Rural counties receive medical help from UK

By Celia Love
Contributing Writer

For the residents of Casey County, the closing of Liberty War Memorial Hospital could have meant the difference between life and death.

With snow-covered roads and freezing temperatures in January, travel to the closest hospital involved a drive to neighboring Ephraim McDowell Hospital in Danville, Ky., or Humana Hospital in Somerset, Ky.

But there is help for Casey and other rural counties in the state, compliments of UK's Medical Placement Services.

The placement service was instrumental in the establishment of a Primary Care Center in Casey County with two medical interns on site.

"We could send a thank you card the size of our courthouse to UK and (placement services director) Don Buecker for all of the help in making medical care available to our community," said Casey County Judge-Executive David Johnson of Liberty, Ky.

BUECKER

Buecker also came to London, Ky.'s aid when his office helped place ophthalmologist Jim Huffman in London as that city's only full-time eye specialist.

"I wanted to practice in a small, rural community and remain close to my Kentucky home," Huffman said. "Don Buecker and Mary Mount Hospital made this possible."

Kentucky's population is almost evenly divided between rural and metropolitan areas, but 70 percent of the state's doctors work in urban areas, leaving a short supply of medical professionals to service rural areas.

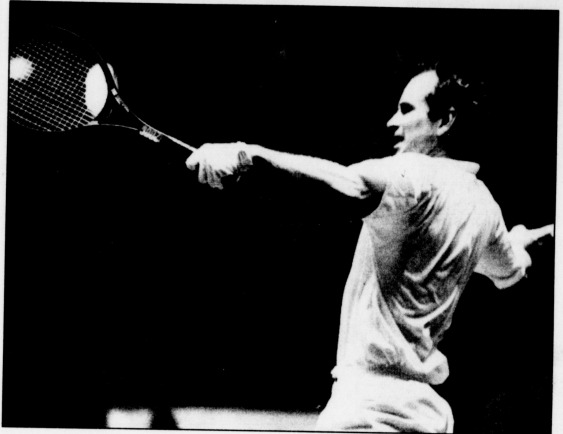

To help improve this ratio, the state legislature created doctor-placement offices at UK and the University of Louisville in 1990.

Buecker arrived at UK that year, and to date he has placed 30 percent of medical residents from UK in rural shortage areas across Kentucky.

The placement service at UK acts as a liaison between medical trained personnel and medical facilities in need of health-care providers. Cities and counties designated by the state as "health professional shortage areas" are targeted.

RAD gives victim upper hand

Conference teaches women how to respond to sex abuse situations

By Perry Brothers
Contributing Writer

Self-defense instructor Tim Mallory informed an attentive group of women this weekend how easily a woman can hurt a man.

Mallory was not igniting a gender war.

He was demonstrating techniques for RAD, Rape Aggression Defense, a program sponsored by the UK Police.

He and Holly Davis, both instructors of RAD classes, were invited to speak as part of a collective of speakers for the Women's Development Conference held Saturday and sponsored by the UK Panhellenic Council.

The speakers participating in the conference focused on the theme "Life After College: Myth vs. Reality." More specifically, the workshops dealt with the realities women face after graduation.

Although the RAD demonstration offered information directed at all women, Mallory's sentiments permeated the entire conference.

"Be taught, practice and have the confidence to know that you would be prepared for any situation," he advised the crowd of about 300.

The workshops began after a 30-minute introduction by UK Assistant Athletics Director Kathy DeBoer.

Organization for Saturday's symposium began in October. Conference co-chairwoman Paige

Bendel stressed that although the conference was sponsored by the Panhellenic Council, it was not just for women in sororities.

"It is important to the campus that women get information that they wouldn't get at UK without the conference," she said.

Other workshops offered during the three-hour event addressed such issues as sexual harassment, financial independence, entrepreneurship and the development of women's organizational and leadership skills.

Resumes were critiqued throughout the morning, and Anne Weston, the executive director of the Girl Scouts Wilderness Road Council, adjourned the day's proceedings with a luncheon lecture expounding "practical applications on how to be successful — both in business life and personally."

West emphasized that women must keep their options open.

"A woman's approach to life and work is valuable in the workplace as cooperation rather than competition becomes the way to success," she said.

Following the conference, psychology junior Katrice Guerrant said she benefited from the experience.

"In college there are so many overwhelming things you have to manage," she said. "When I was (an) undeclared (major), I had a different adviser every time I registered. These workshops help you put things together."

Vietnam releases remains of MIAs as act of good will

By George Esper

HANOI, Vietnam — Four days after the United States lifted the 19-year trade embargo against Vietnam, Hanoi is turning over more remains of what are thought to be missing American servicemen.

U.S. officials will announce the number of remains returned after a ceremony at Noi Bai International Airport today.

President Clinton had made lifting the embargo contingent on Hanoi's cooperation in the fullest possible accounting of Americans missing in action from the Vietnam War.

U.S. veterans groups and families of MIAs had strongly opposed the end of the embargo, saying the United States would lose its leverage in forcing Vietnam to cooperate in accounting for the 2,238 American MIAs.

But the United States withheld some carrots, the biggest of which is the restoration of President meets advisers to map out Bosnia strategy

By Tom Raum
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton conferred with his top national security advisers yesterday to chart a course for dealing with escalating violence in Bosnia amid intensifying calls from Congress for air strikes.

A top administration official said Western military action was clearly "on the table" in the aftermath of a mortar attack Saturday in a market in the Bosnian capital of Sarajevo that left at least 68 dead and hundreds wounded.

And Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole asserted that a decision by Clinton to order air strikes would have "strong bipartisan support" in Congress.

But Clinton — along with other allied leaders — appeared still to be groping for an effective strategy for ending the bloodshed in the former Yugoslavia.

A day after he sent a U.S. medical team and three transport planes to Sarajevo to help evacuate the wounded, Clinton summoned top national security officials to the White House to discuss the deteriorating situation.

Clinton — who late Saturday issued a statement condemning the "cowardly act" and calling for engaging allies on next steps — was not likely to take any steps without consulting NATO partners, the official said.

