Cadets Accepted To Stay Together During Training

A unit known as the Navy Flying Colonels-Kentucky's Own, made up of Kentucky men, will start training in December, according to Lieut. Commander K. C. Huffman, member of the navy aviation cadet board which is on the campus today interviewing men interested in being selected for flight training in the United States naval reserve.

Lieutenant Commander Huffman said that the Kentucky group would be kept together as a unit until the very final training. The group will comprise 75 men.

Men enrolled for the present term who are interested in joining the Navy Flying Colonels are urged to take steps at once so that they may take their exams early and get credit for the term's work. The navy does not want to take men out of school, Huffman pointed out. "When a man is forced out of school for financial reasons or by the draft, the Navy will consider him. Undergraduates are taken, but the Navy would prefer them to stay in school," Huffman stated.

After a man has enlisted in the naval reserve, he is no longer subject to conscription. The Navy will try to assign him to a flight class which will not interfere with his present work, Huffman said. Students will be allowed to finish at least one college term and, in some cases, a whole year, he explained.

Men accepted by the aviation cadet selection board will be assigned to the naval reserve with the rank of seaman second class.

Preliminary training will be given at the St. Louis municipal airport where a new plant covering 14 acres is located.

After completion of the preliminary training, men are sent to one of the advanced bases where they become aviation cadets. An aviation cadet is a provisional officer with the privileges of an officer, Huffman explained.

EUBANK SUIT IS NOT FILED WITH U. S. COURT Negro's Attorney Asks Dismissal Without Prejudice

Federal court officials said yesterday that the suit of Charles Eubank, withdrawn from the Fayette state circuit court Saturday, had not been filed with the federal district court office here.

Eubank, a 17-year-old Negro youth, filed suit in the state circuit court here in September, seeking to compel University officials to issue him a permit of registration. He wished to enter the engineering college.

Saturday, during the circuit court's motion hearings, Eubank's attorney asked that the suit be dismissed without prejudice to future action and announced he would probably file a similar suit in federal court.

"It is a federal question involved, anyway," the attorney said. In the original suit it was claimed that Eubank was being denied rights guaranteed him under the federal constitution's fourteenth amendment.

The attorney said that his pleadings would follow those of the Gaines case, in which the Supreme court ruled that a Negro of Missouri should admit a university student.

In answer to Eubank's suit, the University had filed motions to quash the proceedings. These motions were on Saturday's circuit court docket.

STATE LAW
Eubank was refused admission to the University because of a state law forbidding the education of white and colored students in the same school.

The Kappa Sigis hit the winning circle for the first time this season, as they trimmed the Gamma Two Alpha team by the margin of one touchdown in a game of wile games.

The slow starting Sigma Nus continued to improve as they stopped a five point Triangle team with a pair of touchdowns in a 12-9 win.

Tennis singles and doubles in the regular tournament moved into the third round with 16 contestants remaining in the singles and 16 teams still competing in the doubles.

BOEHLER, ALLEN, PORTWOOD HURT IN VANDY TILT Sophomore End Is Resting Well At Good Samaritan

The wildcats had more than their pride injured in Saturday's fracas with Vanderbilt.

Don Boehler, sophomore end from Lorain, Ohio, was the most seriously hurt of the Kentucky players. He was taken to the Good Samaritan hospital just before the start of the second half of the game with what Dr. Jack Haffer, team physician, termed a concussion of the brain and a possible fracture of the skull.

Hospital attendants today stated that Boehler's condition was fair and that he was resting well. Coach Ab Kirwan talked to the players Saturday night and said that he remembers nothing of how or on what particular play he was hurt.

The condition of Bill Portwood, who was injured, also suffered a broken nose early in the game, was described as good today. Although he was taken out at the time he was injured, Portwood was able to play part of the second half, wearing a nose guard.

Was appointed Dean of the

Tri Delta, Delta, SAE Are Given Honorable Mention

A hospital was displayed by the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, with Vanderbilt players as the patients. Behind the beds was a large chart headed "Dr. Kirwan's Report" on which were posted comments on the condition of each player. A loud-

The Story Of A Prof And The Retort Flippant

CONFUSCHIA SAY By JOSEPHINE BULL

How to get Professor Knight pronounced 'prof'...

