University Extension

By HELEN KING

Upon the recommendation of Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University, to the University Senate, the Department of University Extension was organized in April, 1919, with a committee, headed by Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, appointed to carry on the work of the organization.

This committee worked out a program, prepared an announcement and began its work which soon grew beyond the scope of the faculty committee so that in September of the same year the Board of Trustees decided to appoint a full time director of University Extension and named Dr. Wellington Patrick to that office.

The work of the department as outlined by the first committee in charge, consisted of the development of four bureaus, namely; a Bureau of Correspondence Study; a Bureau of Lectures; a Bureau of Debating and Public Discussion and a Bureau of General Information.

The Bureau of Correspondence Study and the Bureau of Debating and Public Discussion began immediate development. Correspondence instruction was worked out in detail, a system of records was installed and plans carried out for accrediting the work. The work developed slowly and the first year about 200 students were enrolled. The Bureau of Debating began with a very small interest and the first year some 15 high schools over the state entered into competition in debate.

The director of University Extension has described the work of the department and its growth as follows:

"As time went on new activities were added in various types of service. In 1921, work was begun in extension class instruction. Following the general movement in university extension over the country, correspondence instruction and class extension received major emphasis. Year by year this type of activity increased. For the past two or three years, the Department has had annually approximately 3,000 enrollments, or approximately 1,500 individuals who have been enrolled for college credit each year."

"By 1925, the work had grown to considerable proportions in the field of debating and public discussion. From time to time various activities were added and this part of the extension program assumed a variety of activities. The Bureau of Debating and Public Discussion was expanded to include public speaking of various types in addition to debating. In 1925, music was added to the work of this Bureau and the Annual State High School Music Festival became an important event in High School Week at the University. In 1926, scholarship tests of the modern type were added, and since that time competition in the field of scholarship has assumed an important position and become a large phase of the activities of High School Week."

"In 1926, an Assistant Director was added to the staff of the Department, and Prof. Louis Clifton was appointed to that position. The Woman's Club Service was initiated the same year and Mrs. W. T. Lafferty appointed as Secretary. The Woman's Club Service attempts to give various types of service to women's clubs. It furnishes speakers, package libraries, and club study outline for the study and discussion of various public questions. Books from the General Library are loaned through this service and information furnished on various topics."

"High School Week was initiated in 1922 and at first consisted of a debating tournament. Some three hundred visitors attended the first High School Week. As interest grew and activities were added, the program gradually expanded until now, each spring at the Annual High School Week some 4,000 visitors come to the University to participate or to see and hear the programs presented."

"The work of stimulating better music in the State began with the organization of the State High School Music Festival in 1925. This has grown to considerable proportions and involves now a large percentage of the high school population of the State. This work is stimulating to students and to music supervisors and according to the opinion of many practical music people is going far toward building up a better type of music in the schools of the State."

"In 1924, the Rural School Tournament was initiated, offering various types of service to the rural schools of the State. Competitive programs were initiated in scholarship in the various school subjects, athletics, and speaking. This program has grown in importance and usefulness until at the present time it is looked forward to as an important phase of extra-curricular work in rural schools. Each year 20 to 30 counties meet in competition in various phases of school work. The effect is stimulation to better effort in the school programs of rural schools."

"Visual education is a phase of extension work which was organized soon after the Department was created. Its purpose is to offer service to schools in the way of furnishing help in the way of educational films, slides, and other types of visual instruction work. It also offers help to schools in the matter of selection of the various types of motion picture projectors, stereopticons, ballopticons, stereoscopes, etc. The question of the selection of such equipment is rather technical and there are so many different types of machines that it becomes a matter of considerable study for a school man to know what he wants. Indeed he may study the matter for some time and then proceed to select some equipment not suited to the purpose for which he wishes to use it. A service of this kind is helpful in assisting school men to get the right sort of equipment and in a quick and effective solution of the problem. Again, educational films and slides are expensive and the pooling of interests in the form of a library of such material for loan makes a sort of cooperative problem serving a useful purpose."

"The question is often asked as to why it is necessary for a university to offer services to high schools of the state in the way of contests and various other helps. The criticism is often made that contests take time from school work. Present educational trends emphasize the importance of extra-curricular activities. The program offered, furnishes a definite means of motivating school work and the fact that schools have more and more entered into these activities is definite proof of the fact that the program serves as a motivating agency without which the extra curricular activities so much desired on the part of school men would fall flat. Indeed the work in debating has grown to such proportions that the National University Extension Association now publishes cooperatively for the members a debate handbook.

