College, at Danville, carried a large picture of the University of Kentucky basketball team and coaches at the top of the first page with the caption "World's Net Champions."

That spirit, we believe, is typical of all Kentucky in hailing the Wildcats.

Baron Rupp and his All-American and All-Southeastern stars are welcomed home. The basketball Wildcats are and always have been favored with the sports fans of this city with the followers of athletics throughout the state.

Often, before, they have won national acclaim yet no one can deny that this year's team of George Beard, Rollins, Barker and Walter Jones, with their colleagues, have had no small part in the play, constitutes certainly one of the greatest hardwood floor aggregations ever seen in action in all the history of basketball. Here is the basketball team we've ever seen together in the long years that has been putting forth championship team after championship team at the University of Kentucky.

It is gratifying, too, that a number of the squad is made up of Kentucky boys, natives who spent their high school days in this state. Of course the others are welcome and great additions and a Kentuckian, always a Kentuckian," but this is a real Kentucky team.

The idea of the Lexington Chamber of Commerce and Mayor Mooney in behalf of the city, especially, to make the home-coming of the Wildcats this morning a home-coming to eclipse all home-coming is a good one.

Lexingtonians are proud of every one of the Wildcats. Yeah, Wildcats! Congratulations and wishes.

Champion Wildcats Measured For Olympic Uniforms In N. Y.

Rupp Picks Out Groza For Individual Praise

By Larry Shropshire, '30,
Sports Editor, Lexington Leader

NEW YORK, March 30—The unchallenged champions of collegiate basketball, called by Coach Adolph Rupp "the greatest team ever assembled in the college sport," stepped up today to be measured for the red, white and blue uniforms which they will help represent the United States in the Olympic games in London come August.

Kentucky's Wildcats, kings of the court and conquerors of all teams that dared face them, had but one regret as they received the well-earned acclaim of the nation for the greatest triumph in athletics ever achieved by the University of Kentucky.

The five regulars who earned places on the Olympic squad wished the roster could include their substitutes, the willing and able reserves who helped them reach the pinnacle.

Rupp, whose eyes filled with tears as he thanked his charges for their efforts, sacrifices and accomplishments immediately after they had blasted Baylor to capture the undisputed championship of the nation, felt the same way.

'Squad Triumph'

He called it a squad triumph, not merely a five-man conquest, and paid high tribute to the reserves, most of whom would be first-stringers elsewhere but who at Kentucky have to stand behind such "greats" of the game as Capt. Ken-ny Rollins, Ralph Beard, Alex Groza, Cliff Barker and Wah Jones.

Rules of the Olympic committee, however, allow on the U. S. squad only five players from the championship college squad, and all of the regulars indicated they expected to be able to take advantage of the opportunity to compete at London.

Rupp went into a huddle just before noon with the Olympic Basketball Committee, headed by Lou Wilke of Denver, to get further details on the jaunt to England.

Five From Oilers

Five other squad members will represent the vaunted—but possibly overrated—Phillips Oilers, National AAU champions for the sixth straight year, whom the Wildcats will tackle in an anti-climatic exhibition Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden.

Two collegians and two AAU players from other squads in the Olympic Trials here will fill out the roster, and Rupp and Coach Omar (Bud) Browning of the Oilers will tutor the gang for their competition in London.

Although a lot of fans here figure the Wildcats have an excellent chance to whip the Oilers and prove themselves rulers of the realm, the Baron has told his boys that he doesn't expect them to whip the mountainous AAU champs, that he just wants them to go out and do their best.

From Coach To Team

"You've done everything you've been asked to do," Rupp said in a voice filled with emotion as he locked himself in a dressing room with the squad immediately following the smashing 77-59 victory over Baylor Monday night.

"You won your own Southeastern Conference tournament, you won the NCAA championship and now you've won the undisputed college championship. You've kept training and made many sacrifices to do these things. And for all of it I thank you from the bottom of my heart," he continued.

While congratulating and thanking all his charges, Rupp singled out Groza for special praise and told the big junior pivotman "you undoubtedly played the greatest game at center that has ever been seen in the Garden."

Groza, named the most valuable player in the NCAA tournament last week, stuffed in 33 of the points against Baylor, 26 of them in the first half, and easily could have shattered the season's scoring record in the Garden (35 points by NYU's Don Forman) if the Wildcats had not changed their strategy in the second half to protect their lead against the dangerous Bears.

Groza, scoring leader among the Cats for the second year in a row, shot only eight times in the second half, including rebound pokes, and three of the latter sank to give him the highest total made by any Wildcat this year.

Beard Tops All-America; Rupp, Best Coach

Ralph Beard, 20-year-old University of Kentucky junior, was named the No. 1 man on the first all-American collegiate basketball team ever selected by the Associated Press, a quintet named on a point basis through voting by 321 sports editors and basketball writers in 40 states and the District of Columbia.