Have you heard the reply classic his bright young daughter, Dorothy...

Dorothy, says Professor Knight, 'I have been reading an interesting book called "The Omniscient Amalath"...

Freshman Cap Tradition Flops

To The Editor of The Kernel: I think the freshman cap tradition has one of the tops...

I thought the tradition was supposed to be upheld by the sophomores. I realize that hazing is not encouraged on this campus...

What do you think is the trouble? Don't or think something should be done either carry through the tradition or drop it altogether?

With hopes of a better freshman cap ceremony next year. A Disillusioned Freshman

Going no place in particular and meaning nothing in particular we scrape up the left-overs...

Even Clem McCarthy couldn't have talked fast enough to give the complete picture of the thing...

We went early, at 9:30, and the best of saying that hit us in the face would have knocked over a Pulaski county mule...

One FOOT IN THE AIR: The first thing encountered was the dismembered foot of a mad puppet flying through the air...

It was something to remember and have night-mares about. His face was all awry and a musician's crop of hair flew in waves around him...

Joe Fontana, A & S sophomore: "I'd invest the $100 in an inter-spring mattress for the coffin."

Betty Broadieus, Agriculture freshman: "I'd go to an amusement park with all my friends and ride and eat."

Joe Fetherghill, Engineering sophomore: "I'd fall dead from shock if I saw $100 all at once."

One Contest Which Does Not Offer As Prize Hedy Lamarr Or $50,000

The New Republic, one of our most distinguished magazines of national criticism informs us that one of its writers would like to obtain a special literary supplement...

This somewhat resembles their essay contest of last spring in which first prize was a job to last through the summer, paying $25 a week to any college undergraduate...

This labor which was rewarded with labor is something to consider when most any afternoon you can pull up a chair to your radio, tune in on any of the current soap sessions and construct in twenty-five words or less a few simple sentences that will be rewarded with a number of sundry articles ranging from Hedy Lamarr to $50,000.

Now this arrogant magazine proposes that all serious-minded writers who have the pre-requisite of having been born in the year 1911 submit a sample of their work which, if they find it worthy, will find a niche in their literary wall. Outside of this there is no other reward extended.

Probably this and rising prices is the reason that Mr. Leon Taub, the scalp authority asserts: "Today the percentage of thin-haired and bald-headed men in journalism throughout the country is too high to be considered lightly."

But in spite of the scanty bounties to be reaped in the field of intellectual literature you might send some of your best work to this magazine before November 15, if you feel that you will be satisfied with the reward of literary attention.

One of the French communists recently commented on die by the high Nazi courts was asked after sentence was passed if there was anything else he had to say. He said: "Yes, one more thing. I would like to become a Nazi."

An army officer was assigned to write a descriptive brief on given ordnance. He probably was given this assignment because he had established quite a name for himself as an expert on light ordnance.

Everyone has a right to his opinions in a democracy since this is, generally speaking, the essence of democratic society may live in comparative safety the principle of free speech must be limited by criminal law.

No one is free to spread libel or advocate specific acts of rank injustice. In order to protect the life of democracy itself these limitations should be extended enough to incorporate the most dangerous ideologies.

It is not the ideas themselves and their mere expression that is so dangerous but it is the fact that the men who originate and express them endeavor to force their theories upon the masses as inviolable scriptural facts.

We believe that this is especially applicable to the isolationists and their fellow sufferers, the America First members. These eminent peace-at-any-prices propound that the American public knows nothing at all about the nation's position in the current international scene and they insist that the nation is being hoodwinked into war.

We do not believe in the building-block of this nation's political structure which, they insist, is the moral guiltability of the people. If there is any wrongdoing being done we are inclined to believe that their emminence have had the blinds slipped over their own eyes by some extremely clever and subtle totalitarian propaganda.

We decline to accept this statement as the indisputable truth and are little surprised at the outcome.

Inevitable Result Of A Loud Flog

That squashing sound coming from Noll field last Friday night was the sound of a 28-year-old tradition making a 48 carat flog.

