Welcome Back Champs

 THE SWEETEST TRIP ever taken by Coach Bryant was given him by the players after the game when they hoisted the personable mentor to their shoulders and hauled him victoriously to the dressing room. This was the first time in the memory of veteran football fans that a Kentucky grid chief had been given such a ride.

'Miss Seal' Named

$913 Given To TB Fund By Students

The title of "Miss Christmas Seal" was given to Mary Blanton Williams, Alpha Gamma Delta candidate, as winner of the contest sponsored by the Lexington and Fayette County Tuberculosis Association. She received a loving cup from the tuberculosis association.

Second and third place winners were Susan Macklin, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and Betty Compton, Jewell Hall.

Student contributions to the campaign amounted to $913.97. Although the contest has ended, students may still send contributions to the Association, 218 E. Main Street, Lexington. The money received will be used to continue work in health education, fact finding, case finding and rehabilitation in Fayette county.

Crash Is Fatal To UK Senior

A UK senior, Jack Cottengim, was killed late New Year's Day when the plane in which he was riding crashed three miles south of Lexington on a Clay's Mill road farm. Also killed was Ernest B. Adams, Winchester druggist.

Cottengim was a graduate of Winchester High School, a former student at Eastern Kentucky State College in Richmond and a senior in the College of Engineering. He was a member of the Richmond Presbyterian Church.

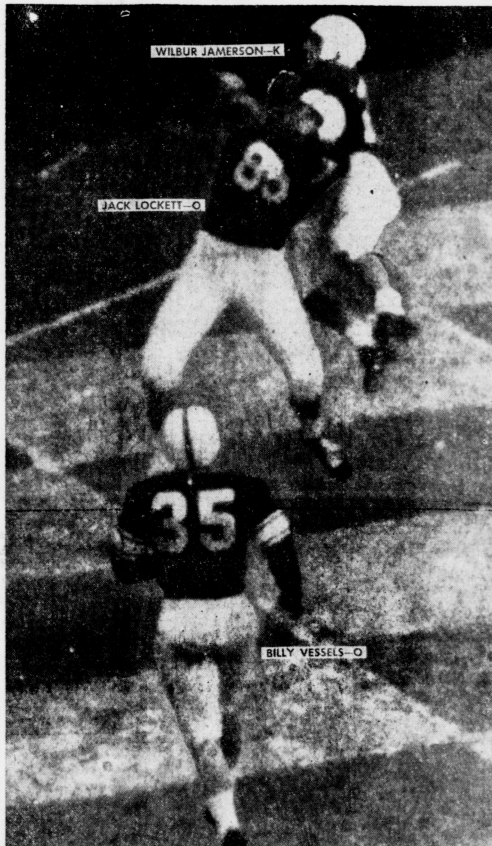

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Clara Hookins Cottengim, two daughters, Cathy and Jacquelyn Ray, a brother, Ralph, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. M. Cottengim, all of Winchester.

The funeral was held yesterday at the Scobee funeral home in Winchester. Burial was in the Winchester cemetery.

Nine Accept Commissions

Nine "distinguished military students" in the UK ROTC have accepted commissions as second lieutenants in the Regular Army.

The nine ROTC cadets and the branch of the Army which each expects to enter are James T. Highland and Herman D. Regan, the Corps of Engineers; Raymond K. Cooley, James O. Lambert and John A. Peidole, the Infantry; and Jess H. Hackney, Thomas J. Clark, Roy F. Lambert, and Elmer G. Brooker, the Signal Corps.

BILLY VESSELS-O

KENTUCKY'S CLAIM to national sports leadership was made possible by the action caught in these shots showing how UK scored its two touchdowns in beating Oklahoma in the Sugar Bowl classic, 13-7. Above, Wilbur Jamerson snags Babe Parilli's pass in the end-zone after two minutes and 50 seconds of play. Below, the same combination, Parilli to Jamerson, is responsible for moving the ball to Oklahoma's 48 yard line. This play started the Cats' second quarter drive which culminated in their second score, and which eventually proved to be the deciding tally.

In its meeting the Council stressed the discussion of personal problems, Christian heritage, world affairs, and religion in higher education.

Hail To The Champions!

