String Clinic On Campus Next Week

The annual All-State High School String Orchestra will convene on the UK campus from Monday through Friday. The concluding event of the week will be a concert at 6:30 p.m. CST Friday in the Memorial Amphitheater.

A highlight of the String Orchestra week will be a violin recital by Elizabeth Green of the University of Michigan, Monday at 7:15 p.m. CST in the Fine Arts Laboratory Theater.

Miss Green is the guest conductor of the student orchestra and is nationally known both as a teacher of string music and as a violinist. She has been connected with the National High School Music Camp at Interlochen, Michigan, for ten years, and is the author of several books and articles on string playing.

Another feature of the week's events will be a program of chamber music to be presented by the University String Quartet at 7 p.m. CST, Thursday, in the Laboratory Theater. The ensemble is composed of Kenneth Wright, first violin; Joseph Pival, second violin; Marvin Rabin, viola; and Gordon J. Kinney, cello.

Approximately 90 selected junior high and high school string players from the state are expected to attend the week's activities. They will rehearse together for the week, present programs, receive help in string problems, and will take part in the final program Friday evening. Simultaneously with this orchestra an elementary school orchestra of 50 young string players from Lexington and vicinity rehearse for the week, and appear on the final program with the large string orchestra.

Marvin Rabin is general chairman, assisted by Kenneth Wright and Gordon J. Kinney. All three are members of the Music Department faculty, and instructors in Viola, Violin, and Cello respectively.

Colonel H. Rogers Named To Teach Military Science

Col. Henry H. Rogers, U.S. Army, who has been appointed professor of military science and tactics at UK, arrived in Lexington Wednesday to assume his duties.

Col. Rogers is being transferred from Washington, D. C., where he has served as assistant chief of staff of G-4.

He received his bachelors degree at North Carolina State College, his masters from Duke University and his doctors from Pennsylvania State College.

He has served 23 months in the Pacific and 36 months in the European command. He is a graduate of the Army Infantry School, the Command and General Staff College, the Atlantic Ordnance Depot Strategic Intelligence School and the Army-Air Force Special Staff School.

His decorations include the Bronze Star, the Army of Occupation medal and the Expert Infantryman badge.

Hernandez Returns To UK From AF

Lt. Col. J. E. Hernandez, associate professor of modern languages, has rejoined the faculty for the current summer session after completing a 21-month tour of duty with the Air Force.

Assigned to the Institute of Technology, Col. Hernandez held the position of assistant dean of the admissions division. He was recalled to active duty in September, 1951.

With the exception of two tours of military duty, he has been on the UK faculty since 1936. His previous military service was from 1941 to 1948. During most of this time he taught Spanish, Portuguese and Russian at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

Museum Displays Sternbergs' Print

Janis K. Sternbergs, instructor in the Department of Art, has had a print accepted for exhibition in the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts.

His wood engraving, "Conflict," was chosen for showing in the first annual Dallas National Print Exhibition. Only 162 prints were selected by a jury from more than 1,000 submitted by artists from all sections of the United States.

The exhibition will be circulated among other museums and university art departments after a month in Dallas.

Labor School Has Record Enrollement

More than 100 persons registered Monday morning for the eighth annual Kentucky Labor School which is being held on the UK campus under sponsorship of the Department of Research and Education of the Kentucky State Federation of Labor.

The school, which formally opened Sunday night with a dinner for school leaders, will continue through July 24. First regular classes of the school were conducted Monday morning and will be held from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. daily throughout the period.

James E. Wolfe, director of the federation's Department of Research and Education, reported that the enrollment in excess of 100 breaks all records for previous schools. This year's event marks the first time that the school has been staged at the University. Previous labor gatherings have been held on the campuses of the University of Louisville, Eastern State College and Morehead State College.

According to Wolfe, the total registration is expected to grow to 125 during the first week of activities. Among early registrants are Bon Khin Hiline, trade unionist of Burma, and Vilgett Nilsson of Sweden. Twelve women from Italy arrived Wednesday for the school, and seven others from Trieste will enroll next week.

Miss Frost Is Observer

Miss Dorothy Frost of the Women's Division of the U. S. Department of Labor, Washington, is serving as an observer for that department during the school.

