

Not Really A Debate

Dr. Blyton Criticizes Nixon-Kennedy Debate

By KERRY POWELL
Kernel Staff Writer

"Lincoln and Douglas needn't worry."

This is the reaction of Dr. Gifford Blyton, UK debate coach and professor of speech, to the series of nationally televised debates between Presidential nominees John F. Kennedy and Richard Nixon.

Dr. Blyton, whose debate teams at the University have compiled an impressive record in the past decade, gave his views of the "Great Debates" after he had listened to the third of the series Thursday night.

"The Columbia Broadcasting System is taking great liberty with the term debate," said Dr. Blyton. "In the traditional sense they aren't debates at all. They are a type of forum and a very limited one at that, because the questions are asked by a select group of reporters and not by the candidates themselves.

"The candidates speak in generalities," complained the professor, "so that people with diverse interests in Alabama and South Dakota will not be offended in any way.

"Kennedy says 'I believe in a strong America.' How could you be any safer than that? Everybody believes in a strong America. Then Nixon comes along and says, 'I believe in a strong America too.'

"Furthermore," continued the debate coach, "the candidates do not clarify the issues." He recalled former President Harry S. Truman's recent foray into Texas where the one-time chief executive opined that any Texan who plans to vote Republican "ought to go to hell."

During one of the debates a reporter asked Kennedy if he approved of Truman's statement. Dr. Blyton said that "Kennedy mumbled something about expressing his opinions in a different way from Truman, thereby evading the issue completely. You can't get away with that in a regular debate," the professor remarked.

"In a regular debate this evasion of the issue would be prevented by a relatively unlimited time for rebuttal and a judge who would subtract points from your total score for dodging the issue."

Dr. Blyton was not entirely critical of the debates. He said that they are "very interesting and quite worthy of public observation."

To improve the debates, however, Dr. Blyton would like to see the candidates make more lengthy statements and rebuttals. He would also limit the subject under discussion to a narrower area and abandon the "grab-bag" technique of discussion employed in the last debate.

Who's winning? The debate coach answered "Nixon was a college debater, and that shows up. On the basis of intelligence and perception, Nixon is winning. On the basis of emotional appeal, perhaps Kennedy is the leader.

"You might say," he added, "that Nixon is the Thinking Man's debater."

Classes To Be Televised From 23,000 Feet High

In December an airplane flying 23,000 feet over Montpelier, Ind., will send test signals over two UHF television channels, thus beginning the Midwest Program on Airborne Television Instruction (MPATI).

Basically, the plan is a simple one. Teachers experienced in television instruction have been hired to record a number of courses on video tape. These tapes will be broadcast regularly from the airplane.

In theory these telecasts will cover an area 150 to 200 miles in radius including parts of six states: Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin, according to Ollie E. Bismeyer Jr., Col-

Mr. Bismeyer said, "Inasmuch as Kentucky is on the fringe area, and it is not known how far the telecast will carry, a 'wait and see' attitude must be adopted, particularly in the lower section of the state.

"Although we're not sure we can receive the signal, Kentucky is preparing and going ahead with committees, so we may be prepared if the signal can be received," Mr. Bismeyer continued.

Headquarters for MPATI is at Purdue University. The six states are divided into 18 Area Resource Institutions.

To expedite liaison and to assist school systems and individual administrators and teachers, each Area Resource Institute has appointed a regular faculty member on a half-time basis.

The faculty coordinators will work exclusively in the field for the two-year experiment which ends July 1, 1962.

"In addition to the coordinators, it is recognized that community representation and participation in the execution and management of the project are of key importance to its success," Mr. Bismeyer added.

"In order to accomplish this, area committees have been appointed in each of the several resource institution districts."

10,157 Students Register

Enrollment Figures Set All-Time Record

By ED VAN HOOK

Kernel Staff Writer

Enrollment figures for the fall semester show a slight increase over last year, setting another all-time record.

Dr. Charles F. Elton, dean of admissions and registrar, announced yesterday that 10,157 students have registered.

He said there will be a slight increase in this figure when the final machine tally is made. "For example," he added, "there were 75 students found last week taking classes who had not yet paid their fees."