Today UK and all Lexington join in giving our Sugar Bowl champions a rousing Welcome Home. With all afternoon classes dismissed, there's no reason why the UK students shouldn't be there 6,000 strong when this greatest football team in University history brings the Sugar Bowl home to the Coliseum at 2 p.m.

This great Wildcat team richly deserves every word of praise and every cheer they get. Fighting against odds, they defeated the Number One team in the nation and snapped Oklahoma's consecutive win streak of 31 games, the longest in modern football history.

This year's list of All-American, All-Conference, and all-opponent teams are richly sprinkled with Kentucky names. This climax to the rise of Kentucky's football fortune is marked with numerous records broken by our Wildcats. And to top off all the other honors, the Sugar Bowl festivities included the selection of Walt Yovarsky as the outstanding player of the 1951 Sugar Bowl game and the presentation to Bob Cain of the James B. Outland trophy as the outstanding guard or tackle in the nation.

This is our chance to show our champions just how proud of them we are. It's been a great year for UK and the Wildcats.
Let's do everything we can to make this homecoming a day they'll never forget.

The New Year—

With the world situation the way it is now, that old traditional phrase, "Happy New Year," has a rather hollow ring. Few of us really expect this to be a happy new year, unless it can also be a peaceful new year.

It's hard to keep interested in classes with the future so dark and uncertain as it is. We're apt to take a "what's-the-use?" attitude and feel that what we're doing is pretty futile after all.

But we can't afford to let this growing war tension get the best of us. Gloomy predictions and a hopeless attitude won't make things any better. It's especially important now that we keep a level head and concentrate extra hard on what we have to do—others if not for ourselves.

Since we certainly can't help the future by worrying about it, the best course for us is to work hard, keep our balance, and pray that this may turn out to be a Happy New Year after all.

Profainitease

By Bob Fain

In the last issue of the Kernel, some brave souls came forth with the announcement that "The Thing" is one who continuously bums cigarettes. They were wrong. Since that time, I have made a few observations to the effect that "The Thing" is a GIRL who bums cigarettes. If it isn't feminine, it isn't you-know-what.

A further description is that "The Thing" is something over seven feet tall, weighs in the neighborhood of 250 pounds, has a boyish haircut, and has probably been studied into majoring in phis ed. Anyone knowing the whereabouts of this creature (pardon the expression) should contact the nearest Army demolition team or shoot it on sight. The reward is a full carton of cigarettes.

And now, on with the doings. First we have the one about the old maid who was seeing her first suitor. She watched in amazement as a magician folded a handkerchief over a newspaper and then read the print. Then he doubled the handkerchief and again read the paper. The old maid rose from her seat, and as she walked down the aisle was heard to say, "And me with this calico dress on!"

Get out of the wheatfield. Grandmother, you're going against the grain.

Student: That was a perfect paper! Why did I get a 99? Journalism prof: You had a period upside down.

Pa: Son, who is this wild woman you've been running around with? Son: She ain't wild, pa. Anybody can get her.

"I never kissed a girl before in my life," said the young man as he removed the cigar from his vest pocket before taking the girl in his arms.

Student: I'm indebted to you for all I know. Teacher: Oh, don't mention such a trifle.

The snow was falling softly as the poetic young man helped his girl into the car.

Winter draws on.
Girl: Is that any of your business?
I've got an uncle in Idaho, Who's the fastest man alive. He got a dose of the seven-year itch. And scratched it out in five.

Then we come to the little one about the girl who stole her mother's corset and didn't have guts enough to wear it.

The motor of the automobile pounded, spluttered and finally stopped.
"I wonder what that knocking was," mused the young man.
"Maybe it was opportunity," responded the girl.

Drunk: Whatlacha lookin' for?
Cup: We're looking for a drowned man.
Drunk: Whatlacha want one for?
Then there's the one about the

UK Offers Marriage Course To High School Students

Prof. Louis Clifton, director of the University Extension Department, recently announced the inauguration of a correspondence course in marriage and family life to be offered at the high school level by UK. Since few Kentucky high schools offer such courses, the UK extension course has been arranged in order to make it available to young persons who cannot attend college. Prof. Clifton said.