The Kentucky star, hailed last year also as one of the country's leading court performers, received 153 first-team votes and 47 second-team ballots, compiling a total of 859 points, or better than 53 per cent of a possible perfect total.

The voting, in which coaches did not participate, pronounced a second team of Tony Lavelli, Yale; Alex Groza, Kentucky; Dwight Eddleman, Illinois; Arnold Ferrin, Utah; and George Kaftan of Holy Cross, defending NCAA champions. Honorable mention: Wallace Jones and Kenny Rollins of Kentucky.

And the fans didn't stop with honoring these Wildcat players. They also pitched in their ballots to select their mentor, Adolph Rupp, as the outstanding coach of the year by a margin of approximately two to one over his nearest rival.

Beard was also named player of the year for the second straight season and placed on the All-America team selected for True Magazine by the National Association of College Basketball Coaches.

The All-American first team, announced by Coach Howard Hobson of Yale, president of the N.A.B.C., also was made up of center Ed Macauley of St. Louis University, Kevin O'Shea of Notre Dame, Tony Lavelli of Yale and Arnold Ferrin of the University of Utah.

A second team selected by a large panel of coaches and sportswriters throughout the nation was comprised of Murray Wier of Iowa, Bob Cousy of Holy Cross, Jim McIntyre of Minnesota, Alex Groza of Kentucky and Don Forman of New York University.

Choices for the third mythical team were Dwight "Dike" Eddleman of Illinois, Wallace "Wah Wah" Jones of Kentucky, Vern Gardner

To The Champions

Congratulations, Wildcats — National Collegiate champions, Southeastern Conference champions, No. 1 team in the nation—congratulations, and best wishes for victory in the Olympic Trials this week-end.

Title-winning basketball teams have been developed so frequently at the University of Kentucky in recent years that it is no surprise to find the Cats at the top of the heap today. Year in and year out, the master coach produces some of the outstanding quintets in the country, but victories will never become so commonplace that Kentuckians cease to wonder how he does it or to wait with bated breath the outcome of each game and tournament.

Not only have the Wildcats brought fame to their home state, their long-continued success and the University's policy of encouragement in basketball have made this Commonwealth one of the greatest centers in the United States. Many of our schools, virtually every high school and most of the colleges have teams—and a surprising number of them have won more than local fame.

Yes, Kentuckians have many basketball teams of which they can be proud, but they are proudest of all of the Wildcats. May their victories continue!

Alumni Entertain Net Champs At Annual Banquet; 350 Attend Party

Coach Rupp, Radio, Newsmen, Speakers

The Wildcat basketball team, N. C. A. A. champions and members of the U. S. Olympic team which will participate in international competition in London in August, and their coach, Adolph Rupp, master of the sport and leader of men, were guests of honor at the annual Alumni Association banquet Saturday night, April 10, in the Bluegrass room of the Student Union, with 350 enthusiastic alumni and friends of the team in attendance.

Climaxing a season which has topped any collegiate record in American history, the Wildcats were feted by the Alumni and praised by Coach Rupp; Dr. Maurice Seay, dean of the University; Assistant Coach Harry Lancaster; Bernie A. Shively, athletic director, and the eight sports writers and radio announcers who have traveled with the team through the season: George Walsh, WHAS; Phil Sutterfield, WKLX; Bovard Clayton, WGRC; Babe Kimbrough, Lexington Herald; Larry Shropshire, Lexington Leader; Larry Boeck, Louisville Courier-Journal; Buck Weaver, Louisville Times; and Roy Steinfort, athletic publicity director for the University.

The radio and sports men gave voice to praise of the team and its coaches, and told humorous and "inside" stories of the life of the champions during a long and arduous season.

Feature of the occasion was the presentation of the Jerome Lederer trophy to the outstanding member of the team. The trophy went to Alex Groza. This honor goes to the man selected by his teammates, and is one of the most coveted and prized of all honors accorded to Kentucky athletes.

Athletic Director Shively acted on behalf of alumni and friends of the team in presenting handsome wrist watches to the four graduating seniors: Capt. Kenny Rollins, Jack Parkinson, Kenton Campbell and Jim Jordan.

Announcements of the All-Southeastern and All-American honors garnered by team members were made at the party, and all in all, it was as successful as the extraordinary season turned in by Coach Rupp's boys.

H. Lester Reynolds, '39, was recently made assistant regional lighting engineer, Civil Aeronautics Administration, Chicago region. This region covers eight states.

The Press Comments On UK's All-Time Great Basketball Team

Kentucky's tremendous speed, Kentucky's tremendous height and Kentucky's tremendous poise and skill were too much for slick Holy Cross to overcome last night at Madison Square Garden and the Wildcats from the Blue Grass overpowered the Crusaders, 60 to 52, thereby gaining the Eastern N. C. A. A. basketball championship and the right to meet the Western division leader for the national title next Tuesday night at the Garden.