In Munich, Germany, Defense Secretary William Perry said the SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Three U.S. cargo planes evacuated victims of the massacre at the city's central market yesterday, while residents grieved and railed at a world they say should be stopping the fighting rather than mopping up after it.

The death toll from Saturday's shelling of the market rose to 68, the deadliest attack in the 22-month siege of the capital by Bosnian Serbs.

U.N. experts were still analyzing the shell's trajectory in an effort to pin down blame for the attack. But there was no doubt among Sarajevans that the Serbs were responsible and what should be done about it.

"Where were you yesterday?" a young soldier of Bosnia's Muslim-led government shouted to a NATO jet howling overhead. "And what are you going to do today?"

Standing at the morgue, he supported his girlfriend, who softly cried "Papa, Papa," for her dead father.

The explosion of a single mortar shell at the market, which also wounded more than 200 people, spurred more of the debate that has

History in the making

By John Earl Otte

When the thought of February comes to students' minds, most of them think of Valentine's Day, love, candy and one more month until spring break.

But important events occur in February as part of the celebration of black history.

The Martin Luther King Jr. Cultural Center at UK is sponsoring several programs this month, from lectures to movies to concerts.

"The important thing to remember, though, isn't how this year's events compare to last years," said Chester Grundy, director of the Office of African-American Student Affairs. "The important thing to remember is that what we feel we are doing this month is something special."

The King Center attempts to share African and black cultures with the UK students throughout the year, but Grundy says this is the month when students take the most advantage of what the center has to offer.

"Really, we want students to realize that what we are doing this month is actually an extension of what we always do," Grundy said.

"It is a large part, an important part, of a long-term commitment to en-

King Center holds month of programs celebrating black culture

The King Center will hold two lectures on blacks in American society and an exhibit of photographs on black Kentuckians.

"What we want to do is help advance the cultural diversity at the University of Kentucky," Grundy said. "We feel that what we are doing is an important part of the academics here at UK."

In addition to the lectures and exhibit, the King Center is sponsoring a black film festival, titled "Celebrating the Sisters." There also will be two musical concerts at Memorial Hall.

Fraternity tries to raise awareness of burn cases

By Stephen D. Trimble
 Staff Writer

Beta Theta Pi social fraternity is trying to bring about children's burn awareness through a nationally acclaimed photo exhibit to central Kentucky.
 Last week, members of the house manned a table at UK Hospital to give information and accept donations from passers-by to kick off National Burn Awareness week, which began yesterday and runs through Sunday.
 Beta senior Chris Gadwell said the fraternity has pledged to supply $4,500 of the $8,000 needed for the photo exhibit, titled "Scars of Childhood," that will come to the Otis A. Singletary Center for the Arts in May and June.
 Charles Eastin, Beta chapter counselor, said UK Hospital's plastic surgery department has pledged the remainder of the funds.
 "The exhibit is an artistic means to get the public aware of the danger without shocking them," he said. "We're trying to use this as part of an overall scheme to benefit the community."
 UK's Beta chapter is the first of 147 chapters nationally to begin work on the project, Eastin said.
 "Photographs have been used in the past to raise awareness of social problems," he said.
 Eastin said Beta's efforts will bring greater awareness to a problem that he said claims 3,000 children's lives each year and is the third leading cause of death for minors.
 UK Hospital critical care nurse Pamela Lamar is a 15-year veteran of treating burn victims and has seen lives torn apart by simple carelessness and tragic circumstances.

She has seen a deaf family's father whose fingers were burned beyond use, cutting off his last means of communication.
 And Lamar has witnessed the painful rehabilitation and post-traumatic stress syndrome that nearly all burn victims experience.
 Her message is simple: "Most burn cases are preventable."
 From her experiences, treating a patient who used a lighted match to inspect the inside of his car gas tank and toddlers who pulled reachable pan handles off stove burners, Lamar reaches precaution when it comes to burns.
 She currently is treating a 13-year-old who became trapped in a mobile home fire three weeks ago.
 With two surgeries behind the girl and at least one more due, Lamar said it will be a long road to recovery for her patient.
 During the first 48 hours of the victim's treatment, which Lamar describes as perhaps the most traumatic of the treatment, the girl's eyes were swelled so that she could not even see the throngs of doctors, nurses and technicians scrambling over her.
 Lamar said the girl probably will have substantial scarring.
 Although some of it can be treated with plastic surgery, it will be a long corrective process.
 "She may never completely recover," Lamar added.
 Eastin said the Beta chapter may visit area schools next year, spreading the message of burn awareness in hopes of avoiding such cases.
 To contribute to Beta's photo exhibit fund, contact Eastin at 257-5575.

Baldness turning heads among model industry

Associated Press

Toss the toupee. Nix the hair weave and deliver yourself from any remedy that promises to sprout hair where none now grows.

Bald is beautiful. Ask former pro basketball star Michael Jordan, who shaves his head bare, as do Charles Barkley of the Phoenix Suns, Vincent Askew of the Seattle SuperSonics, Alvin Robertson of the Detroit Pistons, Xavier McDaniel of the Boston Celtics and Derrick Coleman of the New Jersey Nets. Darryl Strawberry of the Los Angeles Dodgers and boxer George Foreman also opt for the cue-ball cut. It's likewise gaining favor among trendy musicians and models. Peter Garrett, lead singer of Midnight Oil, sports a shaved head, as well as members of the hip-hop group O'Jays.

"I used to be a no-no, and now it's definitely happening," says Andre Aleu-Pavon, booker for Webb Models in Los Angeles. "People are more open to bald models than ever before. ... It's a very sensual look that adds to your facial features."

Aleu-Pavon encouraged one of his models, Vladimir Tomljenovic, better known as Mick T., to shave his thinning hair. The rest, as they say, is history. "As soon as I shaved my head,

I started getting work left and right," Tomljenovic says. "I turned my weakness into my advantage."

Bald babes include singer Sinead O'Connor, Sigourney Weaver in "Aliens III" and French Canadian fashion model Eve Salvail who has a dragon tattooed on her head. Some 35 million American men have male pattern baldness, according to the American Hair Loss Council in Tyler, Texas, a non-profit organization of hair industry professionals.

Michael Mahoney, executive director of the council, says about 20 percent of these men start losing hair by age 25. By their 30s, the figure is 30 percent, and with each subsequent decade, it increases by 10 percent.