The course designed primarily for high school juniors and seniors, young married couples, and for young persons contemplating marriage, has been prepared by Dr. James W. Gladden, UK professor of family sociology.

Although students may begin the course at any time and proceed at whatever speed they choose, it is expected to take most of them four to five months to complete it.

Upon approval by their principal, high school students may receive one unit of credit toward graduation after completing the course. The final examination, however, will be held in order to meet the principal's supervision in such cases.

Complete information, including enrollment blanks if desired, may be obtained by writing the Extension Department, University of Kentucky, Lexington.

The Blue Print

By BOB GORHAM
KENNEL SPORTS EDITOR

Like the walls of Jericho, the Oklahoma Sooners' 31-game winning streak came tumbling down and the boys who blew the trumpets and danced around the ruins New Year's Day were the Kentucky Wildcats, who had just captured the most important football victory in UK history.

Yes, sir, it was a glorious day in old New Orleans. Individual stars were abundant—

Wall Yowarsky, Bob Gaim, Babe Parill, Bill Wannamaker, Sherry Jamerson, Doug Moseley, Dom Fucini, Pat James, Ben Zarnucka, Chag Rogers—you could name the team effort—hard tackling and blocking, capitalizing on every break, first-class coaching, and the will to win and pay the price—that sent the Sooners home sobbing.

The victory was something. It took away the sting of several much-desired wins that had eluded the Cats when they bowed to SMU, Tennessee and Santa Clara in the past two seasons.

And the victory ride Coach Bryant got when the team romped off the field brought to the broadcast and happiest smiles to the

Wildcat Cagers Play Auburn Tonight

Revenge Chief Idea After Big Upset In Sugar Tourney

By Lewis Donohew

Kentucky's Wildcats will have blood in their eyes tonight.

They will have blood in their hearts and murder in their brains because they were beaten in the Sugar Bowl tournament and set to third place.

And they will be wanting to take it out on the nearest team available. That's their unfortunate Auburn comes in. The Tigers are the regular scheduled foe for tonight's contest at 8 o'clock in Memorial Coliseum.

The Kentuckians dropped a heart-breaking 43-42 decision to the St. Louis Billikens last Friday night to relegate them to the third place role in the tourney, which they placed by a score of 34-28.

The Kentuckians' tournament loss dropped it to third place in the Sugar Bowl affair, and Oklahoma A. & M. respectively.

An old jinx caught up with the Cats in their contest with the Billikens, and allowed the St. Louis cagers to hand them a setback for the second time in the two bowl meetings between the two squads.

In 1949 the Bills upset Kentucky, 42-40, to set the stage for this year's meeting.

Coach Rupp is expected to start his regular five of forwards Shelby Louisville and Capt. Walt Hirsch, Center Bill Spivey, and Guards Bobby Winters and Frank Ramsey in tonight's contest with the Tigers.

The Ruppmen are not expected to find the going rough tonight. Auburn, which has perennially been one of the doormats of the conference.

Auburn has a predominantly senior squad, with seven seniors listed on the fifteen-man aggregation invading here tonight. The remainder of the roster is composed of five juniors and three sophomores.

Tallest man on the Tiger roster is Center Dan Prigden, who brings 6-5 frame onto the floor. Next to him is Bill Dawson at 6-3, also in the first two minutes to get up the first Cat score.

Late in the first quarter, Walt rushed Arnold and three him for a 14-yard loss. In the second quarter, he rushed him again for a 12-yard loss. It was the never-retiring Yowarsky who threw Veselski for that loss on third-down stand.

And it was the same man who recovered the ball in the fourth quarter on Oklahoma's 32-yard line when Leckert tried to pick up the ball and missed after Fucini's punt.

The balloting was close for the Miller trophy. Yowarsky edged out Babe Parill, 30 votes to 28, which is a tribute to the Kentucky team still shows how complete the victory was.

Oklahoma got more first downs and more yardage but they don't pay off on statistics. The Cats were masters all the way when touchdowns were up for discussion.

On the Kentucky bench during the thrilling contest, was Coach Adolph Rupp, whose basketballers are mentioned in the Super Bowl basketball extravaganza.

The day before the game, the Baron told an Alumni gathering that he was sorry his cagers couldn't do for he knew it would have made it a double victory. He said he was sure the football team would come through.