Debate therefore assumes the proportions of a national movement done cooperatively through the medium.

Editorials

For the first time in the history of the University and the Alumni Association, the Alumni are being appealed to through the Alumnus and by mail, to show their appreciation to their Alma Mater in some material way.

Through these columns, several times before, the "Annual Giving Idea" has been mentioned. At the last meeting of the Alumni Executive Committee, it, placed its stamp of approval on the idea. Hence, during the month of April this year and from now on the committee is going to ask alumni everywhere to contribute something to the ALUMNI LOYALTY FUND.

At the University there never have been adequate funds at the disposal of the Student Loan Fund Committee, and each year deserving as well as intellectually brilliant students have been forced to leave school due to the lack of funds. The Alumni Loyalty Fund will help remedy this situation.

Depending entirely on the payment of dues for support of alumni activities necessarily limits the contacts and services that the alumni office can perform. We are called upon to reach you for many different organizations as well as individuals. Our means of doing this is curtailed from the lack of funds. The University has reason to contact you, to put information in your hands. This, we are unable to do. An Alumni Loyalty Fund will mean a proper contact between the University and its Alumni.

Please feel the necessity, as well as the good that will come from such a movement if we all put our shoulder to the wheel. When your letter arrives announcing the drive and requesting you to contribute to the Loyalty fund, remember the two purposes for which the money will be used, and do your part.

As you have passed along the paths of learning, you must not be unmindful of those who follow you. Your continued support of the University and the Alumni Association will be appreciated by both, and extremely beneficial to all.

AGAIN THE FIRST

In 1930 the first Doctor of Philosophy degree was granted by the University, to Dr. J. A. Yates, class of 1890, who returned to his Alma Mater to receive the advanced degree at her hands.

In 1933 Doctor Yates is again the first to come when his Alma Mater is in the process of starting something new. In many copies of the Alumnus, the Alumni have been told of a plan starting an Alumni Loyalty Fund. A few letters have been written from the secretary's office relative to such a fund. One was sent to Doctor Yates. He responded with a check, even before the annual gift giving month had arrived.

Doctor Yates' joy in his Alma

Mater is refreshing and his loyalty to his school is seldom equaled.

CHAMPIONS

In 1921 the Wildcat basketball team rewarded their followers with the crown of the Southern conference. Many times since the boys in blue have represented the South Limestone institution at the annual tournament only to be denied the championship. This year the "Big Blue" could not be stopped.

In the first conference meet held since the reorganization and division of the former Southern Conference, the Wildcats copped the crown. A great team, coached by Adolph Rupp swept all aside to do honor to their Coach, the University and themselves.

Alumni everywhere rejoice in the team's accomplishments, their unexcelled sportsmanship, and the honor they have been accorded.

DENNY SMITH URGED TO MAKE RACE

The West Kentucky Press Association, in session at Paducah, Friday, February 21, adopted a resolution urging Denny P. Smith, '93, of Hopkinsville, to reconsider his decision to remain out of the legislative race this year. The association declared Smith rendered valuable service to the taxpayers of Kentucky at the last two sessions of the Assembly. Smith served in the House last year.

The press association also passed a resolution calling on the prospective candidates for the 1934 Assembly in this section of the state to use their influence to obtain consideration of the efficiency commission survey made in 1923.

This survey has been pigeonholed at Frankfort since its completion.

LEXINGTONIANS RECOMMENDED BY STATE BOARD

The state board of bar examiners in its report to the court of appeals February 21 recommended that 37 be granted licenses to practice law in Kentucky.

The board made its report on the examination held in December, 1932, but owing to the absence of Chief Justice Richard Priest Dietzman, the report will not be approved by the court and licenses granted until next week.

The grades of all persons who took the bar examination are on file with Judge C. C. Turner, secretary of the board of bar examiners.

The board recommended that the following persons be granted license: Lassere Bradley, Sam Manley III, and James William Hume Jr., Lexington.

AGED JANITOR DIES

Armstead Mitchell, negro, 620 Sellers street, for 31 years janitor at the University of Kentucky, who retired several years ago because of age, died at his home Tuesday afternoon. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Pleasant Green Baptist church.

During his long service at the University, Mitchell was known by hundreds of students.

Class Reunions

Extensive plans are now being made for the Class Reunions to be held at the University in June. Commencement week will begin with Baccalaureate Services on Sunday, May 28th, and the following six days will be filled with activities honoring the members of the graduating class and the alumni.

The classes holding reunions in June are those whose numbers end in 3 and 8 and the class of 1931. A special invitation will be extended to all members of these classes. All alumni, who do not belong to these classes but who want to return to the University to take part in the festivities, will be welcome, as this is a time when we want all alumni to come back to their Alma Mater.