Wolfe said that he and other officials of the Department of Research and Education "appreciate the co-operation of the University administration" during planning for the school. Dr. C. C. Carpenter, dean of the UK College of Commerce, was especially singled out by the department head for his help in arranging the affair.

Sunday Dinner Served

Both Dean Carpenter and Dr. Frank G. Dickey, dean of the UK College of Education, welcomed officials of the labor school at their opening dinner Sunday in the University's Student Union building.

Persons serving on the labor faculty for this week's classes and their class topics follow:

Labor Faculty

Robert Ackerberg, chief legal counsel for the National Labor Relations Board, Chicago, labor law; Dr. Gifford Blyton, UK associate professor of speech, public speaking; Mrs. Margaret Dagen, Washington University, St. Louis, labor history and labor ethics; Sam Eselle, secretary-treasurer of the Kentucky State Federation of Labor, union administration.

Howard L. Haynes, Dairy Workers 783, Organization workshop; Jesse Gallagher, regional director of organization, AFL, Cleveland, organization workshop; Michael Magee, Michigan Federation of Teachers, collective bargaining; Dr. George Mitchell, Southern Regional Council director, Atlanta, social and economic problems of the South; Dr. John W. Swackhamer, Montana State University, present economic trends.

'Marriage' Rehearsals Progress

By Abbott Jones

Work is coming right along on this summer's joint music-drama department opera, "The Marriage of Figaro," by Mozart. It will be given August 5-8 in the Guignol.

This opera is the first by Mozart to be done at UK. Professor Aimo Kiviniemi, who is directing the musical part, describes it as the most ambitious production yet from a musical standpoint. The setting is in pre-Revolutionary France, and there are numerous satirical digs at the decadent nobility of the period during the course of action.

A new translation by Virginia Card and George Houston is having its premiere in this production. It has yet to be published, but was specially chosen because it adapts itself to the music better than previous translations.

Rehearsals are held from 3:00-5:00 p.m. CST every day.

Governor Appoints Angelucci Trustee

Dr. Ralph Angelucci, Lexington, was appointed Tuesday by Gov. Lawrence Wetherby to the UK Board of Trustees.

CHRISTMAS GIFT — Work on "fraternity row" is progressing rapidly. The contractor expects to have the six buildings ready by Christmas and the fraternities are scheduled to move in before the January semester. The fraternities which will move in are Sigma Chi, Phi Sigma Kappa, Lambda Chi Alpha, Kappa Sigma, and Pi Kappa Alpha. The sixth building will probably be used as a graduate men's dormitory.

'Sweetheart' Trip Planned By SUB

A trip to Louisville for the opera "Sweethearts" will be sponsored by the Student Union, Friday, July 24. The opera will be performed at the Troquois Amphitheater and will star Gil Lamb.

The trip will be made by bus and all students are invited to attend. Cost of the trip will be $4.50. The bus will leave from the Student Union at 2:30 p.m. CST on Friday.

The opera will include many popular Victor Herbert melodies. Among them will be "Sweethearts," "Pretty As a Picture," "Every Lover Must Meet His Fate," "Game of Love," and "Jeannette and Her Little Wooden Shoes."

Persons interested in making the trip should sign their names and pay their money in Room 122 of the Student Union by Tuesday, July 21. The price of the trip will include bus fare and the ticket to the opera.

Book Reviews

"Home To Kentucky"

"Home to Kentucky," a new novel by Alfred Leland Crabb, is dedicated to President Herman L. Donovan, whom the author calls "one of present Kentucky's most creative citizens." Dr. Crabb, a professor at George Peabody College in Nashville and author of eight popular historical novels with Tennessee settings, has been for many years a friend of Dr. and Mrs. Donovan.

"Home to Kentucky" tells the story of Henry Clay from 1797, when he journeyed through Cumberland Gap and over a rough mountain trail to the bluegrass, until 1825, when he returned to Lexington from Washington over the same route. It describes Clay's rapid rise as a Kentucky lawyer and politician, his courtship of Lucretia Hart, their happy family life at Ashland, and Clay's brilliant career in Congress and as a diplomat. When Clay returns home at the end of the novel he is Secretary of State and renowned as "The Great Pacificator."

Dr. Thomas D. Clark, head of the history department at the University of Kentucky, in a review of the book writes that it "is the kind of novel that Kentucky readers will cherish. It not only contains an abundance of nostalgic description and flavor of early Kentucky, it is a faithful account of the activities of Kentucky's most distinguished son."