The Cat cagers were flatter against St. Louis than they had been in some time. The Billikens used a sagging defense, being willing to let the Wildcats shoot from far out. This strategy gave them an excellent rebounding position under the basket on both sides of the lane and they never forgot their assignments for an instant.

Their 6-4 center, Bob Koch, and 6-4 forward, Bob Sommerer, double-teamed Bill Spivey so effectively that Spivey couldn't get near the boards all night.

The Bills employed one of the strangest offenses ever seen in the first and last minutes of the ball game. They sent two men deep to each corner—they stood almost side by side on the out-of-bounds line—and left their dribbling demoman guard, Bob Steiner, out on the front line.

Steiner just stood out there dribbling back and forth. No one else moved except little Bobby Watson who kept hawking at the ball, but couldn't get it.

It was an aggravating situation, but one that contributed greatly to the St. Louis victory.

Kentucky and Oklahoma set a record apiece and Sherry Jamerson tied one in the Miami grid game.

Both team records were the result of fumbles—Oklahoma's five fumbles, a new high, and Kentucky's five recoveries, also top mark.

Jamerson's 12 points tied a mark held by six other performers in the Crescent City classic.

In all the past years of posties after the game, Babe Parill, Kentucky's unmatchable quarterback, can't be overlooked. Babe called a smart game, especially in the last seven minutes when he stilled out the clock with running plays to preserve the victory.

In that time, after the Sooners' lone TD, Kentucky ran only 12 plays, leaving time for just one by Oklahoma. That was the pass which Dick Martin intercepted. This all the more amazing when one realizes a team is allowed only 25 seconds in which to huddle and then start a play.

The hard luck award of the game goes to Benny Zarnucka, who dropped a pass in the end zone. "It was just too anxious, I guess," Benny commented in the dressing room.

Parill tried to take the blame for the pass, saying he should have thrown to the other side, but was afraid it would give the Sooner defenders a chance to intercept.

It was common knowledge around New Orleans that Frank Leahy, coach of the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame, assisted in preparing Oklahoma for the game.

Moseley Set To Assume VPI Duties

Coach Frank Moseley, who helped guide the Cats to their thrilling victory in the Sugar Bowl, will not be around next year.

The former Alabama quarterback who was the senior member of the coaching staff, has accepted the job as head coach at VPI and will assume his new duties early next week.

Moseley was born in Montgomery, Ala., and attended Sidney Lanier High School there where he made All-State two years and All-Southern in his senior year.

He entered Alabama in 1930 and won the regular quarterback's post in his sophomore year, a position he held for the 1931-2-3 seasons.

In his last year, he was named to the All-Southeastern team and was mentioned for All-American honors. He came to Kentucky immediately after his graduation and was assigned as backfield coach, a position he held until his entry in the service in 1941.

In the Navy he served as gunnery officer on the aircraft carrier Lexington, being discharged a Lt. Commander.

Immediately after his discharge, he went to the University of Maryland with Coach Paul Bryant. He stayed there for one season and then came back to Kentucky when Bryant came here in 1946.

In addition to his coaching duties, Moseley has been coach of baseball, a sport he revived in 1936 after a six-year lapse here at Kentucky.

He twice has led the baseballers to the NCAA playoffs and to division crowns in the SEC.

Bob Gain To Play In Senior Bowl Tilt

Big Bob Gain, the Cat tackle who was awarded the John E. Outland trophy as the outstanding tackle guard in the nation, will captain the OCAA players at Kentucky when Bryant came here in 1946.

In addition to his coaching duties, Moseley has been coach of baseball, a sport he revived in 1936 after a six-year lapse here at Kentucky.

He twice has led the baseballers to the NCAA playoffs and to division crowns in the SEC.

When the Wildcats were told about it at one of their squad meetings, someone remarked: "Looks like we'll just have to beat Notre Dame AND Oklahoma."

The Cats were lavish in their praise for Billy Veselski and his Leon Heath, the Sooners' two line backs. Everyone said Veselski was the best sophomore they had ever seen and agreed, too, that Heath was the hardest man they ever tried to stop.