Friday, June 2nd, has been set aside as Commencement Day. The alumni committee decided on Thursday, June 1st, as Alumni Day. Alumni Day will begin with registration in the Alumni office, followed by class or group luncheons, tea with the McVey's at Maxwell place, and the annual alumni banquet at the Lafayette hotel that night. The next day will feature Commencement exercises, with the alumni parade, University luncheon, and the annual meeting of the Alumni association.

The Strollers, dramatic organization at the University, are making plans to have a get-together at Commencement and revive an old Stroller reproduction. Helen King, Herndon Evans and Leo Sandman are writing to many of the old Strollers to get their support. The play will be given during Class Reunions, in honor of those who have returned to the scene of their college life.

Last year, many of those who returned expressed regret that reunions caused them to lose two weeks away from home, especially when it was necessary for them to travel long distances. Therefore, it was decided that it would be best to have Alumni Day nearer the middle of the week, so that it would be necessary to lose only one week away from the office.

At the last meeting of the Executive Committee Dr. E. Cronley Elliott was appointed as Chairman of Class Reunions. Doctor Elliott has long been connected with Alumni work and has taken an active interest in the activities of the Association. Members of the Reunion classes will hear from him soon.

Letters will be sent out to those classes holding reunions within the next two weeks. By that time our plans will be more definite and the Reunion Chairman will have more news concerning this annual event.

Members of the Alumni Executive Committee and the Administrative officers of the University are looking forward to welcoming a large number of returning grads in June.

TWO TICKETS SUBMITTED

The two nominating committees of the Alumni Association met at 4 o'clock Monday, March 13th, at the Alumni office to draw up slates for officers and members of the Executive Committee of the Association.

The slates, as submitted to the Secretary, consist of the following:

For President

Ticket Number One—
Dr. G. Davis Buckner
Ticket Number Two—
Dr. George H. Wilson.

Vice-President

Ticket Number One—
Mrs. Thomas R. Underwood
Ticket Number Two—
Miss Lillian Rasch

For Membership on Executive Committee

Ticket Number One—
Mrs. Ben Collings
Dr. E. Cronley Elliott
Ticket Number Two—
Walter W. Hillenmeyer
Otto C. Gartin.

The presidency is now held by Dr. G. H. Wilson, while Dean Sarah Blanding is vice-president. Those two elected members of the Executive Committee whose terms expire in June are Dr. E. Cronley Elliott and Walter W. Hillenmeyer.

Besides the elected members, there are five members of the committee who were appointed to serve for one year. Their terms expire in June and the president elected on this ballot will appoint the new members.

There are:

Maury Crutcher, '17
Dr. G. Davis Buckner, '08
Lee McClain, '19
Mrs. Thos. R. Underwood, '19
Guy Huguélet, '14.

The two candidates for the office of President are Lexington men. Doctor Wilson is a graduate in the class of '04, and is a prominent physician in Lexington. Doctor Buckner was graduated in the class of 1908 and is a chemist at the Experiment Station of the University.

Mrs. Thos. R. Underwood (Eliza Piggott) was graduated from the University in '19. She has served as an appointed member of the Committee for the past year. Miss Lillian Rasch, a resident of Covington, received her degree in '25.

Mrs. Ben Collings (Bess Haydon), a member of the class of '10, is a resident of Louisville. Otto C. Gartin, Ashland, Kentucky, was graduated in '20 and is a lawyer in Boyd county. Dr. E. C. Elliott, '02, is a dentist of Lexington and has served on the Executive Committee, as has Walter Hillenmeyer, '11, the other nominee. Mr. Hillenmeyer is one of the owners of the Hillenmeyer Nurseries in Lexington.

Ballots for election will be sent out from the Alumni office not later than April 1. All members of Association will be entitled to one vote and it will be necessary to return the ballots to the Alumni Office at the University just as soon as possible after they have been received and voted.

DR. McVEY JUDGED LEADING CITIZEN

The selection of Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University of Kentucky, as the citizen who had contributed most to Lexington in 1932, was announced at the weekly meeting of the Lexington Optimist club at the Lafayette hotel recently when the club presented Doctor McVey its annual cup in recognition of service to the community.

A committee of past presidents of the club selected Dr. McVey, and the presentation of the cup was made by James Park, chairman of this group.

Mr. Park, in presenting the cup to the University president, said that the committee was aware of the remarkable progress of the University during the administration of Dr. McVey, but that his selection was chiefly the result of his work in overcoming unusual difficulties in 1932.