The enrollment figures include 7,425 on-campus students, 1,630 enrolled at the two-year centers, 428 in the evening programs, and 674 enrolled in extension courses. Dr. Elton said that these figures include all credit students and do not include those students auditing courses or taking courses by correspondence.

This semester's figures top those of last year when there was a record enrollment of 10,133 students and mark the eighth straight year that the University's enrollment has increased.

College enrollments as released by the Registrar's Office include 537 students in the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, 2,300 in Arts and Sciences, 797 in Commerce, 945 in Education, and 1,356 in Engineering.

There are 2,099 freshmen enrolled at UK this semester. One hundred-seventy are enrolled in the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, 945 in Arts and Sciences, 255 in Commerce, 258 in Education, and 471 in Engineering.

Of the 1,293 sophomores, 136 students are enrolled in Agriculture and Home Economics, 547 in Arts and Sciences, 144 in Commerce, 184 in Education, and 282 in Engineering. Last year the sophomore class had a total enrollment of 1,445.

Of 1,261 juniors, 125 are in Agriculture and Home Economics, 423 in Arts and Sciences, 190 in Commerce, 213 in Education, and 310 in Engineering. There was an

Committee Releases Rules For Homecoming Displays

Plans for homecoming were completed this week with a letter sent to presidents of all campus organizations outlining the rules for displays and Homecoming Queen nominations.

The letter, sent by Tom Harrington, president of the Homecoming Steering Committee, explained in detail the rules for the house, displays competition and the nomination of the Homecoming Queen.

In order to avoid any duplication of house displays, the committee is requiring all participating organizations to submit a complete sketch of their display.

In case of duplication the organization submitting the first sketch will have preference. The group that duplicated the sketch shall have additional time to hand in a new idea.

The letter continues by saying, "failure to submit a sketch shall disqualify an organization's display from competition."

Any organization that receives professional help or advice shall be immediately disqualified.

Candidates for the homecoming queen must be sophomore, junior or senior, single, and have a 2.0 academic standing the previous semester. The queen will be elected by popular vote by the students.

Nixon Rejects 5th Debate; U.N. Backs Peace Plan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17 (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon, in effect, today rejected the idea of having a fifth TV-radio debate with Sen. John F. Kennedy just before election time. But he offered a new alternative.

Nixon's headquarters suggested that the fifth debate be held next Friday immediately after the fourth debate already scheduled that night. But instead of answering questions from newsmen, as in the first four debates, the presidential candidates would reply to questions telephoned in by listeners.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 17 (AP)—The U.N. General Assembly tonight unanimously approved a resolution urging constructive steps to achieve world peace—but only after bitter words between the Soviet Union and the United States.

The United States and the Soviet Union both supported the resolution.

But just before the vote U.S. Delegate James J. Wadsworth accused the Soviet Union of trying to use the resolution sponsored by 23 nations as a means to fan the flames of international hatred and suspicion.

James Walter Shepherd Jr., law student from Carlisle, presents his argument in the first round of moot court competition in the College of Law Thursday night. The hypothetical litigation involved the National Labor Relations Board versus Blackhart Insurance Co.

Appellate Court To Judge Law School Trial Friday

The Kentucky Court of Appeals will come here Friday to judge the final round of Moot Court competition at 2:30 p.m. in the Lafayette Hall courtroom.

Friday's winning team will represent UK in regional competition at St. Louis in November.

Winners of the Thursday night competition were James G. Osborne, South Fort Mitchell, and Richard M. Davis, Lexington.

Competing in the final round will also be Frank F. Wilson II, Lexington, and Harold M. Wilson Jr., Henderson, winners of Friday's competition.

Registrar's Office Is Still Processing IBM Class Cards

Class cards for most students who added classes after school began, have not been received by instructors.

An announcement from Registrar Charles F. Elton last week said that no student whose class admittance card had not been presented to the instructor should be allowed in the class.

But, due to a lag in processing, Dean Elton said "Cards have been sent out down through 'H' in the alphabet." He expects "to complete the processing this week and send the cards directly to the instructors."

Instructors are not enforcing the regulation barring students from classes without their had class slips.

enrollment of 1,300 in the junior class last fall.

There are 1,177 students in the senior class. Of this number, 133 are registered in Agriculture and Home Economics, 311 in Arts and Sciences, 193 in Commerce, 266 in Education, and 284 in Engineering.