A magnificent first-half performance, during which it proceeded to run the Crusaders into the ground, was the springboard for Kentucky's victory. Charging up and down the floor with reckless abandon and tremendous speed, controlling the ball off the boards and shooting with keen accuracy, the Wildcats never allowed Holy Cross to show its ball-handling magic.

—Irving T. Marsh, in the N. Y. Herald-Tribune, March 21, 1948.

Kentucky's Wildcats basketball artists proved their right to hold the No. 1 spot in the nation tonight as they defeated a great Holy Cross quintet, 60-52, to win the Eastern Division National Collegiate Athletic Association title and a right to play in the Olympic cage trials.

Sparkling as brightly as the lights on Broadway, the Kentuckians gave out with everything in the book to take the measure of the Crusaders, defending NCAA champions, in one of the greatest exhibitions of basketball ever staged in Madison Square Garden.

—Babe Kimbrough, in the Lexington Herald-Leader, March 21, 1948.

Phillips Flying Oilers, playing like mad men because they had to, won the National Olympic basketball championship tonight with a 53 to 49 victory over a magnificent Kentucky team that lost no stature in defeat.

It was one of the most bitterly fought contests in Madison Square Garden annals and a thoroughly thrilled throng of 18,475 sat limp at the finish, too exhausted even to give a cheer to the superman-sized winner.

—Carl Lundquist, writing for the United Press.

The University of Kentucky will offer two courses on speech defects and their correction during the 1948 summer session with a nationally-known clinical speech specialist as visiting lecturer. The program is designed to be of interest to teachers of the state and students of clinical psychology.

"Part of the class day program was arranged. Mr. W. T. Carpenter was elected class historian, Mr. T. L. Campbell, orator, and Mr. Paul Ward, songster. He will write a song to the tune 'All Coons Look Alike to Me.'

"The class colors selected were blue and white.

"A class tree will be planted with appropriate ceremonies about the first of March. The class pin is a golden bow knot, with K. S. C. and '98 across the center in blue and white enamel."

Editor's note: Sometime during the summer the full Phillips and Kentucky teams will meet in an exhibition series of two games—one in Lexington and one in Bartlesville or Louisville.

These exhibitions are expected to add at least $20,000 to the Olympic Basketball Fund, already enriched by approximately $35,000, cleared on the eight-game tryouts. The Olympic fathers are happy to contrast this financial situation with that of 1936, when the tryouts didn't even pay expenses.

Thirteen alternates also were named in case any of the Olympic cagers can't go to London. They are Gerald Tucker, Martin Nash and Ed Beisser of the Oilers, Joe Holland, Jim Line and Dale Barnstable of Kentucky, Ray Lipscomb and Jim Darden of the Denver Nuggets, Les O'Gara and Warren Taulbee of the Oakland Bittners, Jim Owens and Bill Johnson of Baylor and Adolph Schayes of NYU.

R. M. Allen, 1900, Loyal Alumnus, Lawyer, Chemist, Dies in N. J. March 28

Robert McDowell Allen, 68, former Lexington resident and a leader in the fight for state and national pure food and drug laws, died March 28 at his home in Newark, N. J.

He was born Oct. 29, 1879, in Grundee county, Mo., and was a son of the late Rev. Nelson McDowell and Caroline Josephine Pelley Allen. Brought to Kentucky at the age of four, he was educated in Versailles and Lexington and was a graduate of Kentucky State College in 1900 and Transylvania College.

A lawyer and chemist, Mr. Allen was a member of the University of Kentucky Experiment Station staff in the early 1900's and was an authority on food and drug control. Instrumental in obtaining state and national pure food laws, he drafted the Kentucky Pure Food act in 1908 and headed the Kentucky Food and Drug Control from 1902 to 1916.

Vale!

Robert McDowell Allen of Lexington, Ky., and recently of Newark, N. J., died at his home in Newark, Sunday, March 28, and was buried in the Lexington cemetery on Thursday following his death. Funeral services were held at the Milward Mortuary Chapel, Dr. Jesse Herrmann of the Second Presbyterian Church officiating. Pallbearers, honorary and active, were selected from his former associates at the Experiment Station and the University.

Bob Allen, the name by which many called him, was well known throughout Kentucky and in many parts of the United States, and it is safe to say that he was personally acquainted with every president of the United States since he left the grade schools. American interests were his interests and service to humanity was his motto. Throughout his life he measured values on what benefit they would be to men, women and especially to children. In Lexington, where he grew to manhood, he will be remembered for the unselfish devotion he gave to obtaining pure food and drug laws and his courageous fight with southern phy-

He also was a leader in the fight against pellagra in the South in the early 1930's and was the author of 50 publications on vitamins and food and drug control. He was a direct descendant of Daniel Boone and was related to a number of prominent Kentucky families.

