DOCTOR CADMAN

To the Y. M. C. A. and to all those who were instrumental in bringing to the campus Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, is due the gratitude of the entire student body for the opportunity thus afforded.

Seldom has the opportunity been offered to university students, not only of hearing such excellent inspirational speaking, but also of meeting such a wholly delightful, truly inspiring personality. That Doctor Cadman has, in his brief stay here, solved for many students the most serious problems that have been facing them since they entered college is not to be doubted.

With his refreshingly modern views of young people and their life today he has proved an inspiration to the students as well as an assistance to those who have at heart the best interests of the student body. For many of the students he has presented, in his doctrine of intelligent religion, a long-needed link between the old ideas given them at home and the new ideas acquired in the process of their education at the university.

PROPOSED

APPROPRIATION CUT

Many organizations throughout the state have been quick to protest the proposed cut of 15 per cent in all appropriations which the Legislature will make this year, as such a decrease would affect educational institutions. The University of Kentucky would suffer more than would the remainder of the educational institutions of the state, and more persons would be affected at the university than at any other school.

If such a course is followed by the legislators, it is evident that the personnel of the university staff will be decreased, the salaries of staff members diminished, or both. The history of the university has been one of unparalleled and uninterrupted progress, and a decrease in its appropriation this year would only retard this progress. Purthance of education is one of the most important functions a government performs. The Legislature should consider seriously whether it can afford to decrease the appropriation for the university beyond the reduction which already has been made by President McVey.

THESE CHANGING BOOKS

At the close of each semester there are many University of Kentucky students who have completed certain courses of study, with a view to disposing of the textbooks for which they have no further need. Often-times, it is necessary that they do this in order to procure funds for new supplies. We can readily assume, then, that these persons are taken aback somewhat when bookstore attendants inform many of them that other texts are being substituted for the ones they have used, and that their books are unsalable.

Some textbook changes are made each semester. We hardly would have the temerity to so far interfere with the progress of education as to advocate that it be otherwise. New developments in fields of study lead naturally to the re-editing and the revising of textbooks used in any up to date institution. There are even a few books which cannot be changed often enough. But there are others which, dealing with long-standardized subjects, need be changed only occasionally. In cases of this nature, frequent substitutions of one author's text for that of another or shifting to later editions adds nothing to the course nor furthers the students' interests; such changes merely serve to increase students' financial burdens.

Just who is to blame for this situation? Surely the students are not; they are the sufferers. Bookstore officials do not favor frequent book changes; for, thereby, two possibilities of profit loss are forested: that of the inability to resell second-hand books already on hand, and that of overstocking with new books. The remaining interested party is the faculty. Therein lies the logical solution to the problem.

A few professors, either because of unstable tastes or commercial stimuli, appear to be unable to use the same text more than once. Although this practice has been frowned upon and, in instances, discouraged by university authorities, the difference between justified and unnecessary book changes is so hard to detect that the choice is usually granted the instructor. Books of themselves become antiquated soon enough without faculty assistance. The university should move to ease this distressing condition.

TELEPHONES

"May I use your phone a minute?" This is a constant query heard at all hours of the day in the library, in the university offices, even in the professors' offices.

To say that this use of private telephones causes much inconvenience would be to put it mildly. Whether the person thus addressed grants the request, it is an interruption and may cause loss of valuable time. Yet this cannot be laid entirely to the students' charge. There are times when it is imperative that one have access to a telephone, and these private telephones are the only ones available. So far as we know there is only one pay phone in any building at all centrally located, and that is the one in the lobby of White Hall. If there are others, students evidently do not know of them.

Why should there not be several toll phones in centrally located spots? The pay element would eliminate unnecessary calls; for a student will think twice before he pays a nickel for a call unless it is really important. Opportunity to do so would be given those who really need to call, and the bother to faculty and staff members eliminated.

Jest Among Us

"Lions Hold Meet at Country Club"—Headline. Well, what strange things you see when you haven't got a gun.

Add smiles: As insipid as doughnuts dunked in cold coffee.

Now that drastic changes in football rules have been made, we would suggest that they grow violent on the field instead of grass.

George Skinner wins Gamaaz scholarship cup again. George is good. We'd even be willing to wager that he could make those grades without playing football. Or vice versa.

Stop bragging about yourself and see if anyone else brings up the subject.