Students enrolled in nursing total 40, however no classification breakdown was given. No figures were given for the number of students enrolled in the College of Pharmacy, Law, and Medicine.

Commenting on the number of students who were accepted by the University this fall but failed to enroll, Dr. Elton said although the figures were not yet available he did not know of any reason why they (the figures) would be more or less this year.

During the past academic year 42 undergraduates assisted in research projects sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

A report prepared by Dr. J. R. Meadow, director of the Undergraduate Research Participation Program, detailed the work of the students in six departments.

The departments of microbiology, physics, chemistry, geology, zoology, and psychology used the students in 17 different projects directed by 21 senior full-time faculty members.

The Religious Question

It is unfortunate at this critical time in the history of the United States and the whole world that some choose to make the campaign for the office of president of the United States one fought on the basis of religious affiliation and beliefs.

The anti-Kennedy movement has attracted such national religious figures as Norman Vincent Peale, who presided over a meeting of the National Conference of Citizens for Religious Freedom (and against John F. Kennedy), and Dr. Ramsey Pollard, president of the Southern Baptists. While Dr. Peale later said he was not aware of the conference's purpose when he agreed to preside over its first session, the incident nevertheless points out the strength and organization of the stop-Kennedy forces.

Dr. Peale and other clear-thinking Protestant leaders have repudiated religion as a campaign issue, but many of the radical Protestant groups are still actively beating the drum for a Protestant president and feeding the fires of religious bigotry.

Just how feverishly these groups are working to secure Sen. Kennedy's defeat may be illustrated by the activities of a local minister who has violently denounced Kennedy from his pulpit and then had his harangues printed and distributed about the city. Excerpts from such texts illustrate the febrile attempts to discredit Kennedy by those who base their appeals upon the lowest levels of emotionalism and fear.

One of these tracts states that "there are many reasons I could give why I am afraid of a Catholic president . . ." then gives the following reasons for supporting Richard Nixon:

"What must be my thoughts about Sen. Kennedy who believes if he came into my church . . . and heard me preach the word of God he would commit a sin and be compelled to confess to his priest to be forgiven . . .

"Sen. Kennedy is forbidden to read any . . . Protestant books. In the event he was elected president . . . he would not be allowed to examine all the evidence before signing or vetoing bills. He could read ONLY the evidence that was favorable to the Catholic Church.

"Sen. Kennedy is a good Catholic; therefore bows in subjection to the Pope. If he should be elected president . . . would he not kneel and kiss the papal ring?

"That kiss is not a lover's kiss, neither is it the kiss of a mother for her baby—but it is the kiss of subjection."

Americans must not be influenced by such tripe. It is the duty of every one of us to combat such bigoted propaganda. The most important office of the free world is at stake and, as both candidates have repeatedly pointed out, the United States stands at a crossroads and the decision that will be made Nov. 8 is one of the most important any people have ever had to make.

This decision must be reached by a populace well informed of the major issues involved, not one whose minds have been poisoned by religious bias and prejudice.

Kernel Draws Comment From Readers

A Fine Job

To The Editor:

So often we fail to let others know when a fine job has been done. I know that I am guilty of this shortcoming on many occasions but I do want you to know that it is my feeling that the Kentucky Kernel has been of the highest quality produced by any staff in my memory. The coverage which you have given to the major events on the campus has been excellent and the editorials have been well chosen and, while sometimes critical, most constructive.

Congratulations to you and your staff on the fine start which you have made this year!

A Dissenting Voice

To The Editor:

Surely the faculty and students of a school the size of the University of Kentucky are entitled to a better school paper than the Kentucky Kernel. Last year's paper was better; two years ago was tops.

What is the matter? Papers lay unclaimed in the hallways. Students do not pick them up because there is nothing in them of interest. Here are several suggestions:

1. The paper is running too many stale AP dispatches. Who wants to read a dispatch that he read in the newspapers a day or two before? It may well be doubted also whether a school paper should contain such a large proportion of such "filler."

2. This year's policy of demanding that letters to the editor be signed has just about eliminated such letters, except for political bile. Readers enjoy such letters, and they stir up much interest. Courier-Journal "letters" are innocuous, Lexington papers have interesting letters—unsigned. The paper should require that all letters be signed but the name need not be printed. One often wishes to say something but does not care to sign his name. It is not a matter of courage but of policy. Last year the writer wrote a letter to the Lexington Leader criticizing the number of "vacations" at the University, saying that it may be doubted that the ordinary faculty member or student spends more than eight months in the classroom, even if he goes to summer school. He saw no value in stirring up talk by signing his name.