Mr. Allen was a member of the Baptist church, the Masons, the National Institute of Social Sciences, the American Chemical Society, the New York Bar Association, the U. K. Alumni Association, Alumni Club of Greater New York, and a number of Lexington and New York social, legal and scientific organizations.

He is survived by a daughter, Fanniebelle McVey Allen, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and a sister who lives in Oklahoma.

The body was brought to Lexington for burial.

sicians against the curse of pellagra in the south. His work was eminently successful and was recognized in the drafting of the Pure Food Laws for the nation.

Looking backward over almost a half century one recalls the young man whose scientific research, love of the classics, devotion to tradition and Kentuckiana made him outstanding among the youth of his time. He was a journalist, a lawyer and counted among his close friends the most distinguished writers and jurists of his time. His friends included persons of many ranks of society and he was welcomed among them because of his understanding and sympathy.

Bob Allen's most cherished affiliation was with the University of Kentucky. He came to the campus from the preparatory school and received an A.B. degree from A&M College. His Master's degree came from 'Ole State' also and he was for several years a member of the Experiment Station staff. It was during this time that he showed how fearlessly he was capable of attacking a community threat such as impure food and drugs and of getting bene-official results for the cause. He left the Station, on leave, to take up further work in the study of yeast, vitamins, and nutrition, with emphasis on yeast and vitamins. Since 1916 his work has been entirely along these lines. He organized the Vitamin Food Co. Inc., and was the president of the organization at the time of his death. His laboratories are located in Newark.

A life member of the Alumni Association of the University he renewed that membership every time he found an executive secretary trying to build up the fund. He stood solidly behind the athletic program, the Loyalty Fund, the administration and was, perhaps, over a period of years the most active and unfailing member of the University Alumni Club of New York City. While attending the New York Club's dinner at the Belvedere Hotel, March 20, he announced his intention of organizing an alumni club in Newark.

Mr. Allen's particular delight was to welcome Kentuckians, especially if associated with the University, and while extending hospitalities he would regale them with anecdotes of former years on the campus, reminisce accurately and interestingly and inquire for many old friends from whom he had not heard recently. His memoirs would illumine local history. He was a charter member of the Kentucky chapter of Phi Delta Theta and was affiliated with the New York group.

As time passes and the line of lifelong friends becomes thinner, treasured memories survive and there is comfort in the recollection that men like Bob Allen never failed a comrade and never forgot the happy long ago. In his maturity, as in his youth, he was loyal and brave. He was an altruist and instinctively religious, true to the ideals that guided his life and doubtless when, in the midst of many uncompleted dreams, his life came to an end and he stepped so suddenly into that Land Beyond he found there an unbroken record of endeavor and accomplishment, hopes and disappointments, joys and sorrows, all accepted or forgotten in his own magnificent generosity.

Dr. Donovan Aids U. S. in Germany

DR. HERMAN LEE DONOVAN

Appointed visiting expert in the field of university education by the J. S. Office of Military Government, Dr. H. L. Donovan, '14, president of the University of Kentucky, left March 1 for Germany. During his two months of service President Donovan was to advise the military government in Germany on general problems of higher education in that country. He was selected for the assignment from among a number of outstanding educators.

Russia Could Take Europe—Donovan

UK Head, Writing From Germany, Urges Foreign Aid Program

Americans are living in a fool's paradise while Russian occupation of Europe threatens, Dr. H. L. Donovan, president of the University of Kentucky, writes from Germany where he is serving for two months in an advisory capacity with the U. S. military government.

From Munich on March 19 he wrote, in part, to Mrs. Donovan:

"I read President Truman's message to Congress. Tell my friends or God's sake to get behind his re-

Optimist Citizenship Cup Given To E. S. Dabney, '20

Edward S. Dabney, '20, president of the Security Trust Company in Lexington, was awarded the Optimist Cup as the community's outstanding citizen in 1947. The award was made in January, 1948.

In making the presentation, the Rev. Leslie R. Smith, pastor of the Central Christian church, of which Mr. Dabney is an officer, recounted some of the contributions his fellow Optimist had made to the community.

Mr. Smith described the trophy recipient by saying, "The man we honor today is trusted because his word is as good as gold. He is admired because he is morally upright. He is loved because he never lets you down. His integrity is unquestioned. He protects one's rights to disagree. He insists on equality, which was evident when he so heartily favored, from his position on the public school board, equal pay for both colored and white teachers. This fairness crowns his integrity."

The speaker then summarized Mr. Dabney's activities.