He said other men had been selected to receive the Optimist cup largely because they had obtained things of material value to the community. While the University's value materially "runs into the millions," he said, "it is the other things that I particularly have in mind today." He then emphasized the educational, cultural and spiritual worth of the University to the community.

"It is difficult for a man to be great in times like these," said Mr. Park as he told of Dr. McVey's work at the University during the

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION SPONSORS CELEBRATION

A centennial celebration in honor of the 100th birthday of the late James Kennedy Patterson, for 42 years president of the University of Kentucky and recognized as one of the state's greatest educational leaders, has been arranged by the University Alumni Association for Saturday, March 25.

The memorial celebration will be in the form of a banquet at the Lafayette hotel at 7 o'clock the night of March 25, with Dr. George H. Wilson, president of the alumni association, presiding. Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the university, will act as toastmaster.

Speakers will include Charles N. Manning, president of the Security Trust Company, personal friend and financial adviser to the late President Patterson; F. Paul Anderson, dean of the College of Engineering of the University, and Mrs. Mabel Pollitt Adams, wife of Dr. Frank L. Adams, Tampa, Fla., member of the class of 1913 and author of President Patterson's biography.

Part of the program will be broadcast through Station WHAS, Louisville, from the extension studios at the University of Kentucky, which will set up remote control connections at the hotel for the ceremonies.

L. K. Frankel, former president of the alumni association, is general chairman of arrangements for the Patterson centennial celebration. Mrs. Thomas R. Underwood, class of '19, is chairman of the banquet committee.

Simultaneous with the Lexington banquet, corresponding dinners will be held by University alumni clubs throughout the country. These dinners have been arranged so the alumni and former students assembled may tune in on the Lexington program as broadcast over Station WHAS. Clubs planning dinners include Ashland, Atlanta, Bell County, Birmingham, Buffalo, Chicago, Bowling Green, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Louisville, Kansas City, New York, Paducah, Philadelphia, and Washington.

At least 300 graduate former students, faculty members and other friends of President Patterson will attend the banquet in Lexington.

Further details will be made public by Miss Marguerite McLaughlin, chairman of public, as soon as they are perfected. Miss McLaughlin's committee is composed of Miss Helen King, Thomas R. Underwood, Gerald Griffin, and Frederick Jackson.

LEXINGTON CLUB ENTERTAINS CHAMPIONS

John (Frenchy) DeMoisey, the free-wheeling wizard from Walton, was elected captain of the 1933-34 University of Kentucky basketball team at the annual dinner for the lettermen given Thursday night, March 2, at the Lafayette hotel. The dinner was sponsored by the Lexington Alumni club and Miss Marguerite McLaughlin, president of the club, presided.

DeMoisey, all-southern forward and second high scorer on the Kentucky basketball team was elected captain for 1933-34 and succeeds Forest (Aggie) Sale, all-American and all-Southern payer, who introduced the new captain following his election by those players who were awarded letters.

Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University, was the principal speaker on the program, which also included talks by Varsity Coach Adolph Rupp, Freshman Coach Len Miller, presentation of letters and numerals by Athletic Director S. A. Boles and the awarding of championship medals to the tournament squad by Major B. E. Brewer, commandant of the University R. O. T. C., and member of the athletic council.

President McVey, who is also head of the new Southeastern Conference, after paying a tribute to the champions and their coach, discussed the new era in college athletics and the purposes of the Southeastern Conference. He told of what the University must look forward to in the field of athletics, declaring that "vision was needed in athletics just as much as it was in anything else."

"This is just a dream at this time, but I don't think I am looking into the future beyond a reasonable time when I say that I hope to see, as a part of the physical education program at the University, much larger accommodations for mass play than we have at present," declared Dr. McVey.

"I hope to see a new field built on the east side of the College of Education where University high may train its athletes; I hope to see at the head of Washington avenue, on Rose street, a playing field and an armory large enough even to accommodate an indoor football game where many teams may play basketball and participate in other sports, where the University regiment may go through its maneuvers, where a swimming pool could be built and aquatic sports introduced.

Dr. McVey said that he realized that such a program probably could not be started at the time being. "It will be six or eight years before the country settles down to a state of normalcy," he said, "and we may not be able to do much before then."

Players who received letters at the banquet were: Forest Sale, Ellis Johnson, Darrell Darby, Howard "Dutch" Kreuter, John DeMoisey, Bill Davis, George Yates, Dave Lawrence, Jack Tucker, George Skinner, Evans Settle and Manager Charles Maxson. Of these boys, Sale, Darby, Johnson, Yates and Skinner are seniors.