Common male pattern baldness is caused by hormones in those with a genetic predisposition for it. Baldness may creep from the crown forward, from the hairline back, or from both directions.

Whatever the direction and no matter the cause, Dennis Boyles says, no man relishes the moment his kids compare him with Ronald McDonald.

"I prefer to think of myself as prematurely eggheaded. Nothing else matters on a guy between his eyebrows and the top of his sneakers," says Boyles of Everett, Pa., editor-at-large for Men's Health magazine.

"You can be fat, have a caved-in chest, wear a $5,000 suit. But as long as you have a great head of hair, you're a great-looking guy."

Mahoney says hair is one of the few ways for men to make a fashion statement and when he loses it he "feels deprived of his ability to make that statement. It can bother you to the point of becoming suicidal."

For some men with receding hairlines, shaving the head is like going for broke, making the most of what they have.

"You can be bald and cool," says Ross Goldstein of Generation Insights, a San Francisco consulting firm that tracks baby boomer trends. "There is something about shaving all your hair that says, 'Look how far I'm willing to go.' It's in-your-face, confrontational, almost aggressive."

Goldstein, who is keeping what hair he has, says that a shaved head shows that bald is OK, a toupee is a "pathetic attempt to avoid the obvious, a rejection of who you are."

If you plan to shave your head, start with a barber.

"Have it done professionally for a more precise job, since it's hard to see everything when you do it yourself," says Tony Geneva, barber at the Brown Palace in Denver. He says electric clippers every two to four weeks should suffice. His maintenance-free 'do plus after-shave and moisturizer is $13.

King of Pop's career continues to plummet

Associated Press

DENVER — Michael Jackson isn't expected when a trial begins today to hear a local songwriter's claim the pop superstar pirated the hit song "Dangerous."

Jackson's publicist Lee Solters said Denver was "not on his schedule."

His lawyer will be there, along with Crystal Cartier, who says she wrote her "Dangerous" nine years ago.

"He augmented the lyrics, he took the chorus, the hook, from my song — and that's look," Cartier said. "I don't mind sharing credit, but I got bumped completely out of the picture."

Jackson and his lawyer have refused to comment on the case.

The U.S. District Court trial will decide Cartier's copyright infringement claim.

If she prevails, there will be a second trial to determine damages. Cartier plans to seek at least $40 million.

Last month, a Los Angeles jury ruled Jackson didn't steal the songs "Thriller," "The Girl is Mine" and "We Are The World" from two former childhood neighbors in Indiana.

Later, Jackson settled a lawsuit alleging he molested a teen-age boy.

Cartier said she wrote "Dangerous" in 1985 and her band, Love Story, has been playing it ever since.

On July 29, 1991, she copyrighted her recorded album, "Love Story: Act One," which contained "Dangerous," she said. She said Jackson obtained a copyright for his version of "Dangerous" on Feb. 24, 1992.

Cartier's album sold about 1,000 copies in the Denver area. Jackson's "Dangerous" album has sold upwards of 14 million copies.

Cartier will be represented by Bob Eberhardt of Denver. Jackson, his MJ Production Inc., Sony Music Entertainment Inc., and Epic Records, will be represented by Los Angeles lawyer Howard Weitzman.

In other related news, a Santa Barbara County grand jury will hear testimony this week about allegations that Jackson molested a 13-year-old boy, the Los Angeles Times said Saturday.

Subpoenas have been delivered to witnesses, but neither Jackson nor the boy were summoned, according to unidentified sources, the paper said.

The grand jury will determine whether there is enough evidence for an indictment.

Jackson, 35, denies any wrongdoing.

A person at the district attorney's office in Santa Barbara said no one would comment until Monday. Jackson attorney Howard Weitzman didn't immediately return a phone call for comment.

Criminal investigations were under way in Los Angeles and Santa Barbara counties because Jackson has houses there.

Lawyers for Jackson and the boy, now 14, announced Jan. 25 that they settled a lawsuit filed by the teen.

Terms weren't disclosed, but sources said Jackson will pay between $15 million and $24 million. Los Angeles County District Attorney Gil Garcetti said the settlement had no impact on his investigation.

The boy's attorney, Larry Feldman, didn't immediately return a phone call for comment Saturday.

Art of the Kuba Kingdoms proves to fashionable Exhibit to feature fabrics of Africa from Matisse's famous collection

By Dawn Wilson Staff Writer

Art at times can be extremely fashionable, and as shown by the University Art Museums most recent exhibit on Kuba textiles, fashion is art.

The exhibit, which experienced a quiet opening yesterday, features 21 exquisite examples of fabric art from the Kuba Kingdoms of central Africa.

The intricate patterns and designs on the textiles served as great inspiration for many artists of the early 20th century, most notably French artist Henry Matisse, who was an enthusiastic collector of the fabrics.

Matisse covered several walls in his home with the Kuba fabrics and loaned the pieces to New York's Museum of Modern Art in 1947 for a major African exhibit.

"The fabrics look very modernist," University Art Museum Director Harriet Fowler said. "They look almost like a painting."

"In the early 20th century, people like Matisse and Picasso discovered just how beautiful African art could be," Fowler added.

Distinctive, repetitive patterns and geometric designs were important in the socially complex Kuba society to indicate family heritage, wealth, position and rank.

"This art was meant to be a part of a ceremony or cultural event," Fowler said. "It is time to look at it in both its own context and as an influence on modern art."

The cloths were woven with such important symbols and designs and then made into ceremonial garments. An example of this can best be seen in the 18-foot-long dance skirt on display in the exhibit.

Several pattern-creating techniques also are on exhibit. Cut-pile designs feature woven bark or palm-fiber cloths that were tightly embroidered, giving the cloths a velvety look.

Applique textiles are less tightly composed and feature arrow and knife motifs, along with the geometric designs of cut-pile fabrics.

Many pieces were painted with plant-dye pigments to make colorful designs and patterns.

On March 6 at 2 p.m., the exhibit's organizer Mary Hunt Kahlenberg, director of Textile Art Inc. of Santa Fe, N.M., will give a lecture on the Kuba fabrics and their influence on Matisse. The lecture is free and open to the public. A reception will follow afterward.