Coach Frank Moseley said that he would take Veselski and Heath, Babe Parill, and Kyle Rote of SMU and stack that backfield against any other four backs—including the all-time greats.

Dick Martin, who made the game-clinching play when he intercepted Claude Arnold's desperation pass in the closing seconds, played the entire game under the close scrutiny of Dr. Ralph Augsbrock.

The doctor had been assigned this job because Dick was playing without the benefit of much practice and it would have been easy for him to get hurt.

He has a pinched nerve in his shoulder and was unable to do much drilling before the game. He performed like an All-American however, and was in good shape until his game-saving grab—when he felt, he re-injured his shoulder.

He was hardly able to lift his arm the next day.

Only other serious injury was a gash over Charlie McClelland's right eye. Three stitches were required to close the wound.

Former Cats seen in the dressing room at the game included Jerry Chalburne, Nick Odvark, Lloyd McDermott, George Blanda, and Dopey Phelps.

Southern Gridders Snubbed By Big Ten, Look Charges

The Southeastern and Southern conferences are being deliberately snubbed by the Western Conference plan for the control of college football.

That's the charge made by Tim Cohane in an article entitled "Let's Take the Hypocrisy out of College Football" in the current issue of Look Magazine.

Pointing out that the present ban on athletic scholarships, fostered by the Western Conference, is flagrantly violative of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the article predicts that "The so-called Sanity Code for the conduct of intercollegiate football will never become an institution but simply will end up in one."

"The Sanity Code is particularly stultified to the Western Conference which suffers from chronic megalomania," according to Look.

With the largest college-owned stadium in the country, the Big Ten is thus assured the biggest gate receipts.

By fostering the Sanity Code, this conference holds a corner on the football market. The article summarizes the Conference attitude as: "Eastern Ivy League Schools and the Army and Navy are to be countenanced graciously but with a mental reservation. The Pacific Coast Conference is to be invited to an occasional high tea. The Southwest Conference and the Big Seven are to be invited about once a year to open house for poor relations."

Cohane Here

Tim Cohane, author of the story described here, will be on the campus this week-end to do a story about the Kentucky Wildcats' basketball team, Ken Kuhn, sports publicity director said this week.

THE DU PONT DIGEST

On the road and in the laboratory, Du Pont scientists are writing

The Inside Story of Engine Deposits

Engineers have long known that deposits which accumulate in gasoline engines have a direct bearing on engine performance. Even now, however, no way has been found to eliminate these deposits or their effects.

As a manufacturer of chemicals used by the petroleum industry, the Du Pont Company has a particular interest in this problem. It is currently the subject of a comprehensive research project, conducted both on the road and in the laboratory.

When Du Pont engineers began their studies, some aspects of the relationships between engine, fuel, lubricant, operating conditions and deposits were known. But to understand how and why deposits form and to develop corrective measures, they needed additional information.

Engineers take to the road To get these facts, Du Pont engineers are supervising tests in a fleet of passenger cars and trucks that travel hundreds of thousands of miles yearly under carefully controlled conditions. The effects of deposits on octane number requirement, valve performance, spark plug condition and other performance characteristics are measured. After each test, the deposits are weighed and examined physically and chemically.

In the laboratory, other engineers study the effects of the same variables on multicylinder engines. Here, where closer control of the engines is possible, greater attention can be paid to specific fuel or engine operating effects. Performance factors, such as power output, can be more conveniently measured.

A third group of Du Pont engineers use single cylinder engines in laboratory studies of deposit formation, adhesion, removal and harm. Exploring new fields, these men had to design complex instrumentation for measuring factors such as surface condition and deposit thickness.

Chemists, too, have an important place in this research. They study the chemical and physical characteristics of engine deposits. Among other things, they devise ways of synthesizing, in fired engines, deposits consisting almost entirely of a single chemical compound in order to study its effect on engine performance.

The results of this comprehensive research program are not yet conclusive, although the relationships between engine, fuel, lubricant, operating condition and deposit formation and harm are much better understood. In the past Du Pont scientists have licked even more difficult problems. Working as a team, they will persist in their effort to provide the motorist with improved engine performance through better fuels.

W. E. Balfour (left), B.S. in M.E.—Maine 1939, tests installation of single-cylinder gasoline engine used in study of factors influencing deposit formation in the combustion chamber.