Cleveland Club

A letter from R. E. Clark, past President of the Cleveland Club, tells us that the officers for 1933 are C. R. McClure, '20, president; R. E. Sherman, '27, secretary-treasurer.

At the last meeting of the Cleveland Club, held on February 11th, it was decided that the club would hold a meeting on March 25th, honoring the late Dr. James K. Patterson. It is their plan to listen in to the broadcast of the University celebration and to have a program of their own.

Buffalo Club

The Buffalo club met at the Markeen hotel Saturday, February 18, and discussed plans for a dinner to coincide with the 100th anniversary exercises in memory of the late President J. K. Patterson. An election of new officers was held also, Mr. Claude Daniels being elected president.

About 14 members were present and it was decided that no definite plans would be carried out until we heard from Mr. Frankel, more definitely in regard to the broadcasting of the memorial program.

GEORGE BRYAN SHANKLIN WINNER OF SERVICES AWARD

George Bryan Shanklin, B. M. E. 1911, University of Kentucky, recently received a Charles A. Coffin Foundation Award from the General Electric Company, it has been learned here. Mr. Shanklin was cited for his development of the present practice in high-voltage oil-filled underground electric cable, used in various localities up to a maximum of 132,000 volts.

Mr. Shanklin, now a member of the cable section of the central station department of the General Electric Company, came to that company in August, 1911, when he entered the testing department. He has made important contributions to the theory of oil-filled cable from the very beginning and today he is the recognized authority on this type of cable. Through his contributions, the oil-filled cable system has been reduced from an interesting, but unduly expensive, technical advance, to a practical commercial product. As a result of his efforts, business in this field has increased greatly during the last few years.

The Charles A. Coffin Foundation Awards, established in memory of Charles A. Coffin, first president of the General Electric Company, are granted each year for outstanding service in the many fields of General Electric activity to advance the interests of the company and in many instances the whole electrical industry. They are awarded to employes in all branches of service, whether they be workmen, foremen, salesmen, scientists or executives, according to merit. Recommendations for the awards are made with great care, and only cases of clearly exceptional merit are considered. This year, 31 General Electric employes were thus honored.

Bryan Shanklin is the son of the late Elliott West Shanklin and Martha Gist Bryan Shanklin. He has been connected with the General Electric Company since his graduation at the University of Kentucky, when Dean F. Paul Anderson secured a position for him there at that time. He was a great favorite with the late Doctor Steinmiz, the noted scientist who was at the head of the consulting engineering department of the General Electric Company for so many years.

SCRUGHAM TALKS TO ENGINEERS

Congressman-Elect James G. Scrugham, '00, former governor of Nevada, and a graduate of the University of Kentucky, in an address at the University engineering convocation in Memorial hall recently, advocated expansion of the national currency by coining of silver as a remedy for national lethargy.

"Banks are closed, businesses are bankrupt, hundreds of thousands of people are in actual want, all because of lack of money," Mr. Scrugham declared. "Inflate the currency; put silver on a parity with gold, and this strange apathy or paralysis will be remedied," the speaker said.

Congressman Scrugham admitted some selfishness in his stand as he comes from a silver-producing state, but he expressed the opinion that drastic steps must be taken to avoid national disaster.

The former Nevada governor was introduced by F. Paul Anderson, dean of the college of engineering, who recalled the days when "Jimmy" Scrugham was a student in his college. Mr. Scrugham is enroute to Washington to attend the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt, and to take up his duties as the lone congressman from his adopted state.

In the audience were relatives and many friends of Mr. Scrugham. He was the guest of his mother, Mrs. T. A. Scrugham, and his sister, Dr. Mary Scrugham of Lexington.

The speaker recalled his early days in the west, when he, in 1903, was appointed professor of engineering at the University of Nevada, and aided in founding a college along lines under which the Kentucky engineering college operated.

Personal reminiscences of exploration or mining experiences with men now prominent in national affairs were recalled by Mr. Scrugham, who said he had been associated with George J. Dern, Roosevelt's new secretary of war; Bronston Cutting, Arizona, who declined the post of secretary of the interior, and Kee Pitman, who will preside as president pro-tem of the United States senate.

The speaker also told of his acquaintance with Walter Scott, the famed "Death Valley Scotty," formerly of Cynthiana, whose dreams crystallized in a magnificent development in Death Valley, costing $2,500,000, including a campanile with chimes and organ.