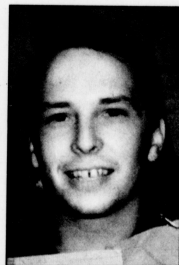

The University of Kentucky Art Museum is located in the Otis A. Singletary Center for the Arts. Hours are noon-5 p.m., Tuesday through Sunday. The museum is closed Mondays and major holidays.

Prosperous Prickett, Cats edge UMass

By Brian Bennett
Senior Staff Writer

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — In a game hyped as a homecoming for several New Jersey area natives, a West Virginian stole the show. Jared Prickett scored 17 points, ripped down 15 rebounds and hit a crucial free throw late in the game to lead No. 7 UK past No. 11 Massachusetts 67-64 in a NCAA Tournament atmosphere at the Meadowlands Arena.

The Minutemen (17-4) had a chance to send the game into overtime when Donta Bright fired a three-pointer from the top of the key before the buzzer. But Bright's Massachusetts Miracle attempt clanged off the side of the rim.

UK (18-3) held on after scoring the final seven points of the game. Down by four with two minutes to go, Tony Delk hit a 15-footer, followed by a Prickett layup, two Rodrick Rhodes free throws and a Prickett free throw.

Prickett had been struggling as of late, including a zero-point, one-rebound outing against Alabama on Wednesday. "I had a horrible game against Alabama," said the sophomore from Fairmount, W.Va. "I felt I had to make up for it."

"I think he realized if we did not rebound, we were not going to win this game," UK coach Rick Pitino said. "He's worked very hard the last 10 days on his low-post game."

Prickett's play helped the Cats tie the glass-heavy Minutemen on the boards 40-40.

It also helped neutralize a superb game from UMass forward Lou Roe.

Roe, a New Jersey native, scored 28 points and had 13 rebounds. Meanwhile, UK's hometown boys didn't fare as well.

New Yorker Andre Riddick fouled out with 2 points while Jersey City native Rhodes shot just 3 of 12 from the field for 9 points.

"I wasn't nervous or tight," said Rhodes, who played in front of numerous friends and relatives. "It was just one of those games."

The game was an Atlantic 10-type defensive battle, and both teams shot just 40 percent from the floor.

"The game was not a Kentucky-style game," Pitino said. "But we need to play in these types of ball-games. They're a great defensive team. But the good thing for us is that we were equally as good on our defense."

PRICKETT

UK used a tough zone defense to battle back from a seven-point deficit. The Cats took the lead after UMass coach John Calipari drew a technical foul for arguing a call. Travis Ford hit the two free throws, and the Cats went up six.

But the Minutemen battled back and retook the lead at 53-51 when Edgar Padilla lofted a pass to Roe, who then dunked over Prickett, eruping the UMass contingent that dominated the crowd of 18,489.

Roe then followed with an up and under layup and a putback slam as Massachusetts built the 64-60 lead. Then came the UMass impasse.

"We started playing not to lose instead of just playing," Roe said.

"We turned the ball over, and they were able to score."

In the first half, UK opened up a 27-18 lead after Ford hit a floating, one-hand bank shot with 7:30 left. But the Cats didn't make a field goal the rest of the half, and Prickett's two free throws provided the only Big Blue points in the midst of a 18-2 UMass run capped by a Padilla three at the buzzer.

Delk finished with 16 and Jeff Brassow hit all three of his three-point attempts. Padilla added 11 and Bright 10 for UMass. Freshman center Marcus Camby fouled out with 5 points, 9 rebounds and 6 blocks.

Despite the loss, it was not a heartbreak of Michael Dukakis proportions for Massachusetts.

"I'm very proud of my basketball team," Calipari said after the game. "I think people saw the kind of team we had today."

Notre Dame fights through Georgia, dogs Dawgs 88-85

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Ryan Hoover scored six of his career-high 32 points on free throws in the final 31 seconds and Georgia failed for the second day in a row to get off a late shot as Notre Dame downed the Bulldogs 88-85 yesterday.

Hoover's last two free throws with six seconds left closed the scoring. Georgia's bid for a 3-point attempt for a tie failed when Shandon Anderson's pass went out of bounds, giving Notre Dame possession with just under two seconds to play.

Georgia lost a 78-77 decision to Alabama on Saturday when the Bulldogs failed to get off a shot in the final five seconds, again throwing the ball away.

This time Georgia cut the lead to 86-85 on Ty Wilson's 3-pointer with 16.6 seconds remaining. The Bulldogs forced a five-second violation when the Irish were unable to inbound the ball.

Georgia then had its pass baited away, knocking off four seconds, and on the second entry, Wilson's bounce pass to the post sailed out of bounds, giving the ball back to the Irish.

Bernard Davis led the Bulldogs with 23 points. Dathon Brown added 18 and Carlos Strong 12.

Monty Williams added 24 points and 10 rebounds for the Fighting Irish, who also got 13 points from Billy Taylor and 10 from Joe Ross.

It was the third victory in a row for Notre Dame (8-13), coming on the heels of an eight-game losing streak. The Irish upset No. 4 UCLA on Saturday.

Georgia fell to 10-11.

The Irish overcame a 32-27 half-time deficit behind the outside shooting of Hoover, whose first five baskets after intermission were 3-pointers. He also had a 3-pointer in the first half.

Robinson for real; Purdue trips Iowa

By Greg Smith
Associated Press

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Take it from Iowa coach Tom Davis: Purdue's Glenn Robinson is as good as advertised.

"He is literally unstoppable," Davis said after watching Robinson lead the No. 8 Boilermakers past Iowa 87-78 yesterday. "He's the man. He lives up to the billings."

Robinson scored all of Purdue's points in a key 13-4 second-half run and finished with 34 as the Boilermakers (18-3, 6-3 Big Ten) bounced back from a home loss to Michigan.

"Some guys get the ratings and bills and can't live up to it," Davis said. "He lives up to it anytime he wants."

Robinson, the Big Ten's leading scorer with a 28.5 average, was nonchalant about his effort, which included four 3-point baskets and 10 rebounds. "I got hot, so I kept shooting the ball," he said. "Whoever has a hot hand in our program gets the ball."