3. The social page is an irritating

"Huh? Sure I'm 21."

Banning Dangerous Drivers

A UPI dispatch from Washington says the Bureau of Public Roads has been handed the assignment of setting up a national register of dangerous drivers. The underlying reason is that a listing of drivers who have had their licenses revoked for drunken driving and other grave misconduct will enable the state to identify such offenders and deny them permission to drive.

As matters stand, it is difficult if not impossible to know whether the person who applies for a license has a bad record if he or she has not been licensed in the state in question.

Setting up a national register of bad drivers is not going to be an easy task or one quickly accomplished.

There are about a million license revocations a year on the average and 250,000 of them fall into the so-called dangerous driver classification that includes the drunken driver and the driver convicted of a traffic violation that costs a life. By the end of the year there will be some 92 million drivers' licenses in force.

The very size of the problem, however, is the best reason for going ahead with it. If the motorist tempted to drive after drinking or to take reckless chances knows he may be banned for years or for life all over the country, it may deter him. Here's hoping at any rate.

Club Notices

To The Editor:

I want to bring to your attention some observations and suggestions about the Kernel. Most of these grew out of my experience last year as secretary of a campus club.

We were a special interest honorary but we felt that there were people on campus who would be interested in our program if they knew of them. Also, we were finding it difficult to contact all our members directly. Therefore we decided to try placing announcements in the Kernel. The results were not what we had hoped; about half of the notices never appeared and those that did always came out on the day of the meeting even when we asked for another date. This meant that even when a notice appeared it came too late except to remind those who already knew about it.

This situation is not too unusual on campus. There is actually not a way for groups to satisfactorily announce such things as meetings and programs. Direct mailings and announcements at meetings inform only those who have already shown interest. Posters are everywhere on campus but half of them are out of date and the rest are often ignored—especially on rainy or snowy days. The only posters that do a good job are those that are in unusual places, are of giant size, or have remarkable design.

As for the Kernel, announcements are scattered among the ads, come too late to be useful, or just don't get in. I suggest that the Kernel set aside a regular section solely for such notices where a notice could be run for two days before and the day of an event. With this the Kernel could encourage the use of the paper by setting rules for submitting notices and informing all campus groups of this service and how to use it. If the Kernel would do this fairly simple service it would find plenty of student support and greatly improve the University community.

Grad Students Assist By Teaching Classes

By BILL RIFENBURGH

A little-known but major teaching aid at the University is the graduate assistant program.

This is a system wherein a group of graduate students help a professor teach a large class. It is exemplified by the English Department's system.

In one section of freshman English, there are 150 students. The section meets two days a week to hear a lecture by a professor.

On the third day the section is divided into six subsections of 25 students each. The subsections are taught by six graduate students in individual class rooms.

A graduate instructor is usually a part-time student who by teaching works his way through Graduate School. The graduate instructor usually carries about four hours of work.

He often teaches two sections of freshman English, and attends two credit hours of graduate classes. In addition to his regular duties, the graduate student is required to attend a noncredit course in the Service Training Program for University Teachers.

Each graduate assistant has an advisor, who gives advice and helpful hints concerning methods of instruction.

The program is beneficial not only to the University, but to instructors, the graduate assistants, and freshman.

It provides an inexpensive source of qualified teachers under an organized administration.

The graduate assistant is often able to gain invaluable experience and guidance while studying at the University.

Dr. Maurice Hatch, director of freshman English, says, "It is a distinct advantage for a person who has just received his degree to receive aid from a person with a broad educational background. The adviser not only helps the graduate assistant but also intro-

Agents Of 75 Companies To Attend Career Carnival

University students will have an opportunity to talk with representatives of 75 agencies throughout the United States from 1-10 p.m., Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 25-26, at the Career Carnival in Memorial Coliseum.

The carnival evolved from a suggestion by Dr. Frank G. Dickey, president of the university, to aid not only students of our university, but other universities in this area.