Has Many Interests

Mr. Dabney is treasurer of the Central Kentucky Community Concert Association; vice president of the Lexington Board of Education; president of the Julius Marks sanatorium's board of trustees; treasurer of the Frontier Nursing Service in the Eastern Kentucky mountains; of the Lexington chapter, American Red Cross, and of the Pine Mountain Settlement School; director of the Lexington Young Men's Christian Association, the Community Chest and the Board of Commerce; a trustee of the Lexington Cemetery Association, and a member of the Kentucky Area Planning Council, Kentucky Development Association, Kentucky Research Foundation, the local Naval Reserve advisory council, the Lexington Army advisory committee, the Torch Club and Alpha Tau Omega social fraternity.

quest. We are living in a fool's paradise at home. Our Army over here is only a token army.

"The Russians could take over any minute they wanted to do so. It is freely said they could occupy Europe in 48 hours if they should move. We need an army here—a good one—or we should get out entirely. The draft should be put into effect at once. It should not be delayed a single day. It is a thousand times as serious as I thought it was before I came.

"You may tell these things to my friends at the University. Get Congress to make haste or it may be forever too late."

Money Would Be Wasted

The following is an excerpt from a letter written by Dr. Donovan in Berlin on March 20:

"I want to urge you to tell the people to back Gen. Marshall and the President on the draft and universal military training. I was in doubt about UMT until I came and saw with my own eyes what is going on. It's no use voting $5,300,000,000 for ERP unless we have an army to back it up. The money will be wasted without some show of strength here.

UK Stadium To Be Increased By 10,000

Kentucky alumni and football fans are rejoicing over the announcement that the seating capacity of McLean stadium, on Stoll Field, will be increased more than 10,000 for the 1948 season.

Plans call for work to begin around the middle of May. Final capacity, after all improvements are made, will be over 43,000, with 13,000 more seats to be added between the '48 and '49 seasons.

Enlargements this year will be made on the concrete stands. On the south side, an upper deck also is to be constructed and the press box moved to the north (Euclid street) side. New sections will be added on the east and west ends of the south side this year in order that the total seating capacity will be nearly 6,000.

New sections, too, will be built on either end of the north stands this year, and an upward extension of 13 rows of seats and an enlarged press box will be added before the 1949 season.

Total cost for the project has been estimated at $650,000. Plans were mapped by the University's Engineering department.

Sarah Blanding Is Honored by U. of L.

Sarah G. Blanding, A. B., '23, Ph. D., '46, president of Vassar College and former dean of women at the University of Kentucky, was awarded the honorary Doctor of Laws degree by the University of Louisville at its Sesquicentennial celebration and inauguration of Dr. John W. Taylor as president of the institution, on February 9 and 10.

Recognized by the University of Louisville as an outstanding leader in higher education for women and for wartime service in human welfare, Miss Blanding was the only woman thus honored by the Louisville institution.

Printing equipment of the Kentucky Kernel, student newspaper at the University of Kentucky, is valued at more than $75,000.

to do so. Our Army would fold up like the shell of an egg crushed in one's hand. We must act and act quickly or it will be too late. It is pathetic to see our military forces here . . . An Army must be sent here quickly or total withdrawal should be ordered.

'Very, Very Serious'

"This thing is so very, very serious. Why do we have to dilly-dally and wait until some country makes war on us when possibly if we were strong it would not dare to move? If I have any message it is to act quickly or it will be too late. It is that we should arm now, not next summer or a year hence.

"If we are strong I believe we can keep the peace, but when the Russians see the character of our armed forces they get the idea we will be a pushover. They mean to take over all Europe, make no mistake about that. It is only a matter of time. They probably have D-day already set. Things are moving very fast here." — Lexington Leader, March 29, 1948.

In 1946-47 the number of degrees awarded by the University of Kentucky—845—was nearly four times as many as were given during the first 35 years of the institution's existence.

UK Railbird Gives The Whistlers Fits

Editor's note: A group of Kentuckians were gathered in Brownie Leach's Biltmore suite during the N. C. A. A. tournament in New York, talking basketball and horses. We asked Joe Palmer, UK's contribution to the New York Herald-Tribune to do a sketch on basketball for the May Alumnus. Here it is: Joe's angle on the whistle blowers, as seen through the eyes of a turf expert.

By Joe H. Palmer, '27, and, for that matter, again in '28.

Basketball is an attempt to put a fairly large ball through an inconveniently placed hoop, with a set of rules badly designed for the purpose. This watcher, who used to shriek and howl with the best of them along Euclid Avenue, is naturally pleased that the Kentucky team can do it better than any other, but the conviction remains that, as it is now organized, it is hardly worth doing.

The final weaning came last year, when Kentucky was working over some now forgotten opponent in Madison Square Garden. The business in hand was being well taken care of by people named Tingle and Beard and Jones and others, so this pleased onlooker fell to marking, on his program, each time there was a whistle for an infraction of the rules. There were 63 whistles, and a small arithmetical calculation shows that this is one every 40 seconds. When Kentucky played next time, I was watching Squadron A and Ramapo play indoor polo.