Purdue coach Gene Keady shook Davis' hand as they met inside the interview room.

"Your kids played their butts off," he told the Iowa coach. Addressing the media, Keady said, "We're happy about this win. Our kids played with composure when we needed to."

Iowa, on the other hand, took some ill-advised shots. The Hawkeyes made only 3 of 25 3-point attempts, after making 13 of 31 in a 92-88 victory over No. 22 Minnesota last Wednesday.

"We showed our lack of experience in that area in our shot selection," Davis said. "This is a young team. I feel like sometimes we could use about six or seven timeouts because they get rattled at times."

Cuozzo Martin added 20 points for Purdue, which shot 50 percent and outrebounded Iowa 43-41 to offset its 24 turnovers.

Jess Settles and James Winters each scored 21 points for Iowa (9-9, 3-6), while Russ Millard had 12 and Jim Bartels 10.

It was the third straight game that Settles, a freshman, has led the Hawkeyes in scoring.

He tied the season high he had reached against Cal-Irvine in late December and along with Winters, kept Iowa in the game until the final few minutes.

Purdue led 41-37 and went up 49-40 on Matt Waddell's 3-pointer with 17:03 remaining.

But Winters hit four straight free throws in an 8-0 run that drew Iowa to 51-48 with 12:42 to play.

That's when Robinson took over.

The 6-foot-8 junior hit a 3-pointer to stretch the Boilermakers' lead to 53-48, then went on to score 10 more points — including two more 3-pointers — as Purdue built a 64-52 lead with 9:01 remaining.

Kenyon Murray's three-point play with 4:44 left to play capped an 11-2 Iowa rally that brought the Hawkeyes to 73-68, but they got no closer. Martin made a 3-pointer and sank two free throws to send the lead to 3:04 to play and Purdue held on.

Courier foiled by Mac attack; 7,253 attend tennis exhibition

By Doc Purcell
Staff Writer

When John McEnroe was introduced as a participant in the Paul Miller Mazda Tennis Challenge Friday night at Memorial Coliseum, the partisan crowd of 7,253 roared its collective approval.

They cheered as the legendary tennis player stood alone in the spotlight of the darkened arena, paying tribute to an athlete who has won 77 career singles titles during his illustrious 16-year professional career.

Following the immense outpouring of affection, McEnroe took to the court and did not disappoint his many admirers, disposing of Jim Courier, the world's third-ranked player, according to the IBM-ATP computer ratings, and one of professional tennis's brightest young stars, in a 7-5, 7-6, straight set victory.

The exhibition match, staged to raise money for UK's proposed outdoor tennis stadium, began, however, with Courier dominating from the baseline to earn a quick 2-0 lead in the first set.

McEnroe, fueled by the crowd, battled back to tie the set at 3-3.

Both players then held serve for the next several games, until McEnroe schooled his opponent on the basics of indoor play, winning the set 7-5 on a Courier return that hit the net.

The second set began in opposite fashion, as McEnroe, who charmed fans with chides to the line-judges and umpire throughout the evening, kept the momentum, capturing the first three games.

Courier, however, refused to fold, equalling McEnroe's success with a three-game rally of his own.

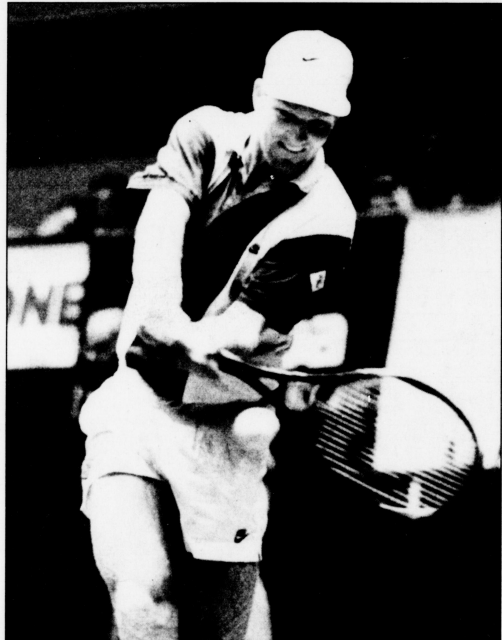

With the set knotted at 3-3, both players continued to pound away, with Courier denying McEnroe several match-winning opportunities and ultimately forcing a second-set tie-breaker.

McEnroe took control in the tie-breaker, jumping out to a 2-0 lead and extending it to 6-2 in impressive fashion.

Characteristically, Courier made a charge, cutting the lead to 6-4, but was unable to convert anymore winners, as his backhand hit the net to give McEnroe the match.

Throughout the match, both Courier and McEnroe made quips at line judges and entertained the crowd.

Generally, both players seemed relaxed and happy to be in Kentucky. McEnroe, after accepting a UK sweatshirt from President Charles Wethington, said he would cheer on the Cats when the NCAA Tournament starts in March.

Wethington also awarded Courier with a sweatshirt.

For McEnroe, the evening ended much the same way it began, with the crowd roaring in appreciation and admiration for his efforts.

Cool Cats close year, win with crazy eights

By Chris Tipton
Staff Writer

Another edition of Midnight Mayhem has come to a close and for the UK hockey club, there was no place like home this year.

The Cool Cats have not been beaten since the second game of the season, a 5-4 squeaker to Tennessee. That stands as the only blemish on UK's record as they ended the year 14-1 at the Lexington Ice Center, their home rink.

UK finished its home season in grand fashion this weekend, sweeping the Emory University Eagles, 8-0 and 8-3. These two wins push UK's record to 16-1-1 nationally and 9-1 in the Southern Collegiate Hockey Association's Western Division.

Friday, the offensive charge was led by Klauke Kocan and Mike Wolf. Kocan, a sophomore wing player from Villa Hills, Ky., had two goals and two assists to up his team-leading point total. The beneficiary of Kocan's two assists was Cool Cat right wing Mike Wolf. The junior from Indianapolis registered a three-goal hat trick, scoring once in each period.

The one-two punch of Kocan and Wolf was rivaled defensively by the solid play of starting goalie Kevin Fraser. The sophomore from St. Louis posted another shutout, doing his best impression of a brick wall.