For, as the letter from A Disillusioned Freshman, printed elsewhere on this page, points out, the freshman cap burning ceremony which has always followed the pep rally before Homecoming, turned out just three caps short of being a complete failure.

Now The Kernel is not one for moaning over "school spirit" in the musical comedy sense, because we think there are more ways of showing it than in waving pennants and having your head shaved, but neither does The Kernel want to advocate the tossing overboard of about the last of UK's few traditions without heed.

But this freshman cap business is a farce at present. The ways things have gone this fall, it has been merely a sham carrying on through the impetus of many years of custom. It has been a hollow mockery.

The only way the wearing of freshman caps can be enforced is through student opinion, and if this peters out, the only thing to do is to quit the custom.

It appears then, that the Student Government Association, as the expression of student opinion, should decide definitely whether to maintain this custom or to bury it officially. This half-dead state it is in now shouldn't go on.

It may be that before long the only tradition left on the campus will be the Patterson stunts and ever-threatening Last Stand.

Homecoming: A Definition

We heard a good definition of Homecoming last Saturday, and from the looks of Lexington over the weekend, it was a true one.

Went the definition: Homecoming is the time when all the old graduates come back and get drunk and blame it on the undergraduates, and the undergrads get drunk and blame it on the old grads.

Consoling Thought

After the game Saturday afternoon, a hand member had this consoling thought to offer: UK a last broke even on the game. According to the score books, the Wildcats won the first half and the Commodores the second half.

Plug: Bluegrass Ball

On the front page of today's Kernel is an announcement by Bill Penick, Union board president, that if the crowd at the Bluegrass Ball October 25 warrants it, the board will attempt to arrange for a dance set sometime next spring with a big name orchestra like Tommy Dorsey.

It shouldn't be necessary to say much more.

Abolition Of Football Termed 'Relief' By Chicago's President Hutchins

ON THE COLLEGE FRONT By JIMMY HURT

The University of Chicago is getting very well without football sports President Hutchins who has an important factor in the abolishing of the game from the university activities.

The greatest fears when the game was abandoned were that the school's enrollment would suffer and that alumni interest would die. Neither has come to pass.

Major William C. McFarland, one of the heroes of the charge in San Juan Hill in the Spanish-American war and at one time commandant at the University of Kentucky, died early in September in New York. He was buried with military honors at West Point.

College Education Valued At $72,000 In Cold Cash

What's the good of college? How much is a college education worth in dollars, dimes and cents? Does an education add a person to become a "success"?

Each year spent in college is worth $18,000, according to Frank H. Bowles of Columbia University. By the time a college graduate is sixty years old, he has earned on the average, $72,000 more than a high school graduate. "This means," says Bowles, "that each year of the four college years is worth $18,000."

There are other ways of measuring the value of a college education. Inclusion in Who's Who in America is sometimes used to measure "success." According to one survey, the person who does not attend college has less than one chance in 12,000 of getting into Who's Who, while the college grad has one chance in 80.

College education, of course, cannot be given all the credit. College students probably average higher in mental ability than non-college men. Then, too, college students may have better opportunities than others—they may have more "pull."

Perhaps "pull" has been somewhat overestimated in achieving success in business—especially in the long run. A survey, made by Walter S. Gifford, showed that students who did best in college studies made more money than students who stood lower scholastically.

This survey brought out that for the first five years after graduation there was little difference in the income made by college graduates but as the years rolled by the "good students" earned increasingly more than the others. Thirty years after graduation, the men who were scholastically in the top third were earning 50 percent more than the men in the bottom third. And the men in the top tenth averaged 100 percent more earnings than the men in the lower third.

For Want Of A Brick, The Chance Was Lost

A friend of ours almost threw a brick through the rear window of an automobile the other noon, and we can't say that we blame him.

With a crowd of other students who was crossing the road from the Law building just where it enters the main circle, on his way to the Union building for lunch, suddenly like the Chattanooga choo-choo hell-bent for Tennessee, an automobile, driven by a well-known student, came roaring down the road.

The driver never slowed up as he neared the group crossing the street, but honked his horn and kept coming.

Of course, the students scattered in time, and the car breezed on around the corner.