Although the Career Carnival was planned primarily for college students, junior and senior high school students who are interested in coming to college are invited to talk with the representatives.

These discussions aid the students to adequately prepare themselves for employment in their chosen field.

The career carnival will have representatives demonstrating products and services from many potential career fields in business, industry, and government.

Dr. S. C. Hite, head of the Department of Chemical Engineering and chairman of the University committee in charge of the carnival is encouraging all students to attend.

A president's tea for exhibitors, staff, and all students of the University will be held from 3-6 p.m. on Monday in the Student Union Building.

On Saturday and Monday the companies will begin setting up booths for the displays. Students are invited to help with these preparations.

The assistants will have opportunities to talk informally with the representatives in charge.

Dr. Hite said, "In some instances, future employment for students has resulted from these preliminary talks."

The first Career Carnival began in 1957 and was termed the largest event of its kind ever held on a college campus. Another carnival was held the following year and since then has been held biennially.

The Dope Sheet

By Scottie Helt

What a difference a victory can make. For the first time this year, the Wildcat locker room was a riotous, noise-filled place of half-dressed football players, who were slapping each other on the back, singing, and in utter jubilation following their first Southeastern Conference win of the year.

The locker room was a gloomy den following hurting losses to Georgia Tech, Mississippi and Auburn. And even a 55-0 win over Marshall, a team the Cats were picked to trounce soundly, did not create any post-game celebrations. But such was not the case following their heroic effort against LSU Saturday.

The happiest of the party was Coach Blanton Collier, who for the first time in a long time was grinning from ear-to-ear while singing the praises of his Wildcats in one of the "most outstanding defensive and punting games I've ever witnessed."

When asked what he thought of the game, Collier said, "It's always a good game when you win, but it's even greater to take it with such a complete team effort as this was."

Questioned about his plans for next week against Georgia, the UK mentor pleaded, "Please, just let me enjoy this tonight. We'll start thinking about Georgia tomorrow."

One of the first persons to greet Collier in the dressing room was LSU Coach Paul Dietzel. A true gentleman in defeat, Dietzel grabbed Collier's hand and said, "Congratulations Blanton. You have a great ball club. If a team ever deserved to win, yours did."

Then UK Assistant Coach Ernal Allen, who was on the Wildcat coaching staff with Dietzel under "Bear" Bryant, shot this question at the young Tiger chief: "What in the world do you tell a team that plays defensive football like your team does? What do you say to a bunch of boys who give up only one touchdown in four games, but wins only once?" Dietzel just shook his head and said, "I don't know."

What made this first SEC victory of the year even more noteworthy was that it had been quite a dry spell since Kentucky had upended an SEC opponent. That is, outside of their "annual" win over rival Tennessee.

Excluding a pair of victories over the Vols, UK had gone down to defeat eight times while tying once against league competition since winning from Mississippi State here in 1958.

The win was also a sweet one because it evened the series with the Tigers at 5-5-1 since the first game in 1949. In the shortest rivalry in the SEC, LSU had scored three straight wins over the Cats before Saturday's setback.

Folks who have been condemning Collier for playing conservative football should have been pleased with the LSU thriller.

In a game between such great defensive powers, the Wildcats were playing it mighty loose considering that one wrong move would mean the difference between victory and defeat.

The LSU pass defense was rated among the nation's best last week, but that didn't bother sophomore Jerry Woolum. This

Cats Win On Mayfield's Kick

By SCOTTIE HELT
If at first you don't succeed, try again.

So goes the old proverb, and so did Clarke Mayfield with his last quarter field goal that beat LSU, 3-0, Saturday night.

Short on a 40-yard effort in the first quarter, the nervous kicking specialist from Alva came off the bench with only 2:32 left in the game. He promptly split the up-rights from 28 yards out to give the Wildcats their first SEC victory of the year.

Their overall record is 2-3. In one of the fiercest defensive battles ever waged on Stoll Field, the Cats had locked horns with Coach Paul Dietzel's Tigers in a scoreless standoff for nearly 58 minutes of bruising action.

It was the Wildcats' sterling defensive effort that won the game. Only twice was LSU in UK territory and one of these penetrations came on a fumble recovery.

The Cats held their opponents to three first down (all in the first quarter) while rolling to 14. UK had a 124-8 passing yardage advantage and outdistanced LSU, 98-79, on the ground.