UK's defense allowed very few shots by the Eagles, and the ones they did get off were denied by Fraser time and time again.

Emory made Saturday's game a little more exciting as the team was able to score a couple of goals and push the Cool Cats before losing 8-3. Kocan was at it again as he scored one goal and dished out two assists in the win.

UK was paced by another balanced scoring attack as seven different players put shots in the Eagles' net. Freshman Bryan Morgenthaler led the way with two goals.

The Cool Cats once again showed their unselfishness as many of the goal scorers also had assists. Sophomore Chris Boyd, senior Kris Kocan and juniors Paul Cerabona and Dan Gronowski all finished with one goal and one assist.

The series against Emory and the final road games versus Georgia were made more important when UK learned that it had dropped to ninth in the latest national poll, despite its winning streak. Only the top six teams get automatic bids to the national tournament March 5-7 in Albany, N.Y.

"We don't know why we dropped two spots because we haven't lost and we've been beating some good teams," Cool Cat general manager Mark Shupe said. "The problem may be that the poll is made by a seven-member panel and many of them have only seen us play once. This makes winning the league tournament an absolute must."

If the Cool Cats can't move up in the poll, they will be forced to win the SCHA tourney later this month. Two more victories against Georgia will do wonders in securing UK a first-round bye and making that task easier.

Hansen wins all-around

UK All-American Jenny Hansen won the all-around, vault and floor exercise competitions at the Mizzu Cat Classic, held Friday and Saturday at the Hearnes Center in Columbia, Mo.

Hansen scored her eighth perfect 10 of her career on the vault and garnered a 9.925 on the floor exercise in winning both events. Hansen also took sixth place in the beam.

The Gym Cats finished fifth in the meet, which included six teams, narrowly edged out by Arizona. UK scored a 187.75.

"We should have beat Arizona," Hansen said. "They faltered at the end of the meet."

Freshman Robin Ewing also had a strong performance before spraining her ankle during the floor exercise of the final round. Ewing placed third in the first day's all-around competition with a career-high score of 38.425.

The Gym Cats' next meet is Friday against LSU at Memorial Coliseum.

Wooten resigns as soccer coach

UK men's soccer coach Sam Wooten, who managed the transition of the program from a club team to a varsity sport, has resigned to pursue other career interests, Athletics Director C.M. Newton announced Friday.

Wooten served two years as a head coach of the club team before spearheading a successful effort to convince the University to elevate the program to varsity status.

He was named UK's first soccer coach June 1, 1991. Wooten leaves UK with a three-year 28-25-7 career record, including a 7-9-4 mark this past season.

"Sam has done an outstanding job for us, and we are all sad to see him go," Newton said. "It's often easy to maintain or improve an established program, but very difficult to build something from scratch."

"I feel blessed to have been given the opportunity to coach at UK and see the program through its beginning stages," Wooten said.

"I have blue blood since a child, and this was a dream come true for me. It's a very difficult decision for me, but I felt I needed to pursue other career avenues."

Newton announced that Ian Collins, Wooten's assistant for the past two seasons, will serve as interim coach. He said the search for a new coach will begin immediately.

Catfish squads fall to Florida

The UK men's and women's swimming teams dropped a Southeastern Conference meet at Florida Saturday.

The Gator men defeated the Catfish 70-42. UK diver Tom Treuter won the three-meter competition and placed second in the one-meter competition.

UK's women's team was toppled by the Lady Gators 68-44. Tina Johnson won both diving competitions, scoring a 260.10 in the one-meter and a 279.65 in the three-meter.

Kerrigan vs. Harding?

Match could be biggest in history of Olympics

By Steve Wilson
Associated Press

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Tonya Harding vs. Nancy Kerrigan on the ice in Norway.

If it comes off, it will undoubtedly be one of the most dramatic confrontations in Olympic history. And perhaps one of the highest-rated TV shows ever.

If it doesn't, the glamour event of the Winter Games will lose much of its sizzle.

Right now, it's still on, even though a U.S. Figure Skating Association panel called for a disciplinary hearing against Harding. The panel said Saturday that it found "reasonable grounds" to believe she was involved in the attack on Kerrigan at the national championships in Detroit a month ago.

Rather than ban her from the Olympic team, the association passed the decision on to the USOC, along with a "black book" containing nearly 400 pages of affidavits, court documents and other evidence gathered independently by the panel.

Virtually all of that information is in the hands of prosecutors in Portland, Ore., who have not charged Harding in a plot that has already brought a guilty plea by her ex-husband Jeff Gillooly and confessions by three other men.

Harding met for more than two hours yesterday with her lawyer but neither had any comment on the meeting.

Claire Ferguson, president of the USFSA, carefully followed the rules of the association in not suspending Harding prior to the disciplinary hearing.

"I would prefer to have Tonya have her time with the hearing panel, to follow through and to make sure she's had her chance to speak with the member panel," Ferguson said yesterday on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Asked whether there were any conditions under which she might suspend Harding before the Olympics, Ferguson replied:

"No, because I believe that the Olympics has a different set of rules that can handle this if they so choose. We are concerned with our world championships as well as the Olympics, which will be held in Japan in the middle of March, and we must have our team there."

Bill Hybl, chairman of the five-member USFSA panel and a former USOC president, acknowledged that the fear of a lawsuit by Harding was a factor in the association's judgment to proceed conservatively.

"I think there's no question," Hybl said. "It's been widely discussed. But this is one issue the panel discussed and the five of us decided that we were going to go forward based on the evidence, based on the rules of the articles in the bylaws of the Figure Skating Association and not really let the fact that there could be litigation be involved in our decision."

The USOC is expected to convene its Games Administrative Board within two weeks in Norway to determine Harding's status, and a decision to throw her off the team would be final — even if Harding refuses to testify at the hearing.

In an interview yesterday with CBS, USOC executive director Harvey Schiller said there were "issues of conduct, sportsmanship and others to be considered."

Among those issues, Schiller said, was Harding's admission that she learned of the plot after Kerrigan was clubbed on the right knee and knocked out of the U.S. Figure Skating Championships Jan. 6 but did not immediately report the information to police.