The engineering students, led by Crosby Bean, University drum major, sang "On, On, U. of K." and gave two cheers in honor of the visiting congressman. Organ selections were played by Prof. A. W. Kelley, of the University faculty.

HONOR WON BY HUGH JACKSON

Hugh Russell Jackson, '31, graduate of the University of Kentucky, son of Mrs. Fannie E. Jackson, 135 East Maxwell street, and who is now working on his doctor's degree at Syracuse University, has been placed in charge of a group of 10 special students in research work in the political science field.

The honor was conferred upon Mr. Jackson as a result of his winning a thesis contest on the subject of public welfare. A scholarship granted to him at Syracuse University also has been increased as a result of his excellent work.

Mr. Jackson received his master's degree at the University of Kentucky last August at the age of 20, having received his bachelor's degree from the institution in June, 1931. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, and Phi Sigma Kappa, national social fraternity.

At present Mr. Jackson and his group of students are conducting a special study of political science at Rochester, N. Y., where they will remain until April 1.

R. J. COLBERT

Directors of the Public Health Center at a meeting at headquarters at Upper and Mechanic streets Monday afternoon reelected R. J. Colbert, master commissioner of Fayette county, president for his 14th consecutive term.

past year. He referred to the obstacles encountered during and after the session of the state legislature of 1932, the reduction in appropriations for the University and the failure of the legislators to make provisions for the payment of appropriations made.

The legislature appropriated $970,000 for the year for the University, a decrease of $200,000 from the previous year, and it was necessary for the governor to veto this measure because the legislature had not made the necessary funds available, according to Mr. Park. As a result, the University again had to rely on a per cent of property and inheritance tax money for its income.

Faculty members could not be paid in full as a result of the reduced income. "Here is where the test of greatness came," said Mr. Park. He expressed the opinion that it took a genius to handle the situation, thus presented, in the manner of Dr. McVey. Mr. Park said the committee also recognized the service of the faculty in this period and wished, through Dr. McVey, to express to the faculty members admiration for loyalty and cooperation.

Mr. Park cited the growth of the University under the administration of Dr. McVey. During 16 years the student body has increased from 1,000 to more than 3,000, the number of buildings from 17 to 39, the assets from $1,600,000 to $5,500,000.

"I think it is a very great honor to have the recognition of fellow citizens," said Dr. McVey, in accepting the cup. "It is a heartening thing." He said his work at the University could not have been done without the help of his colleagues and the assistance of the people of the community.

He said he accepted the cup with great appreciation and particularly with regard for the fine attitude and fellowship.

Approximately 150 persons, including members of other service clubs and other guests, attended the meeting. Emmet Milward, president of the Optimist club, presided and introduced the five men previously awarded the Optimist citizenship cup. They were C. Frank Dunn, 1927; C. L. Thompson, 1928; W. T. Congleton, 1929; Ed Wilder, 1930; Henry K. Milward, 1931.

Dr. McVey, who came to Lexington in 1917 to become president of the University of Kentucky, has been a leader in education for 38 years. He entered the teaching profession in 1895 as an instructor in history at Columbia University. A year later he went to the University of Minnesota where he was professor of economics until 1907, when he accepted an appointment to the Minnesota tax commission. He was the first chairman of this body.

He was elected president of the University of North Dakota in 1909 and held this position until he assumed his present post at the University of Kentucky. While connected with these institutions he also has been prominent in other educational work and in civic activities.

State, national and international education groups have called Dr. McVey to aid them with special problems. In the field of economics he has served on several special commissions. He was chairman of the national conference on marketing and farm credits, 1914-1916, and twice held the office of first vice-president of the American Economic association. He was president of the Minneapolis Associated Charities for 10 years and was elected to the executive committee of the national conference on charities and correction.

Dr. McVey is a native of Wilmington, Ohio. He received his early schooling in Ohio and was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University in 1893. He received a Ph. D. degree from Yale University in 1895. After leaving Yale he was an editorial writer in New York City for a brief period before accepting a post as instructor at Columbia. Ohio Wesleyan University, which awarded Dr. McVey an A. B. degree in 1893, conferred upon him an LL. D. degree in 1910. This degree also was conferred on him by the University of Alabama in 1919.

LIFE MEMBER OF ASSOCIATION DIES

Bill Combs, 62 years old, vice-president of the Combs Lumber Company, died at Providence farm, at the home of his brother, Thomas A. Combs, on the Newtown pike recently after an illness of several months.

Mr. Combs was the son of Alfred Combs, retired president of the Combs Lumber Company and president emeritus of the Good Samaritan hospital board. Besides his father, he is survived by four brothers, Thomas A. Combs, I. N. Combs, S. S. Combs, and James H. Combs.