M. K. Livingston, Ph. D. in Phys. Chem.—Chicago 1941, operates apparatus for measuring porosity and impermeability of combustion chamber deposits taken from test engines of the Du Pont automobile test fleet.

DID YOU KNOW . . . about 80% of Du Pont's sales today consist of products that didn't exist or weren't commercially available 20 years ago.

Old Cannon Likes To Join Celebrations

By Lewis Donohew

The old cannon is lonely now. From its perch on the parade ground in front of the Administration building, it stares sadly out at the world and thinks of the good old days. It thinks of the good old days when it was a hero at Santiago in the Spanish-American War. And it remembers later, after its retirement to the UK campus, all the good times it had after football and basketball games, being filled with powder and belching forth to celebrate victories. There were lots of good times and it had lots of good fun before the new school administration stepped in and put a stop to it all. The constabulars of the old days used to get a big kick out of jamming the old cannon full of fireworks from trash to textbooks and then letting her go whom! in just about any direction. Occasionally they would break a few windows but it was tremendous fun. It especially remembers the time they filled it with scrap iron, pointed its nose toward Scott Street, and let it go with a clatter that scared the residents of the area half to death. It has lots of memories, pleasant and bitter. But none is more bitter than that of the blasted old administration which put an end to the fun and took away almost all of its popularity. Right now, when the Kentuckians have just returned from a glorious football victory, it could be having the time of its life. Why, they used to raise an awful racket if they beat Centre. What would they do now, after beating Oklahoma in the Sugar Bowl and scratching a pair of initials on it, the unofficial champions of the United States? Blame it all. Blame it on having a roaring time. But from now on it is doomed to silence. It generally will not be used. The old soreheads went and filled its barrel with concrete. Yes, the old cannon is lonely now. Today, it feels very fortunate, indeed, if someone will condescend to scratch a pair of initials on it. People, and especially school administration people, are the most inconsiderate things there are.

Qualifications Announced For New Civil Service Exam

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced examinations for positions in all branches of engineering, the Department of Labor, the Department of Defense, and other federal agencies. To qualify in the examination for positions in the federal agencies, applicants must have had responsible experience or education in one or more fields of personal administration. In addition, they must have had experience in making analyses of jobs and job families and in formulating job specifications. Appropriate college education may be substituted for all or part of the experience, depending on the grade of the position. Applicants may also be required to take a written test. Deadline for applications for this exam is Jan. 9.

Qualifications in the examination for highway engineers include college study in civil engineering, and in some cases appropriate civil engineering experience or a combination of these.

Information and applications for all examinations may be obtained from first and second-class regional offices, or from the U.S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D.C.

Not All Spinsters Misinformation Dispelled By Library Science Head

By Mary Bert McKenna

One of 34 accredited library science schools in the United States, the UK department has succeeded in dispelling the public's traditional view of spinsterhood domination in the library profession. Attie obscures, in most of the schools, however, has served to make many students unaware of the department.

During freshman tours, a passing remark as to its location, which is the third floor of the Margaret I. King Library, all too often serves to identify the UK Department of Library Science. Mr. Leslie I. Poste, department head, says that, unfortunately, this casual mention, an additional staircase, and the popular fallacy of spinsterhood has kept many students from learning about one of the most wide open fields for academic study and job placement.

THERE IS A SERIOUS shortage of professional librarians. It has been estimated that nearly 18,000 will be needed in the next five years. The UK department can boast of 100 per cent job placement, but applicants for a professional degree are well screened by the department. Mr. Poste feels that alert young men and women with well rounded interests, a democratic spirit, resourcefulness, and a sincere liking for people and books will be truly happy in library work.

As for that tradition of spinsterhood domination of the library field, Mr. Poste feels that this stereotype is not justified. The origin of this conception, he says, can be attributed to three things:

1. MANY YEARS AGO the average librarian usually was just such a prudish old maid. She was interested in neither books or people. She was interested only in order. She dwelt only on rules. She wanted things where they belonged, and she put people there as often as books.

2. THE LIBRARIAN WAS formerly regarded as a caretaker. She was not a scholar; she only opened the library for a few hours each day and closed it. Generally it was part-time work, therefore, it did not attract men. It did attract old maid aunts, who wanted "a little something to do," a domain of their own, and the respect of the community.