"I think there are a range of issues but included amongst them is the issue of what could have been silence and ... the effect of the competition itself that led to the selection at the national championship," Schiller said.

Schiller was touring Winter Olympic venues yesterday and unavailable for independent comment. USOC president LeRoy Walker, who would convene the inquiry, is not scheduled to arrive in Lillehammer until late in the week. Phone messages left at his Durham, N.C., home were not returned.

The administrative board has the power to take final action on Harding's place on the team. Should it expel her, Harding would be left without appeal in the Olympic community but could seek arbitration or go to court to try to block the USOC from sending a team to Lillehammer without her.

Harding and Kerrigan were among 22 skaters on the team entered by the USOC a week ago. Substitutions can be made up until Feb. 21, the day of the draw for women's competition.

If Harding were kicked off the team before the deadline, her place would be taken by 13-year-old Michelle Kwan, an alternate who will be brought to Scandinavia to practice in case she is needed.

Harding has 30 days to respond to the USFSA's order. If she does not, the hearing will be set for March 9 — more than a week after the Olympics end. The world championships start March 22.

Harding met for nearly two hours with her attorney, Robert Weaver, but declined to say what the two had discussed. Weaver did not immediately return a telephone call to The Associated Press seeking comment.

Earlier in the day, a grim-faced Harding brushed past waiting news photographers at her suburban apartment without speaking, got into her truck and drove away.

A statement issued Saturday by her lawyers said: "We stress that in its statement USFSA does not conclude that Ms. Harding has in any way been involved in any wrongdoing or in any way violated its code of ethics."

Kats cruise coolly; Eberhart scores 16

Staff report

Senior forward Tedra Eberhart scored 16 points to lead the Lady Kats to a 81-60 victory over the Lady Razorbacks of Arkansas Saturday night at Memorial Coliseum.

UK's record improved to 12-8 overall and 4-4 in the Southeastern Conference. Arkansas' record dropped to 11-10 overall and 1-6 in conference play.

UK had three more players reach the double-figure plateau. Stacy Reed and Jennifer Gray each had 14 points, and Christina Jansen scored 13 for the Lady Kats. Eberhart led UK's attack on the boards with 10 rebounds.

UK led 36-31 at the half. The Kats never lost the lead in the second stanza. Eberhart boosted UK to a 19-point edge at 66-47 on a three pointer with 7:49 to play.

UK extended that lead to 21 with a layup from junior walk-on Stephanie Baker with 6:49 remaining in the game.

UK's next home game is against Cincinnati on Tuesday. The game will be held at Memorial Coliseum, and tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

Evers trial opens door to questions about other cases

By Mitchell Landsberg
Associated Press

JACKSON, Miss. — If Medgar Evers' children can live to see their father's murderer behind bars, why, Dennis Dahmer wonders, can't he?

Dahmer's father was also a victim of a racially motivated murder in the 1960s, and the son — now a Baton Rouge, La., businessman — is among those who hope that the conviction of Evers' killer will encourage the reopening of other, similar cases.

"Maybe this Evers' case is an indication that the citizens of Mississippi are willing to deal with these cases the way it should have been done 25 or 30 years ago," Dahmer said. "Maybe things have changed."

Some civil rights leaders have expressed similar hopes, some comparing the long-dormant race killings in the South to the deeds of Nazi war criminals. The statute of limitations, they say, will never run out.

"There ought to be no refuge in space or time," said Circuit Judge D'Army Bailey of Memphis, Tenn., founder of the National Civil Rights Museum. He spoke one day last week while attending the trial of Evers' killer.

Byron De La Beckwith, an unreconstructed segregationist and steadfast racist, was convicted Saturday of murdering Evers, the Mississippi field secretary for the NAACP, in 1963. Evers' killing was the first assassination of a civil rights leader in the 1960s, and one of many racially motivated murder cases that sat unsolved for the past several decades.

Vernon Dahmer, a cotton grower and grocery store owner in Hattiesburg, was active in encouraging blacks to register to vote, and for that the Ku Klux Klan firebombed his home on Jan. 10, 1966. Dahmer died.

Thirteen people were charged in the crime, but only six went to trial. Of those, four Klansmen were convicted and sentenced to prison. But the alleged mastermind, Sam Bowers, then Imperial Wizard of the Klan, was tried twice for murder and both times the juries deadlocked 11-1 for conviction.

Bowers did serve a prison term in a separate case of three slain civil rights activists that inspired the film "Mississippi Burning."

Forrest County District Attorney Glenn White reopened the Dahmer case in 1991. In a telephone interview yesterday, he said he is still searching for lost evidence, missing witnesses and the transcript of the trial.

Prosecutors undertook a similar search in the Evers' case. The only known transcript was one owned by the victim's widow, Myrtle Evers, and the murder weapon was mysteriously found in the attic of the prosecutor's dead father-in-law.

"It's like opening a brand-new case, but it is 30 years old," White said. "I'm just putting pieces of the puzzle back together."

He said he didn't expect the Beckwith verdict to put additional pressure on him to bring fresh charges.

Old rivalries in Mideast die hard, despite accord

By Neil MacFarquar
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Palestinians were jubilant at the prospect of better lives when moves toward self-rule were announced. Not quite five months later, they're again eager to attack Israeli targets and challenge PLO leader Yasser Arafat.

The bitter mood in the Israeli-occupied territories turned blacker Sunday when bickering between Israeli politicians and top generals threatened further delays in achieving Palestinian autonomy.

"Peace is not a theory, it's something that ordinary people need to touch," said Raji Sourani, a lawyer who heads the Gaza Center for Rights and Law.

There have been some changes since the accord between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization was signed in Washington on Sept. 13, 1993.

Palestinians could openly raise their flag, an act that used to draw Israeli gunfire. Over 700 Palestinians have been released from Israeli jails and a few streets sealed with barrels to prevent stone-throwing have been opened.

But under the original plan, the Israeli army was to start withdrawing from the Gaza Strip and the West Bank area around Jericho on Dec. 13 and finish withdrawing by April 13. Palestinians were to police the streets and civilian authorities were to assume responsibility for taxation, housing and utilities.