In the Library Journal for November 15, 1932, is an article in a series, called "Librarian Authors," which sketches the career of Susan Grey Akers, University of Kentucky, 1909.

Miss Akers graduated from the Library school of the University of Wisconsin, 1912-13, and took her Ph. D. degree in library science at the University of Chicago in 1932. She held various library positions at Wellesley College, the New York Public Library, and at the University of North Dakota; she was instructor in cataloging at the Wisconsin Library school and at the University College, the University of Chicago. Miss Akers is now acting-Director and associate professor of library science in the School of Library Science, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

She regards the teaching of cataloging as her major occupation, and incidental to it was the writing of her book, "Simple Library Cataloging," which is now widely used as a text for classes in elementary cataloging. This book has recently been translated into the Chinese language by the Director of the Boone Library school, Central China College, Wuchang.

Miss Akers is a loyal alumna of the University of Kentucky and often stops off for a visit to the campus on her trips north and south.

dium of university extension, and effective work becomes possible and results much more definite than if the work were undertaken sporadically by isolated school units. The same principle is gradually extending to the modern testing movement and cooperative work among the states is beginning to develop. This movement therefore bids fair to becoming one of national significance as an arm of university extension."

"The net result of university extension is that it (1) provides facilities in organized instruction for those who could not otherwise attend college; (2) Offers various types of service to the schools of the State, making it possible to obtain more effective work in extra-curricular activities and for a more definite means of motivating school work; (3) Lifts the general standards of performance in public speaking, debating, music, and other school activities (4) Furnishes various types of service to citizens of the State. It has long been recognized that service to the State is a definite function of a university, particularly a state university. It is in line with this function that university extension as such has a definite place."

Basketball

By JACK G. TUCKER

Many seasons may pass before another basketball team like the one, which won the Southeastern conference tournament in Atlanta on February 28, 1933, comes out of the University of Kentucky. Again, next season may see another of these great Wildcat combinations go out to claim new triumphs on the hardwood court.

There are not many, however, who believe it will be possible for Coach Adolph F. Rupp to produce a team next winter that will be as great as the one which just closed its season. For three regulars who helped break almost every existing basketball record at the University will not return next fall.

The regulars who will not return next season are Capt. Forest "Aggie" Sale, all-American and all-Southern player, who has been hailed as the greatest individual cage star ever developed in the south; Ellis Johnson, all-American and all-Southern collegiate guard, and Darrell Darby, all-American scholastic forward. George Yates, second string center and all-Southern two seasons ago, will also be graduated next June, as will George Skinner, third string guard.

Sale came to the University from Kavanaugh High school at Lawrenceburg, where he was an outstanding basketball player. As a freshman, however, the work of the Anderson county youth was not especially impressive, but in his sophomore year, as a substitute for Carey Spicer and "Little" McGinis, both all-Southern players, the former Kavanaugh luminary began to come to the front, and Coach Rupp worked him in many games, anticipating much use for him in the two succeeding seasons. Sale was the offensive star of the Wildcats last season as well as this winter.

As a junior he scored 233 points to lead the entire Wildcat combination, and although he played in only two games in the annual Atlanta tournament, Sale finished as second high scorer of the meet with 41 points. Strickland, Georgia center, whose team won the 1932 title, finished first in scoring honors with a total of 51 points in four games.

This year the Kentucky captain set a new all-time scoring record of 71 points in the Atlanta tourney and was acclaimed as the greatest player seen in the 13 annual tournaments. During the season, Sale scored 328 points, believed to be the greatest number of points ever scored in three seasons by any one Kentucky player. His three-year total of 623 points is also believed to be the largest ever garnered by any one Kentuckian.

Johnson and Darby came to the University from Ashland High school and played with the Tomcat team which won the national tournament at Chicago in 1928. Both were selected as all-American scholastic players. Each has played on the Kentucky team for three seasons, Johnson at a guard and Darby at a forward.

The play of Johnson during the past season was so outstanding that he was selected on Frank Lane's all-American club and on the all-Southern team in Atlanta. He has been the guiding hand on the floor of the Kentucky team for two seasons, directing all play in masterful fashion and much credit for the Wildcats' success is given this player.

While not up to his scoring activities of former seasons, Darby has played an excellent floor game throughout his last year and Coach Adolph Rupp repeatedly assigned him to "cover" the high scoring aces of Kentucky's opponents.

George Yates, whose work two years ago at Atlanta went a long way in sending the Wildcats to the finals of the tournament, never fully recovered from illness which forced him out of competition last season. As a result, he was never at his peak during the 1932-33 card.