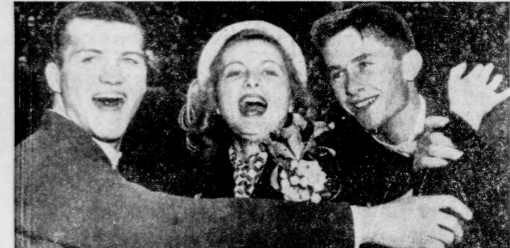

3. ECONOMIC RETURNS for the work were poor decades ago. As a result, it did not attract the very capable and it did not attract men, who usually are the wage earners of the family. In Europe, the majority of librarians are men; in America, ninety percent are women.

Oak Ridge Institute Offers Predoctoral Fellowship

The Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies is offering approximately 250 predoctoral fellowships in the physical and biological sciences through the 1951-52 fiscal year. The Institute is administering the program for the Atomic Energy Commission. These fellowships provide a basic stipend of $1600, with an additional $500 if married and $250 per child. Travel to the place of study will be paid for as well as the tuition. Applications will be for one year beginning Sept. 1, 1951. Students with one year of graduate study at the time of entering the fellowship are eligible for the fellowships in the physical sciences. Candidates for the fellowship must "plan research so related to atomic energy as to justify a presumption that upon completion of his studies, he will be especially suited for employment by the AEC or one of its contractors."

In addition to the predoctoral fellowships, the Institute offers 75 AEC postdoctoral fellowships in the physical, medical, and biological sciences and agriculture. Also awarded will be 40 radiological physics fellowships for study at Vanderbilt University and the University of Rochester, with field training at a national laboratory of the AEC. Additional information may be obtained from the Biology Department or by writing the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies at Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

The first prize is a Kodak Medalist camera and the second prize winner will receive a Century Graphic camera with a roll film adapter. In addition, there are twelve prizes of 6 rolls of DuPont Ansco Color Film No. 120, and twelve prizes of one dozen sheets of 11 by 14 Portraze Photographic Paper.

The contest rules state that all entries must be mailed to the Office of the Chief Signal Officer, The Pentagon, Washington 25, D. C. ATTN: SIGINT-5, not later than March 31, 1951. There is no limitation on the subject matter and pictures made at any time during the 1950 calendar year may be entered. A contestant must be a Signal Corps ROTC Cadet and no contestant may submit more than six entries or receive more than one prize. An entry consists of the original negative and one 8 by 10 black and white print. Each entry must have caption material with it describing the subject briefly and giving the name, address and ROTC affiliation of the photographer, the date the picture was taken, the type of film used and the stop opening and shutter speed if it is known.

Pool Sharks Get Chance

A UK pool tournament—the first step toward the national pool championship for college students—starts next Wednesday, January 11, in the Student Union Building. The five highest scorers, with three other high scorers as alternates, will be eligible to play in the sectional pool tournament to be held here March 14. The winner of the sectional meet will go to the nationals to be held some time in April.

in libraries, though the latter usually occupied administrative positions. Thirty women now are enrolled in library science here, and ten women are taking extension courses at Louisville. Seven men are now working for a degree in the department, the largest number of men ever enrolled in the department. A course unique to UK, Library Science 23, is offered to acquaint students with use of the library. Over 100 students are now enrolled in the one credit hour course. Mr. Poste partly attributes the present demand for professional librarians to the high mortality rate by marriage. Higher salaries, increased appreciation of the scope of library work, and the capable men and women graduated from the library science schools have helped to attract the more desirable men and women to the profession.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 10...THE PANDA

The sudden rash of quick-trick cigarette tests may have caused panda-monium on the campus — but our scholarly friend was unperturbed. He pondered the facts of the case and decided that one-puff or one-sniff tests... single inhale and exhale comparisons are hardly conclusive. Proof of cigarette mildness doesn't come that fast! And that's exactly why we suggest... The sensible test — the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke — on a pack after pack, day after day basis. No snap judgments needed. After you've enjoyed Camels — and only Camels — for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), we believe you'll know why... More People Smoke Camels than any other cigarette!