While LSU threatened only once, Quarterback Jerry Woolum's passing and ball handling had UK knocking at the Tiger goal line on several occasions.

The first time they had the ball, th Cats generated a 57-yard drive from their own 20 with Woolum to Dave Gash passes picking up most of the yardage.

The drive, however, faltered on the LSU 23 and Mayfield was rushed in to try his first fielder. A bad pass from center delayed his attempt and the kick fell far short.

LSU moved onto UK real estate on the first play of the second quarter, but could get no further than the 41 when Jerry Stovall was forced to punt.

A fumble by Gary Cochran gave the Tigers the ball on the UK 25 early in the third period. After gaining only eight yards in three plays, Harris tried a fielder.

The ball sailed to the left and LSU's only scoring threat was halted.

UK moved deep into Tiger land twice again—to the 19 in the third quarter and to the 33 in the fourth period—but both times LSU picked off Woolum passes to thwart the marches.

Late in the final frame, the Cats took a Stovall punt at the mid-field stripe and moved to the LSU 11 in nine plays. The game's lead-

Dear Dr. Frood: Here is a controversial bridge hand played at a recent college tournament. The contract was six no-trump. Some say declarer should have played the Fiskill Convention, squeezing West while end-playing East. Others, however, say a straight dummy reversal and a trump coup would bring home the contract. What would you do with a hand like this?

No Trump

DEAR NO TRUMP: In our club, successful play would require slapping the Jack, whistling at the Queen and quickly saying "Sir Hinkum Dinkum Fuzzy Duster" when the one-eyed King is played.

Dear Dr. Frood: How can a nice girl tell whether a boy is sincere—or just a wolf—when he asks for a kiss?

Nice Girl

DEAR NICE: Ask to see his teeth.

Dear Dr. Frood: Everybody laughed when I brought my mother to the Homecoming Dance. What's so funny about that?

Freshman

DEAR FRESHMAN: She's probably a very funny woman.

Dear Dr. Frood: I am 20 years old and I am about to marry a very nice, well-to-do man. He is 92 years old. Do you think the gap in our ages will affect our happiness?

Fiancée

DEAR FIANCEE: Not for long.

Dear Dr. Frood: Like every normal college man, I smoke Luckies. The other day I met this character who smoked something else. I want to know how a guy can be stupid as that and still get into college.

Lucky Fan

DEAR LUCKY: Obviously your college is very easy to get into.

"IF YOU DON'T SMOKE LUCKIES," SAYS FROOD, "YOU OUGHT TO HAVE YOUR HEAD EXAMINED!" And Frood ought to know. His head has been examined seventy-three times. (And phrenologists are still wondering where he got the good sense to smoke Luckies.)

Sophomore Clarkie Mayfield swings through to complete the field goal that spelled doom for LSU's Tigers, 3-0. The boot was good for 28 yards.

He threw dangerously for the first time from his own 24 and was looking for a receiver from his own 20 on a pass-run option on the first play of the drive. However, finding no one, he ran the ball and gained five yards.

Then, there was his beautiful pitchout to halfback Gary Steward on the field goal drive when the Richmond Rifleman was stopped at the line of scrimmage on a crucial fourth-and-one play at the LSU 25.

In what Collier called "one of the greatest adjustments on a play I've ever seen," the pitch to Steward gained seven yards, and was the key play in moving the ball into position for Clarkie Mayfield to boot his winning fielder.

In jest, Collier said after the game. "Heck, we've been working on that play all week."

Just how great was the UK defense? Well, these figures tell the story:

Only three LSU first downs—all in the first quarter.

Only eight yards passing on one completion in two attempts.

Only 79 rushing yards.

Only 87 yards netted both passing and rushing.

As Collier pointed out, it was a team victory, but the tackle charts showed that there were some standouts on defense that can't be overlooked. These included Dickie Mueller, Bob Butler, Irv Goode and Jerry Eisaman. They were tackling hard and often.

Whether it had anything to do with the great Wildcat effort is hard to tell, but Coach Blanton Collier gave his team a spirited pep talk following last Thursday's practice session.

"We can beat this team," Collier said. "They're just another football team. But, we've been

'Tigers Outmustered'—Dietzel

"They simply outmustered us in the clutch—that's the story of the game."

