

jhs

ABBAY OF GETHSEMANI
TRAPPIST, KENTUCKY

Saturday.

85

Dear Carolyn:

As I forgot to tell you the names of the two books on Rilke, I am sending this along right away. It was so good to have you and Victor here today and it was certainly as fine a visit as there has ever been. I enjoyed it so much. It was good to see you both looking so well.

The Rilke books I need are:

~~830.92~~
~~R457h~~

^{W. m. 1894}
W. Rose and G.C. Houston (eds) R.M. Rilke, Aspects of his mind and Poetry, 1938

~~831~~
~~R 4572b~~

H.M. Belmore, Rilke's Craftsmanship, Oxford, 1954

082 ^{hand}
In 24 h
#40

Also an idea occurred to me, for printing. Instead of my trying to do a few more versions from Chuang Tzu, I thought I might send you ten or fifteen pages from a notebook with material about the woods and the solitude here. What do you think?

The lines from Goethe:

~~838~~
~~R 4572ma~~

The True was found already long ago
It bound the noble spirits into one
Held to the ancient Truth
Do not let go!

~~831~~
~~R4572p~~

It really does say everything, doesn't it?
I do not know if Victor wanted that bill back, so I am enclosing it.

~~830.92~~
~~R457saP~~

Again, thanks for coming. When you send the Rilke Victor could also join to them the books here mentioned. I will be glad to have them.

~~838.1~~
~~sh27~~

With all blessings to you both,
Cordially in Christ,

Tom.

830.92 ^{out}
R457su

831. ^{out}
R457zw

~~838~~
~~R457yo~~