Now consider this. The most popular sport in America, measured by the money its following puts into it, is racing. The most popular sport, measured by the number of its devotees and the space given to it on the nation's sport pages, is baseball. These are the only two major sports in which the officials are not equipped with a whistle.

Maybe it's accident. Maybe, but, say, I doubt it.

There are claims of foul in racing, and protests in baseball. But from the time the horses break from the gate until the numbers flash on the board, there is clean, uninterrupted action. When the bat cracks a play begins which continues until the last runner is safe or out. Any argument comes later, when the tension is eased.

In basketball—well, I don't need to tell you. It is a contact sport played under the dreamy pretense that it isn't a contact sport, and between teams evenly matched, the winner is the one that can score best from the foul line. The foul is, in fact, a part of the game's strategy, rather than a penalty.

You like it, do you? Well, take it.

L. Duncan Stokes, commercial agent of the Southern Railway System at New York, N. Y., has been promoted to district freight and passenger agent with headquarters remaining at New York, effective on March 1, it was announced by R. N. Woodall, eastern traffic manager of the railway.

Mr. Stokes was born at Monticello, Ky., on June 16, 1913. He was graduated with a B. S. degree from the University of Kentucky in June, 1939, and on February 1, 1940, he entered the service of the Southern as a clerk-stenographer at Cincinnati, Ohio. After serving as a clerk at New Orleans, La., he was appointed chief clerk to district freight and passenger agent at Nashville, Tenn. Mr. Stokes was given a leave of absence for military service in World War II. He returned to the Southern in January, 1946, as commercial agent at New York.

Marshall McMeekin, '24, of Lexington, and their son, Robert Coleman, III, is at present a student at the University.

DR. J. S. MCHARGUE

Dr. James S. McHargue, '06, native of Laurel county and a member of the University of Kentucky Experiment Station staff for more than three decades, retired February 1 as head of the department of Research Chemistry, which position he has held since Dr. A. M. Peter's retirement in 1927.

Dr. McHargue is internationally famous for his research investigations in the role of minor elements in soils and in plant and animal life.

Beginning his investigations more than 40 years ago while still a student at the University, Dr. McHargue pioneered in research work to ascertain the importance of iodine, manganese, copper, zinc, cobalt, nickel and other rare chemical elements in the growth of plants and the metabolism of animals.

Dr. McHargue majored in chemistry while a student at the University, and as a student and for a short time after graduation he worked in the laboratories of Dr. A. M. Peter, '80, long-time head of the department of Research Chemistry, now retired.

Dr. McHargue received his master's degree from the University in 1913 and his doctor's degree from Cornell University in 1921. The extensive investigations and writings of Dr. McHargue have brought him recognition throughout the world. A scientific magazine article in 1940 said: "Undoubtedly, the work that led to the finding in Florida, Australia, England and Holland, that deficiency of copper in the soil may seriously affect the health of livestock, was influenced directly or indirectly by the work of McHargue at the Kentucky Experiment Station. He was the first American, in 1925, to determine copper in the health and growth of animals, according to another scientific journal.

He was awarded the highest prize, $5,000, under the sponsorship of the American Society of Agronomy in 1935 and a degree of Doctor of Science from Clemson Agricultural College in 1937.

Dr. McHargue is the author and co-author of 120 publications dealing with research investigations on minor elements in soils, plants and animals.

Scientific societies of which Dr. McHargue is a member include the American Chemical Society, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Society of Agronomy, the Royal Society of Arts, Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi, Alpha Chi Sigma, National Geographic Society, Kentucky Historical Society, Lexington section of the American Chemical Society and the Research Club of the University of Kentucky.

A summer school for students of the Spanish language will be operated in Puebla, Mexico, next summer by the University of Kentucky Department of Romance Languages. Establishment of the unusual branch school approximately 1,600 miles from Lexington is designed to offer students an opportunity to gain first-hand knowledge of Spanish-American life and make possible an interchange of cultural ideas. One session, of eight weeks, will open June 21 and close Aug. 14.

UK Expansion Program Near Completion

The University of Kentucky post-war expansion program of temporary classrooms and housing nearing completion and the permanent-type building to be started since the war was ready for occupancy in April.

Bowman Hall, a fourth residence hall to house 108 men, is the latest post-war permanent structure. Other temporary projects are under way or nearly ready for occupancy.

Upon completion of units still under construction, the University will have a total of 21 barracks, quonset huts and other war surplus structures in use, U. K. Chief Engineer E. B. Farris reported. In addition, the University is housing more than 1,000 in temporary and semi-permanent units on the campus.

In the temporary classification program a FWA classroom building, a two-story, H-type barracks formerly located at the Kentucky Ordnance Works at Paducah, to be occupied by the Departments of Social Science, Political Science, Geography and Anthropology.