Thus, LSU Coach Paul Dietzel explained his team's 3-0 loss to Kentucky Saturday night.

"We didn't play very well. Of course, Kentucky had something to do with that."

"It was a tough one for us to lose because the boys worked so hard for this one. Collier did a real fine job getting Kentucky ready for us.

"We never seemed to get going. Kentucky's defensive line was very impressive and never gave us a chance to really do anything," the coach moaned.

Dietzel said that Kentucky Quarterback Jerry Woolam looked real impressive. "Everytime I looked up, it seemed like he was completing a pass."

The former Wildcat aide called the defeat a complete team loss. "Nobody was outstanding for us.

The Tiger coach named three plays that may have turned the tide in Kentucky's favor.

One such play was the LSU fumble seconds after Clarkie Mayfield's field goal. "I know it may sound silly to call that a turning point, but I thought we were very much in the game before the fumble," he said.

Another tide-turner named was the brilliant kick by John Rampulla which rolled dead on the Tiger four-yard line. "Rampulla's kick put us in a hole from which we never recovered," the coach commented.

A third point which Dietzel cited as a key play was the punt which Bill Ransdell fumbled in the second half.

On this play in question, Ransdell first fumbled Jerry Stovall's punt, picked it up, and seemed to fumble again when he was racked up.

Harriers Win First

With John Baxter leading the pack, the Wildcats' cross country team captured its first win of the season with a 22-34 decision over Hanover Saturday.

Baxter covered the three and three-quarter mile Hanover course in a record breaking time of 21:53. Sophomores Allen Cleaver, in second, Bob Granacher, in third, gave UK a clean sweep of the first three positions.

Wildcat Danny Jasper was fifth and Gayle Ecton, in his first collegiate race, finished 11th for the winners.

Best effort for Hanover was by Jack Fletcher who took fourth.

It was the fourth straight win for the Cats against Hanover. They have never lost to the Indiana school.

Mock Trial Jury 'Hung' Over Love Triangle Case

The jury was unable to reach a decision in the love triangle at the law school's first mock trial held in the Lafferty Hall courtroom Friday.

The case of the State vs. Connie Contrite was heard by Professor James Richardson, Attorneys for the prosecution were Asa Little and Allen Prewitt. Defense attorneys were William Logan and Lawson King.

The case revolved around Attorney Wotta-Man, found dead in the apartment of Connie Contrite who lived in the Tru-Love apartment building.

Wotta-Man's secretary, Virginia Virtuosity, also lived in the Tru-Love apartment on the corner of Chaste and Upright Streets. It was alleged that both girls were rivals for the affections of Wotta-Man.

Miss Contrite was indicted for the murder, although incriminating evidence was found in the apartment of Miss Virtuosity.

Connie Contrite was played by last week's Kernel sweetheart, Priscilla Lynn.

A practice trial will be held in the Lafferty Hall courtroom each Friday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. with one exception. This week's trial has been moved up to Thursday.

All mock trials are open to spectators.

ing ground-gainer, Jimmy Poynter, picked up 18 of these yards on five carries.

The key play of the series and of the game, according to Coach Blanton Collier, came on a fourth-and-one situation at the LSU 26.

Here, Woolum tried a quarterback sneak and was stopped at the line of scrimmage. Just before being brought down, he twisted his body enough to get off a pitchout to Halfback Gary Stewart, who raced seven yards for the first down.

Four more plays put the ball on the Tiger 11, squarely in the middle of the field for Mayfield's boot.

LSU Quarterback Darryl Jenkins fumbled on the Tigers' first play after the field goal, Wildcat End Dave Gash recovered and the Cats ran out the clock.

Clearing the hurdles with research

At Gen Tel, we've made a running start toward solving many of tomorrow's communications problems.

For instance, scientists at General Telephone & Electronics Laboratories are working in the uncharted area of the spectrum where radio waves take on the characteristics of light. They have already developed an experimental ultramicrowave system that may one day make possible the transmission of two million messages on a single radio beam in free space.

As a major communications company with world-wide connections, General Telephone is helping to advance the science of total communications around the globe. Our stepped-up research in the basic sciences is but one example of the way General Telephone & Electronics combines the talents of many people and the facilities of many companies to meet the future communications needs not only of America, but the whole world.