Dr. Crabb's novel emphasizes Clay's eloquence, his power to sway a single hostile juror or a vast crowd stuffed with burgo and barbecued mutton. The author also shows that Clay's devotion to the Union was the key to his political philosophy. Despite his dislike of slavery, Clay's fear of disruption of the nation and civil war led him to compromise opposing sectional views.

In relating Clay's career, Dr. Crabb also depicts the transition of Kentucky from frontier to plantation and the rise of the West as a significant section in national politics. One of the principal themes of the novel is the rivalry of Clay and Andrew Jackson for western leadership.

Dr. Crabb is a native of Kentucky and taught for many years in the public schools and colleges of the state. In 1942 he received an honorary degree of Doctor of Letters from the University of Kentucky, and in August, 1950, he delivered the commencement address to the University's graduating class. His son, Alfred L. Crabb, Jr., is a member of the University's English department.

On August 6, Dr. Crabb will be guest of honor at a reception at Ashland, the home of Henry Clay.

"Farm Analysis"

Co-authored by two UK professors, a new book entitled "Farm Management Analysis" has just been published.

The two authors are professor Lawrence A. Bradford, professor of farm management in the UK College of Agriculture and Home Economics, and Mr. Glenn L. Johnson, instructor in the same college from 1948 until 1952.

The publisher calls the book "a realistic approach to farm management integrating successful traditional principles and the findings of modern research." "Farm Management Analysis" demonstrates the importance of weighing the consequences of managerial action and shows how these managerial decisions can be affected by personal factors and the inter-relationships between the home and the business aspects of farming.

The book is designed as a text for two-semester or three-quarter courses at the junior-senior college level.

Bradford, who received his master's degree from the University of Kentucky, operated a farm for 25 years. He now lives at 362 Transylvania Park.

He served for several years as state farm management supervisor for the Farm Security Agency before his association with the University of Kentucky. He has been employed in the UK Agricultural Economics Department since 1938.

Johnson, who holds a Ph.D. degree from the University of Chicago, is now professor of agricultural economics at Michigan State College. Before war service in the Naval Supply Corps, he did research work with the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. After the war, he did outlook work on cotton and tobacco. His later research work has been done at Chicago as a Social Science Research Council Fellow and at the University of Kentucky.

At Kentucky he concentrated on development of managerial principles and the farm earnings in the TVA counties of Western Kentucky.

A note on the authors said: "Their experiences and training has enabled them to select the most productive elements of the old and the new techniques of profitable farm management."

Week-Long Camps Were Forerunners Of River Parties

By JUDY HENRY

So you think that "river parties" nowadays are the greatest? There was a time about 30 years ago when UK students held week-long camping parties which ordinarily closed the school year.

Arrangements for these camping parties were usually made by the fraternities. Each boy invited a girl to be his guest for a week at a large camp at Clifton or Herrington Lake. The fraternity would secure chaperones and usually take their chapter house cook to provide the meals.

The camps were large, accommodating as many as 40 to 70 people at one time, and allowed a final fling for the school-weary students.

Because the expenses involved in these expeditions were high and some criticism arose, the camping parties began to die out.

When criticism about the trips became overwhelming, the University decided that such excursions should be abolished. The Dean of Women at that time, Miss Sarah Blanding, announced that the girls would not be considered "under the jurisdiction of the University, with chaperonage or otherwise." With this announcement, parents began refusing to let their sons and daughters go on the trips. The nationals of the sororities, too, passed a ruling against the participation of sorority members in these camping parties.

Today's river parties, a sort of substitute for the old-time excursions, are one-day affairs. Still, since the advent of summer, picnic spots along the river bank are usually crowded on weekends with students seeking to relax after a week of books, tests and assignments.

Hollis Summers Will Join Staff At Writing Meet

Dr. Hollis Summers, associate professor of English, will be a staff member of Morehead State College's annual writers' workshop, July 20-31, for the second year.

Other professional writers will include Robert P. Tristram Coffin, Pulitzer prize winning poet; Katherine Anne Porter, writer of short fiction, and Joe Creason, feature writer for the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Fiction and poetry will be emphasized the first week of the session, and fiction and non-fictional prose the second. Student writers may attend for either week of the period, or both weeks, it was announced by James McConkey, director.