As a result of this change, the Departments of Ancient Languages and Philosophy will move to the Zee hall space vacated by the biology department.

Another barracks-type structure having four classrooms, office space and a theater with a seating capacity of 240, has been taken over for dramatics and speech classes in the Guignol theater. The theater is designed to serve as a lecture hall and practical workshop for dramatics classes.

A combined shops building, maintenance and storage unit and auxiliary heating plant were scheduled for operation early in April. The service department has been located in temporary quarters since a fire destroyed the service building in 1946. The new building is former airplane maintenance building from an Air Force installation.

UK Research Instrument Coats Specimens With Metal Vapors

By Ken Kuhn, Department of Public Relations

University of Kentucky scientists are employing a new-type research tool which literally evaporates the hardest metals inside a near-perfect vacuum and coats specimens invisible to the naked eye with a layer of the vaporized metal more than 10,000 times thinner than a human hair.

The unusual instrument is known as a vacuum unit or shadow-casting unit and is used by research scientists of the Bacteriology Department in the preparation of specimens for study under an equally unusual type of magnifying instrument—the electron microscope, loaned to the University last spring by the Keeneland Foundation. Both instruments are housed in the University's Keeneland Foundation electron microscope laboratories.

Valued at approximately $6,000, the vacuum unit's chief significance lies in the fact that specimens prepared in the unit take on contrast or a three-dimensional effect when examined under the electron microscope.

Dr. O. F. Edwards, associate professor of bacteriology especially trained in electron microscopy, explained that without the coating of vaporized metal, viruses or other matter do not show as sharp a contrast when observed under the electron microscope. The coated specimen, in addition to showing more contrast, casts a shadow which can be measured on a photograph and interpreted to give an indication of the height or depth of the object under observation, he asserted.

Operation of the unit is based on the creation of a vacuum in which a high current at a very low voltage will heat various types of metals to the melting point and disperse atomic-sized particles of the element over the desired substance. The extremely small bit of metal which is used in the process is suspended in

Lula Well-Remembered By SAE

By Don B. Towles, U. K. Student

(Author's note: This article is based on an interview with Lula Tompkins, 76-year-old Negro who was employed for 26 years by the SAE fraternity at the University of Kentucky. Many alumni who have not seen Lula for many years would like to know of her.)

Lula Tompkins, 76-year-old Negro who for 26 years worked as a cook at the SAE fraternity house on the University of Kentucky campus, is well remembered by SAE alums throughout the state and nation.

Lula served meals to such notables as former Governor Keen Johnson, State Senator Ray Moss, and Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead. She can recall the names of all the men who stayed at the fraternity house during their stay in college.

She says that the happiest days of her life were spent in the kitchen and dining room of the SAE house with Mrs. Ballard Luxon, house-mother, and the "boys of SAE."

Illness forced Lula to quit working two years ago but the SAE chapter on the campus and alumni of that chapter have paid her living expenses since that time. They now have a permanent retirement for the old servant for the rest of her life.

Since her employment by the chapter in 1921, Lula had played an important part in the social functions held at the house. It was Lula who came around with refreshments for the boys and their guests. Lula's sparkling personality and quick smile caused co-eds for 26 years to go away from the SAE parties remarking that they would never forget "the old colored lady who served the punch."

It was with deep regret that Lula left the services of SAE in 1946 but she remarked that "I want to come back and see you and all my old SAE friends when the homecoming game is played." Lula's request was not forgotten and when the annual homecoming banquet was given by the chapter at the LaFayette hotel last fall, Lula was brought in to talk to the group of assembled guests and alumni.

Before the banquet began as Lula was being brought into the hotel, she met one of her earliest SAE acquaintances, former Governor Keen Johnson.

"How are you, Lula?" asked the former governor.

"I'm just fine, Mr. Johnson. Nothing makes me as happy as to see all you gentlemen back here at home having a good time," she replied.

Leaning heavily on the cane which she has used in the past several years, Lula greeted many of the alums and guest speakers with her firm handshake and cheerful words.

She immediately recognized Judge Alfred K. Nippert, past president of the national chapter, who had been the speaker the previous year. "It's so good to see you Judge Nippert," said Lula. "We are all so glad that you got to come back this year."

Judge Nippert, after whom Nippert Field at the University of Cincinnati is named, was so moved by the appearance of Lula the previous year at the banquet that he helped launch the plans for the permanent retirement fund.

The short, well rehearsed speech given at the homecoming banquet each year by Lula often brings tears to the eyes of the assembled guests as they listen to the words of the faithful servant. Lula had missed but few days of work while employed at the SAE house.

Her speech is usually ended with a prayer that all the alumni may return the following year to enjoy the homecoming festivities and fellowship. Her last request is that the chapter sing "Friends," the fraternity song, before she leaves and the tears stream down her face as the song echoes through the room.