Here are some highlights on Kentucky's 1932-33 basketball season:

Kentucky scored 1,126 points in 24 games, an average of 46.95 points per game.

Kentucky's opponents scored 646 points, an average of 26.95.

Kentucky's average margin of victory in its 21 games won was 24.42 points.

In 12 conference games Kentucky scored 540 points, an average of 45 points.

Kentucky held its conference opponents to 301 points, an average of 25.

Kentucky's average margin of victory in 12 conference games was 19.91.

Kentucky averaged 10 personal fouls per game, an exceptionally low average for its defensive play.

On February 24, 1921, the University of Kentucky Wildcats nosed out Georgia in the final game 20 to 19 for the championship of the South.

More red-blooded stuff was crowded into one brief minute eleven years ago, when Kentucky State University defeated the University of Georgia, 20 to 19 for the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association's first basketball championship that comes to most men in the span of life.

There was less than a minute to play. Georgia was leading by the scant margin of 19 to 17. Both teams were desperate. The Kentuckians were fighting with the courage born of despair.

Hayden, the Kentucky captain, swept down the floor under the basket and the ball was hurled to him, and his shot was fast but accurate. It dropped through the basket without hesitating. The score was tied, 19-19. Only 30 seconds left to play. The ball was tipped off, "Little" Lavin takes it and passed to King, and King to Adkins who was unerved. Adkins took the ball and made an attempt to shoot, but was fouled by "Buck" Chieves. Little King of Kentucky took the ball as the players grouped themselves about the basket. "This was to decide the game." At this time the gun went off with a bang but the rules permitted King to shoot the foul, which he made good, and Kentucky won 20 to 19.

Members of 1921 squad:

Paul Adkins—Played center position, and won mythical all-Southern.

"Bill" King — All-Southern forward.

Captain "Bobby" Lavin — All-Southern guard.

Lawrence "Dutch" Burnham — Was one of the most consistent guards ever stood guard over a Wildcat goal.

Kenneth King—Forward, a product of the Manual Training School of Louisville.

Here's how the 1933 champions compare with the Kentucky champions of 1921:

1921—Games, 14; Won, 13; Lost, 1; Percentage, .928; Points, 510; Opponents, 263; Offensive, 36.42; Defensive, 18.64.

1933—Games, 24; Won, 21; Lost, 3; Percentage, .875; Points, 1,126;

1933 SOUTHEASTERN BASKETBALL CHAMPIONS

Opponents, 646; Offensive, 46.95; Defensive, 26.95.

1934 NET CARD IS ANNOUNCED

Coach Adolph Rupp recently announced that he had scheduled 10 games, all with Southeastern conference teams, for next year and that he expected to add at least five more. The Wildcats' 1933-34 schedule as announced by Coach Rupp follows:

January 1—Mississippi A. & M. at Starkville, Miss.

January 3—Tulane at New Orleans.

January 27—Tennessee at Lexington.

February 2—Vanderbilt at Nashville.

February 8—Tennessee at Knoxville.

February 10—Alabama at Lexington.

February 13—Georgia Tech at Lexington.

February 17—Vanderbilt at Lexington.

February 21—Alabama at Birmingham.

In addition to these games, Coach Rupp is trying to schedule two tilts each with Sewanee and L. S. U. and possibly another game with Mississippi A. and M.

The Wildcats will open the season against Georgetown on a date to be announced later, Coach Rupp said. He also said that he hopes to schedule a game with Ohio State and perhaps two with Creighton University.

MILITARY ATTACHE WILL SPEAK AT U. K.

Lieut.-Col. Emmuel Lombard, military attache stationed at the French Embassy at Washington, D. C. will be the speaker at the March convocation at the University of Kentucky Monday, March 20 under the sponsorship of Pan-Politikon, student organization for the study of international relations.

The French military official will reach Lexington March 19, and will address the general convocation at 10 a. m. the following day. Monday afternoon he will give an address in French and that night will be the guest-speaker at a banquet given in his honor by the international relations group, John M. Kane, student chairman of Pan-Politikon, announced today.

The first term of the 1933 summer session at the University will open on June 12 and close July 15. The second term's opening date will be on July 17, closing August 19. A competent and well-trained faculty consisting of 150 members will offer instructions in approximately 425 different courses.

Courses will be offered in all the colleges of the University, including the Graduate School. Any one interested in attending either session of the summer school, write to Dr. Jesse E. Adams, director, at the University of Kentucky. He will be glad to send you a bulletin.