UK Engineers Honor Nollau

Louis Edward Nollau, UK professor emeritus of engineering drawing, was honored by engineering personnel and special guests at a dinner Tuesday night at the Campbell House.

Prof. Nollau, who has been associated with the University for the past 49 years, was placed on a change of work plan June 30.

Fellowships Go To Two UK Staffers

Fellowships have been awarded to two UK staff members during the past two weeks.

James F. Thompson, a member of the Agricultural Economics staff, has been awarded a General Education Board fellowship of $3,000 for study in agricultural economics at the University of Chicago.

The fellowship is for 12 months beginning in September. Tuition fees and travel expenses to Chicago and return also are provided.

Thompson was graduated from Murray Training School and Murray State College. He received his master's degree in agricultural economics from the University in June, 1951.

He has been on the Agricultural Economics Department's staff as a research worker since October, 1951. He served for two and one-half years in the Marine Corps during World War II.

Charles V. Youmans, teacher trainer in the College of Education, has been awarded a fellowship for study in Pittsburgh, Pa., under the College Business Exchange Program.

The UK educator, an instructor in industrial education, will be associated with the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company in Pittsburgh until August.

While there Youmans will work with the company's Division of Industrial Relations and will study the corporation's training and labor-management relations, policies and practices.

Chief objective of the College Business Exchange Program, sponsored by the Foundation of Economic Education, Inc., is to "give college and university personnel a comprehensive picture of the operation of modern business firms." Winners of fellowships are granted interviews and conferences with executives of the individual firms.

Ginger Named NEA Officer

Dr. Lyman Ginger, director of the University school and president of the Kentucky Education Association, has been chosen one of 11 second vice presidents of the National Education Association for 1953-54.

The Lexington educator was elected at the annual NEA convention, held June 27-July 4 at Miami, Fla. He is the first Kentucky delegate chosen for national office in a number of years.

William Early, Savannah, Ga., was elected NEA president and Miss Waurine Walker, Texas Education Agency, was elected first vice president. The 11 second vice presidents represent education systems throughout the nation.

Introduced to Convention
Ginger was nominated for the of-vice by Mrs. William Ray, Shelbyville school superintendent, state NEA director for Kentucky. The Kentucky delegation introduced the candidate to the entire convention at a reception Thursday, July 2.

The new vice president is a member of the NEA's national Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards which met in Miami during the week before the official convention. The commission is engaged in developing a professional level for teachers standard throughout the United States.

KEA President Active

As president of the Kentucky Education Association, Dr. Ginger is active in current research and public education for the Minimum Foundation for Education in Kentucky.

His re-election as president of the Kentucky organization this spring marked the first time a president had been chosen for a second term.

Dr. Ginger's direction of the University school is part of his work as chairman of the division of instruction for the College of Education.

As chairman he also is director of the college's elementary and secondary education instruction and co-ordinator of the University's student teaching program.

Engineers Give 20 Scholarships

The UK College of Engineering through the Kentucky Department of Highways has granted a total of 20 scholarships to recent Kentucky high school graduates. All of the recipients will enter the college next fall.

Fourteen of the scholarships will be supported by the Department of Highways, five by the highway industry, and one by the UK Alumni Association, Dean Daniel V. Terrell of the College of Engineering said.

Under a plan by which the scholarships were awarded, all recipients will work for the Kentucky Department of Highways this summer and each summer until graduation, and will serve the department for one year after graduation.

At least one student has been selected from each of the highway districts, and selection was based on examinations conducted by the personnel department of the University. The plan to award the scholarships was devised in 1948 by the Department of Highways to aid students interested in civil engineering, especially in highway development work.

Bandsmen March But Not At Half

The UK Band softball team is playing the tune in the intramural league play this summer. The teams dancing to the Band's tune this week were B.S.U. and the Hoboes.

The B.S.U. stood by as the Band marched to a 23-3 win. Home runs were hit by Dick Borchardt, Bud Asch and Ashley Ward. Hoskins, the pitcher for the Band, struck out 10 men, walked 2, and allowed only 5 hits.

Tuesday night, led by their director, Warren Lutz, the Band came out of the jungle with a win over the Hoboes, 5-3.

"Scooter" Lutz scored the first run for the band and Harry Carter hit a double scoring two more. Hoskins was again "burning them across" for nine of the Marching 100.