We said the friend almost threw a brick. Unfortunately, there was none handy.

It would be a good idea if the Department of Maintenance and Operations would leave a few close to the corner for that purpose in the future.

Kent State University has adapted itself to take care of defense workers who would otherwise be in school. It is offering, for the first time, night classes on a large scale.

Desire for escape from present-day world crises has created a boom in two contrasting fields. Since the beginning of the war, church attendance and the patronage at bars and cafes has increased measurably. A Marshall Harbison of Louisiana University Extension service reported.

Marshall predicted a rise in fiction story reading in this country as an added manifestation of the people's desire to "get away from it all."

Vanderbilt defeated the Wildcats 45 to 6—the "true collegians" of the University who had planned to give the rest of the school a surprise party for their hoped-for joy with a sure-enough jubilee celebration Saturday night had to be satisfied with drowning their sorrows.

Razzle-dazzle People who read the sports pages know what razzle-dazzle means. It stands for football brilliance. The team that has it is flashy with unexpected passes and trick plays. A razzle-dazzle team gives the spectators plenty to yell about. Razzle-dazzle is one of the spiciest ingredients of good football. It packs them in, and the customers go home satisfied. Now, you might think such a satisfactory football ingredient would be a pretty nice thing to pass around to business in general. To merchants, for example. But you'll suddenly realize that razzle-dazzle is the last thing you want to find in a merchant you are dealing with! Brilliant trickery is fine and dandy on the football field. But it's a different story in the marketplace. You want to dodge a razzle-dazzle merchant . . . or manufacturer . . . as you would the plague. And, luckily, it's not hard to do. Patronize those merchants and manufacturers who advertise. They're calling all their plays out in the open . . . for everybody to see. Merchants who advertise are bound to keep faith with the public . . . if they intend to remain in business.

GAME STATISTICS

Table with 2 columns: Statistic and Value. Includes First downs, Yards gained, Passes attempted, etc.

It looks as if the Wildcats will have their hands full next Saturday when they meet Xavier. One big item will be Chet Murray, slippery junior back, who scored two touchdowns for the Musketeers in Sunday's win over John Carroll.

KERNEL SPORTS

The Sporting Way

BY JOHNNY CARRICO

Last week (gulp) we were foolish enough to think that (ulp) Kentucky was going to beat Vanderbilt. In fact, we became so enamored with (ugh) the idea, that we were rash enough to air our feelings in the presence of proponents of Vanderbilt. The outcome of this sad affair was that I threatened to eat the old chapau (odds bodkins, this felt is difficult to masticate) if the Wildcats didn't torpedo the Commodores.

We were certain that Kentucky sported a superior team, and after the first half was over, thoughts of consuming the fedora were happily far away. Mullins, Allen & Co., were going to town and the Vandymen (tough leather, this haberdash) looked as if they'd come to Lexington just for the ride—and were being taken for it.

What Goes On Here--

And then bitter woe! That second half will always remain along with our disgusting memories of draft classification and our first collegiate hanover. Doing a veritable Jekyll and Hyde, Kentucky forsook his good nature to don the bad transformation was stunning; from a first-class ball club (these damn feathers are a nuisance; never looking good anyway), they turned into what closely resembled some of the intramural touch-football teams on opening day.

Wildcats Break Homecoming Hearts By Losing To Commodores, 39-15, After Leading Throughout First Half

Mullins, Allen Lead Wildcats To Only Tallies

BY JOHNNY CARRICO
Kernel Sports Editor

The loud noise you heard about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon that drowned out the homecoming festivities was the sound of Albert Dennis Krav's heart breaking as he watched "dem bums" blow a halftime lead of 13-0 and bow miserably to Vanderbilt 39-15 for their first 1941 setback.

After the brilliant play of Noah Mullins and Ernie Allen had made the Wildcats look like a conference winner in the first half, Kentucky was completely routed as the Commodores tallied five touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters.

The Wildcats scored two points in the first seven minutes when Art Rebrowich intercepted Noah Mullins' pass intended for Bill Portwood, and fell behind his own goal line. Kentucky had started a drive from the Vandy 30 where Norman Beck had snatched a Commodore fumble.