LOOKING BACK

Alas, my children, here is a man who is a great artist. One glance at this picture and the artist's soul is laid bare—very bare. He is one of the few who really know how to appreciate art—especially his own. The life history of this man unfolds like a fairy tale, or an umbrella.

His first lesson in drawing was to draw the water out of his grandfather's well. But he didn't mind; for where there is a well there is a way. It was while painting a neighbor's barn that he decided to take up oil. He was handicapped by the lack of materials; nevertheless, using four whisk-brooms, he painted his masterpiece on an old piece of galvanized tin.

When he sat down to the easel they all laughed, for he had forgotten to remove the palette of paint from his chair. Many of his students are now working in filling stations and chain stores because they did not know how to appreciate art. His advice to the young artist is to strive for triumphant expression through the masquerade of pseudorealism in the naive juxtaposition of plane upon counterpane, also to eat freely of ice cream and spinach that the hungry soul may not starve in its age-long search for dynamic symmetry. Who is this man?

Kadette Elizabeth Jones felt that she could not achieve the band sponsorship if she acted natural... acted natural... got it just the same. Bromo's boys are acquiring good taste.

Studes and studeettes hardly can accuse the sponsor of becoming fame-rigid... she's always been that way... hard to talk with... it's nice to try though. She's prettier than her picture... unsophisticated as a blonde can be... rather naive... flattered all over when told of her election.

Alpha Sham

Late band sponsor aspirant Ruth Wenhe is getting diplomatic. It seems that the fair habits of the Fire Fighters' domicile was questioned shortly after the Zetas had relinquished the aforementioned throne as to whom her sisters would support for the job.

"But—I thought there was already a band sponsor," the lady replied.

From My Rainbow Files

Spring is drawing well nigh, and the campfires desiring to be listed in the Lovelorn Directory, had better make the best of the sofa before the old file. Kappapledee Sally Ware and Khay Jack Rogers seem to have thought of this.

My rainbow file lists the following eligibles who have not yet taken their annual pins: Becky Shobby, Milly Nelson, Mary Frances Young, Betty Board, Carleen Grant, Carolyn Ray, Ruth Wenhe, Margaret McAllister, Claudia

This is the list of the week. There will more to choose from next week, for I predict a slight slump in love.

It is rumored that Piñ Virginia Dougherty has taken Cupid too seriously and has ventured upon the sea of matrimony. The better half of the partnership has not been revealed.

The Alfacams and Zetas are working awfully hard this year to fix up the Lovelorn Directory for the coming outdoor courting season which promises to be good. The gentlemen of the campus have felt the depression and they will have to stay at home. Sororities must arrange for comfort at home for the boy friends or else do without.

Alice Lang and Hank Vance have decided to settle to each other. Fiddlers are anxiously awaiting cigars from Hank.

Today's Fun Dellow piety John Henson merits a shove on the snout. Asked what he thought of a certain Kaifa's intentions towards the campettes, Henson snorted. "More Platonic than platonic."

LOOKING BACK

20 Years Ago This Week Lieutenant Kelly, speaking in chapel, advised students that peace is impracticable, though desirable. A play written by Prof. E. F. Farguhar featured the George Washington birthday anniversary celebration.

15 Years Ago This Week Students heard C. G. Hounshell, Nashville, Tenn., in chapel. Gov. A. O. Stanley of Kentucky addressed engineering students.

10 Years Ago This Week Mary Peterson, Cynthia, a sophomore in the College of Agriculture, elected to post of regimental sponsor by military students. "Cats" defeated Clemson; lost to Georgetown University, at Washington, and University of Virginia, Richmond. Centre scheduled next.

5 Years Ago This Week Thelma Short and Lucille Snyder were elected to sponsor the first and second battalions of the regiment.

1 Year Ago This Week The university senate passed an entirely new system of social rules for fraternities.

DEPTH SOUNDERS FOR AIRCRAFT

WITH the application of electricity to aircraft instruments, another chapter was written in the annals of air transportation. Today's ship is not only swifter but safer and more dependable. Modern depth-sounding devices indicate instantly the height of the ship above the ground surface. A unique feature of General Electric's recently purchased monoplane is the almost completely electrified instrument panel.

The most recently developed instrument is the sonic altimeter, which provides a quick means of indicating changes in height above ground. Sound from an intermittently operated air whistle is directed downward. The echo is picked up in a receiving megaphone, and the sound is heard through a stethoscope. The elapsed time between the sound and the echo determines the height. Tests show that water, buildings, woods, etc., produce echoes that are different and characteristic.