There are no deadlines now. Instead, the process is in Israeli hands. In Cairo, PLO spokesman Saeed Kamal said Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres would meet with a PLO delegation today. He said Arafat would arrive tomorrow for talks with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, but would not say if Arafat and Peres would meet.

Already, Israeli officials have noticed a sharp shift in Palestinian attitudes. "The Palestinian population woke up," an officer responsible for undercover operations told the weekly Al Hamishmar. He could not be identified due to army regulations.

"They thought they would experience a new reality. They know this is not true. So they are resuming the infighting," he added, using the Arabic word for the uprising against the Israeli occupation that started in 1987.

The numbers tell why. Since the agreement was signed, 62 Palestinians have died in clashes with Israelis, including six children under the age of 16. In the same period 20 Israeli soldiers and civilians have been killed.

Thousands of Palestinians remain behind bars, some for acts like raising the flag that are no longer illegal. Arrests continue.

Over 50,000 Arabs lost jobs in Israel as a security measure to try to minimize attacks, and more work permits are being confiscated at random.

Israel subjects entire neighborhoods to power cuts if some residents don't pay bills. Land confiscations have risen sharply, and house demolitions or disruptive searches continue.

Israeli officials have said that the number of Israeli troops in the occupied lands is at one of its highest levels ever.

hancing the opportunities for students to learn more about the African and African-American cultures and give them chances to experience parts of the culture that they wouldn't otherwise experience."

The most important goal of Black History Month, Grundy said, is to help students understand the makeup of the black community.

"Any way that we can communicate the black experience in society and in the world to others in society, we feel is important," Grundy said.

"This month of events is just one of those ways."

Debate team wins at Baylor

By Don Puckett
Senior Staff Writer

as the team heads into the last stretch of the season. "We've always had close debates with good teams but haven't been able to beat many of them," he said.

The UK debate team proved its depth at Baylor University, advancing two teams to the tournament's final round.

Finch and Kiani became the third UK team to advance to the final round of a national tournament this season. UK's A team has won three tournaments so far, and UK's B team, senior Trevor Wells and sophomore Jason Renzelmann, were in the final debate of the Harvard Invitational early this season.

Both UK's top team, juniors Jason Patil and Paul Skiermont, and UK's C team, senior Cy Kiani and junior Jay Finch, won four consecutive elimination rounds before meeting each other in the tournament's final debate last week.

Wells and Renzelmann lost in the quarter-final round at Baylor to Wayne State.

Patil and Skiermont were declared the winners because they had a better preliminary round record, but Patil said Kiani and Finch deserve all the accolades.

UK also increased the chances that it will be the first school in college debate history to advance three teams to elimination rounds at every competition.

"They were the superstars this tournament," he said. "We were lucky enough to debate some weaker teams in elimination rounds, while they cleared out the other side of the bracket."

Skiermont, who has been the top individual speaker at six national tournaments this year, placed fourth at Baylor.

Finch and Kiani beat Texas, Wayne State and two teams from Dartmouth on the way to finals.

The Baylor tournament was UK's last tournament before the National Debate Committee announces automatic bids for the National Debate Tournament.

Finch said the tournament was a confidence builder

The win almost assures that Patil and Skiermont will be the top seed at nationals.

Bosnia

United States would not invoke air strikes unilaterally, noting the difficulty imposed by the presence of 28,000 lightly armed U.N. peacekeepers in Bosnia.

Perry denounced the attack on civilians in Sarajevo as an "unforgivable incident" but suggested air strikes would have limited value in ending the civil strife. He called instead for a negotiated settlement.

"It is time for responsible leaders among the warring factions to step forward and be counted. It is time for the international community to stand together and bring the maximum pressure to bear," Perry told a military conference in Munich.

Perry's remarks seemed to back away from comments the day before when he suggested "stronger action, including air strikes" might be warranted to prevent the "strangulation" of Sarajevo.

Senate Republican Leader Dole suggested it was time for air strike against Serbian positions.

"Let's send a signal to the Bosnian Serbs and the Serb leadership in Belgrade that we mean business," Dole said on NBC TV. He also called for lifting the Western arms embargo so weapons could be sent to Bosnian Muslims to defend themselves against Serb attacks.

paralyzed the international community for months.

Belgium's foreign minister urged air strikes on Serb troops ringing Sarajevo, and France demanded that NATO set a deadline for the Serbs to lift their siege or face military action from the 16-member alliance.

But the European Union's mediator, Lord Owen, said intervention would do nothing to end a war that has killed more than 200,000 Muslims, Serbs and Croats. Defense Secretary William Perry backed away from the threat of U.S. air strikes, calling instead for a negotiated settlement.

Health

Buecker recruits medical personnel with the hope of keeping them in the state. He accomplishes this in several ways. The facilities in need often contact UK directly, and other times, students are followed from their medical school commencement. Also, Buecker makes contact with medical alumni through UK Kentucky Medicine magazine.

"Recruitment can begin the day a student begins medical school," Buecker said.

After a physician agrees to practice in Kentucky, a contract is signed with the health-care facility.

This year, the service is branching out to include not only primary care physicians, but also mid-level health-care providers. Physician assistants, nurse practitioners, nurse midwives and physical therapists will be included in the placement search.

"Kentucky has more appeal to out-of-state medical professionals than West Virginia, where I worked previously," UK Medical Professions Placement coordinator Beth Sheppard said.

The health shortage areas in Kentucky encompass 60 of 120 counties, the majority of which are located in the Eastern third of the state. Fayette and Jefferson counties, surprisingly, are included in health professional shortage areas.

The criteria for determining a shortage area is based on ratio of 3,000 patients to every primary care physician. The level is determined by percent of poverty, infant mortality rate and access to care, Buecker said.

"In the past four years since the program was initiated," Buecker said, "successful placements have grown from eight in 1991 to 30-32 in 1994."

diplomatic ties, broken when Communist North Vietnam defeated U.S.-backed South Vietnam in April 1975.

The United States also did not immediately grant Vietnam "most favored nation" trade status, which would lower tariffs on Vietnamese imports to the United States.

Vietnam is now pushing for diplomatic recognition. After Clinton announced the end of the economic sanctions, Deputy Foreign Minister Le Mai pledged Vietnam would continue cooperating in trying to resolve MIA cases.