Kentucky's Future Foes Rebound After Defeats

Tech Loses, 20-0, To Notre Dame; Southwestern Idles

All except one of the Wildcats' future foes matched Kentucky's rebound from a poor showing the week before. Georgia Tech was the only team which failed to keep its step, falling before Notre Dame, 20-0. However, unlike the Wildcats' rebound which lasted during only one half, Xavier, West Virginia, Alabama and Tennessee turned in impressive victories. Southwestern did not play.

XAVIER-25. John Carroll-0. WEST VIRGINIA-20. W. VIRGINIA-20. ALABAMA-61. HOWARD-0. GEORGIA TECH-0. Notre Dame-20.

TENNESSEE-26. DAYTON-0. Xavier, Kentucky's Saturday opponent, kept its record unblemished at the expense of hitherto unbeaten and unscared on John Carroll University of Cleveland, 23-0. The Musketeers were led by Chet Murray, who scored two of his team's four touchdowns.

Sports Whirl

By WINDY
If Georgia Tech's football wizardry ever goes on the blink, the Engineers plan to put the emphasis in football on the foot. Joe Helms, 210 lb. sophomore tackle, has been boasting successful placements from 45-60 yards.

And for those spurious delegates who bood the efforts of Junie Jones who had his first bat afternoon, we recall the Georgia win in Louisville two years ago, the Xavier win of last year, the VANDERBILT game of two years ago, and the brilliant blocking of last year.

THE SECOND HALF

The second half was a nightmare. Bushmaier started a drive from his own 34 and, alternating with Jenkins and Martin marched to the Kentucky 4 from which Jenkins mashed over. Powell kicked the extra point.

Kentucky took the kickoff and Mullins gained six yards. Then Charley Bill Walker passed over the heads of the backs and Richter recovered for Vandy on the Wildcat 11. A penalty and a drive by Bernie Rohling put the ball across. Clyde Johnson blocked the kick for extra point.

With the Wildcats completely demoralized, the Commodores went to town in the fourth quarter. A continuation of signals resulted in another break for Vanderbilt. The Commodores taking the ball on the 5. After two attempts had failed, Rebrowich skirted right end and score and Jenkins kicked the extra point.

A blocked kick and a forward pass from Moore to Jenkins gave Vandy another counter. Jenkins kicking the point. The Commodores ended their scoring streak with a march from the Kentucky 45, the marker being made on a pass from Burns to McDavid. Powell found the point.

The final minutes found the Wildcats starting a belated aerial drive which bogged down in Vandy territory as the game ended.

The contest was very rough, with several players receiving serious injuries. Don Zoehler, sophomore end, was taken to the Good Samaritan hospital with a brain concussion and possible skull fracture. Rebrowich received a broken nose and Mac Fleehie, Vandy tackle, suffered a possible broken arm.

Jenkins and Bushmaier were the big show for Vanderbilt, with defensive honors going to Walton and Tex Robertson. Some fine running and passing was displayed in the person of J. P. Moore, talented Vandy sophomore.

Ross Elected

Dr. C. C. Ross was elected faculty advisor of the State Baptist Student convention held at the First Baptist church in Hopkinsville, Sunday.

West Virginia, after Gov. M. M. Neely's plea that they save the state the "humiliation" of losing scored in three of four quarters to defeat West Virginia Wesleyan, 39-0.

Georgia Tech was completely outclassed and outplayed by Notre Dame as the Irish racked up a three-touchdown victory. Johnny Bosch and Davey Edridge, Tech's best runners, were completely bottled up by the fast-charging Notre Dame line.

Alabama, which has scored 149 points in two tries, set a record of four consecutive victories, in which they have scored 149 points to 20 for their opponents.

Alabama, which has scored 149 points to 20 for their opponents. However, Jimmy Nelson, 1940 all-conference halfback, started the rout when he returned the kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown to open the second half. From then on the Red

Allen and Mullins were the Kentucky offensive threats, both unreeling long runs that set up scores. Mullins, Walker, and Portwood were the Kentucky defensive stars. Walker and Mullins continually stopped Vandy offensive thrusts.