She received more applause than any of the speakers or guests as she left the banquet room last year. The alums agreed that Lula "stole the show."

She now lives at her modest home on Patterson Street in Lexington with her mother, Hettie Pope, who celebrated her 104th birthday in March. Hettie has the distinction of being one of the oldest living Kentuckians. She is able to stand around somewhat better than I can and helps with much of the work around the house.

Remarking that her mother did most any kind of work, Lula said "Mama worries me when she works too hard, but she sure is a lot of help." Lula's mother was a slave during the Civil War and remembers seeing President Lincoln when he visited Perryville in Boone county.

During her stay at the chapter house and since Lula has kept a scrapbook of all SAE happenings and in many respects, it is more complete than the chapter book. It takes a great amount of pride in showing alumni, who often visit the scrapbook which recalls the college days.

During the war when the chapter house was closed, Lula was "loaned" to the Kappa Delta sorority but in 1946 she was again on hand to help in the kitchen. It was soon afterwards that she was forced to stop working.

Lula is still called upon by the chapter to help serve at various functions and that is the thing she enjoys most. Wherever she goes it seems as though her beaming personality and consistent spreading of good will add to the life and enjoyment of the occasion.

Legislature Appropriates $6,133,600 To UK For Biennium

The 1948 Legislature, upon the recommendation of Governor Earle Clements, appropriated $6,133,600 to the University of Kentucky for the two-year period, 1948-'50. This is an increase of $541,575 over the 1946-'48 budget appropriation allotted to the University, but did not take into consideration any capital outlay requests of the University or other educational institutions. The University has asked $6,000,000 in capital outlay, plus another $1,700,000 deficiency allotment to complete the fieldhouse.

The University budget, broken down by divisions, follows. The figures listed below are for the next fiscal year, 1948-'49 beginning July 1; the same figures apply for the fiscal year 1949-'50.

Ky. Pharmacists Give UK Frigidaire

Under the sponsorship of Lambda chapter of the Alpha Zeta Omega Pharmaceutical fraternity at the University of Kentucky College of Pharmacy in Louisville, pharmacists of Kentucky have presented the college with a new model, seven-cubic-foot Frigidaire.

The refrigerator was installed January 9 in the dispensing laboratory.

UK candidates for master's degrees in education on the non-thesis basis now may earn one-third of their credits by off-campus study through the Department of University Extension. The new policy has been adopted by the University on recommendation of the Council on Higher Education. Two-thirds of the required credits must be earned on-campus and all students must continue to meet administration requirements and other standards of the Graduate School.

Special courses for housewives and business and professional workers, as well as regular college courses, will be offered at the University of Kentucky's new Northern Extension Center which will open in Covington next fall.

U. K. Plans Fifth Men's Residence Hall

Although still in the blueprint stage pending receipt of state funds, the new men's residence hall, shown above as architect John F. Wilson of Lexington visualizes it, is being given high priority in the proposed building program of the University of Kentucky. The structure is designed to house 365 students and provide dining facilities for 1,200. It is expected to cost approximately $1,900,000 and the University proposes to pay half the cost of construction from rents.

The University's Student Government Association has announced plans to undertake an extensive educational program on the Kentucky Constitution in institutions of higher education throughout the state for the purpose of "studying and considering" the present document. The impartial program may even extend into high schools in order to create "an awareness of present government conditions and limitations imposed by the constitution."

Dr. Herbert P. Riley, professor and head of the department of botany at UK, is the author of an introductory college textbook on the general subject of genetics. Dr. Riley has been in the process of writing the 596-page, 30-chapter textbook since 1940.

The newest college of the University of Kentucky—Pharmacy—is not a new school; it was established in 1870 as the Louisville College of Pharmacy.

Following a nation-wide trend among leading universities to expand their services to the citizens of the state, the University of Kentucky has established a Northern Extension Center in Covington.

Action of the University trustees in setting up the center, unprecedented in Kentucky, followed several months of close study of plans for an off-campus center in Northern Kentucky to make that area "a real part of the campus of the University."

The U. K. Northern Extension Center, first such center to be established in the state, will open with the beginning of the Fall Semester in September.

Class reunions are not exclusively for specified classes: they are for all former students who wish to come back to the campus in the spring-time of the year. Let this be your urgent invitation to attend and to notify the office of your intention.

University of Kentucky military science students studying aircraft maintenance engineering now will have to consult charts or graphs. The department now has a cutaway model of a Pratt-Whitney 2,000-horsepower airplane engine of the type used in the B-26 bomber, DC 1 commercial airplane and other planes.

Thirty-five University of Kentucky administrators and faculty members are among the prominent men and women of the nation whose biographies are in the 1948-49 volume of "Who in America."