Beside developing a complete system of aircraft instruments, college-trained General Electric engineers have pioneered in every electrical field—on land, on sea, and in the air.

Keeping ahead of the second hand

To keep telephone service in step with the swift pace of American life, Bell System men tackle many an absorbing problem, find many an ingenious solution.

For instance, they decided that precious seconds could be saved by a change in long-established operating routine. The operator used to repeat the number called by the subscriber—now she indicates that she understands by saying, "Thank you." To appreciate the importance of the second thus saved, just multiply it by the 40,000,000 conversations handled by operators on the average day.

In the telephone business, major improvements that save the subscriber's time and give him better service often result from just such apparently minor changes.

'Greatest Dancer' To Appear at Woodland

Harold Kruttschnitt, reputed to be the world's greatest dancer, who is on a new American tour after triumphant appearances in Europe with his dancing group, will give a program at Woodland auditorium at 8:15 o'clock Thursday night, February 25, under the auspices of the Fine Arts association. Miss Anna Chandler Goff is impresario.

The program has been selected from a repertoire of more than 100 dances and includes creations never offered before in America.

The dancer's associates are four young women who are reported to give ample demonstration of the mastery of their art and make possible cleverly designed and executed dances in varied forms, from tragedy to comedy.

Tickets for the dance recital are now on sale at the Lexington College of Music. The downtown sale will begin in the Phoenix hotel lobby at 9 a. m. Tuesday, February 23. Prices are $1.00, $1.50, $2.00, and $2.50.

All students and faculty members were urged to make a friend of imagination by the famous minister, and then it should be directed to the proper channels because it is as dangerous as it is electible.

President McVey presided at the meeting and introduced Doctor Cadman. The invocation and benediction were said by the Rev. George Heaton, pastor of the Felix Memorial Baptist church.

The convocation address was the first of a series of nine addresses given on the university campus. The visit of the Brooklyn clergyman was made at the invitation of Bart Peak and the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A., under whose direction Religious Emphasis week was conducted. Other addresses made Wednesday included the addresses at the engineers' convocation and the Pitkin club.

The week closed Thursday night when Doctor Cadman gave his final address in Memorial hall. Thursday morning Doctor Cadman met with the clergymen of the state, who had met to discuss problems of importance to their profession. A series of talks made to lunch clubs of Lexington also featured Doctor Cadman's stay.

ALUMNI PRAISE GAMAGE

Coach Harry Gamage, head football coach has been commended in a resolution adopted by the University of Kentucky Alumni club of Atlanta. The United States Basketball team also was assured of a hearty welcome to the Southern conference tournament in the resolution. The chairman of the committee was Ed Danforth, one of the foremost sports writers in the South.

The resolution: "Atlanta alumni of the University of Kentucky take this opportunity to extend to the present athletic administration at the university and to Harry Gamage, head football coach, in particular, their congratulations on four successful football seasons. Furthermore, we commend the work of Harry Gamage in bringing Kentucky football into the front rank of Southern Conference competition and for the high plane on which he has coached his teams.

We have found that Coach Gamage enjoys the respect and esteem of coaches all through the conference and is recognized as one of the best of the younger set, which includes Harry Mehre of Georgia, Chuck Collins of North Carolina, Chet Wynne of Auburn, Ted Cox of Tulane, and others.

"We commend the present athletic policy for playing as many conference teams as possible and see no point to reviving the back-door feud with Centre College.

"Atlanta alumni are delighted to note the fine record of the basketball team and assure Coach Rupp and his boys a hearty welcome and best wishes for a championship when they come here late in February for the tournament.

STUDENTS RATE PLEASURES
 Smokes and dances were rated higher than dates and dances among Pennsylvania State college upper classmen when asked what pleasures they were eliminating due to reduced budgets.
 The sophomore men held a different opinion, for they indicated that the girls and the hops were the last to suffer on their retrenchment programs.
 A survey of 1,000 male students of the three higher class groups at the college was made.

LEAF YEAR DANCE
 Theta Sigma Phi, senior women's honorary journalistic fraternity, will give the second Leap Year tea dance of the campus social season from 4 to 6 o'clock this afternoon in the recreation hall of Patterson hall. All loyal promoters of the custom for which Leap Year is infamous are urged to turn out full force for the celebration.
