59 passengers killed as Egyptian troops storm hijacked jet

By JOHN WINN MILLER
Associated Press

VALLETTA, Malta — Egyptian commandos stormed a jetliner to avert a massacre by its hijackers, who responded with fire grenades that turned the plane into a blazing coffin for scores of passengers, Egyptian and Maltese officials said yesterday.

Nine of the 59 victims were children. One of the five hijackers survived the assault on the Egyptian jet and underwent surgery at a hospital, said Paul Mifsud, the Maltese government spokesman.

Egypt blamed the hijacking on renegade Palestinians working for an Arab country it did not name. Government sources in Cairo said the country was Libya, Egypt's neighbor and arch-rival.

In Moscow, the official Soviet news agency, Tass, said Libya denied involvement. It quoted Ali Abdussalam Treki, the Libyan foreign minister, as saying his country "condemns the latest seizure of hostages as all seizures of hostages in general."

The commandos stormed aboard the plane Sunday night, 24 hours after the hijackers commandeered the Boeing 737 on a flight from Athens, Greece, to Cairo and forced it down at Luga Airport on this Mediterranean island. The gunmen killed an American passenger before the assault and threw her body from the plane.

The Egyptian government said it sent the commandos in to avert a massacre. It claimed the passengers died as a result of the poisonous grenades thrown by the gunmen, and that none was killed by the assault troops.

Hani Galal, the pilot, said at a news conference that the hijackers told him they would kill a passenger every 15 minutes unless the aircraft was refueled. They did not say where they wanted to go from Malta.

Officials said the hijackers made no demands other than that the plane be refueled. Other survivors included seven people wounded by the hijackers. Five of those had been shot execution-style, officials said. Another of the wounded, an Egyptian security guard, was shot during a gunfight with the hijackers before the commandos boarded the plane, officials said.

Rescue workers removed 38 bodies from the aircraft. Mifsud said a Filipino passenger died in a hospital later of wounds suffered in the battle between the commandos and the hijackers.

He said the government was "deeply sorrowed" by the deaths of innocent people, but "when we realized they would go on shooting (people), there was no choice but to go ahead" with the assault.

Officials said 98 people, including six crew members, were on the plane when it was hijacked Saturday night.

The U.S. State Department identified the dead American as Scarlett Marie Rogenkamp, 38, a civilian U.S. Air Force employee stationed in Greece. She was from Oceanside, Calif.

President Reagan sent the Maltese government a message "in which he expressed his thanks for the firm stand taken by the Maltese government," Mifsud said.

Galal, and copilot Emad Bahy said the hijack leader kept a gun trained on them in the cockpit. He would announce that he was going to kill someone, they said, then leave the cockpit to choose his victim.

The leader singled out Americans and Israelis "for execution," the pilot said.

Engineering professor gets award

Leon testifies before Congress

By SHARON HATCHFORD
Contributing Writer

For his work publicizing concerns about pension funds for engineers, Benjamin Leon has become the first Kentucky electrical engineer to be awarded the Citation of Honor by the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers.

As chairman of an institute pension committee, Leon testified before Congress on the "severe concerns about people losing pension benefits," he said.

Under current laws, an engineer must stay with the same employer for 10 years to draw pension benefits; the average length of time engineers spend in one job is only seven years, Leon said.

Four citations of honor have been presented during each of the award's three years to engineers who have used their skills to assist the government in determining matters that "affect the way engineering is done" and to improve engineering education, he said.

Aside from his teaching at UK, Leon edits Perspective and Impact — two of the institute's U.S. Activities Board publications.

Leon has spent the last five years as editor-in-chief of Impact. "Prior to that," Leon said, "Impact was a newsletter." But through changes in its format, he transformed it into a magazine.

In contrast, Perspective — which Leon initiated — is brand new; it is delivered to IEEE members inside The Institute, an engineering publication written by professional journalists, he said.

Before his involvement with these two publications, Leon edited a technical engineering magazine from 1967-69.

Leon also has received the IEEE's Centennial Medal. He will be presented with his citation at the Southeastern Regional Conference of IEEE in late March in Richmond, Va.

He is "well known within electrical engineering professional circles," said James R. Heath, director of UK's Computing Center. He added that Leon has a "very outstanding reputation" with the IEEE and has "a lot of expertise."

Leon chairs UK's communications committee. In 1983, he began helping Heath plan ways for the University to best meet its future needs for voice, data and video communication, Heath said.

He updated sophomore-level circuit courses in conjunction with Clayton Paul, also an electrical engineering professor. "These revisions were 'fairly substantial changes' in the curriculum, Paul said.

Radio Free Lexington forum seeks public opinion

By KIMBERLY SISK
Staff Writer

Radio Free Lexington will hold a forum tonight to learn how students think it should attain its goal of an independent, student-run college radio station.

"The meeting will be an open forum about what Radio Free Lexington has been able to do this far toward getting a station," said Kake Urch, acting president of the newly registered student organization.

She said the group would like to see what interested students think should be done next.

At least four students representing the new organization will be at the forum at 5 p.m. in 228 Student Center. The representatives include Urch; Pam Bratcher, the organization's secretary; and members Theo Monroe and David Nickell. Representatives from the Student Government Association and the Student Activities Board will also be present.

"Our goal is to get a group of people who have obviously demonstrated their desire for such a station on campus by attending Radio Aid and by writing to the Kentucky Kernel," Urch said.

During the meeting, members will ask students what format such a station should have. They will also establish standardized meeting times and take applications for executive officers of the organization.

A new station would "not be a change from what we have — which is great — this would be an added dimension," said Paul Hayden, SAB president. "It never hurts to look into the possibility."

Currently, the only radio station on campus is University-licensed WBKY-FM. The station plays National Public Radio broadcasts, classical and jazz music and news.

Urch said contrary to a letter in the Kernel, "Radio Free Lexington is not looking to establish a 'punk rock radio station.' It plans to establish a format which indeed does serve the majority of the students. This is why we have invited the majority of the students to give us input tonight."

Bratcher was quoted in an earlier

Kernel article as saying the station would be open to playing everything from classical to jazz, Top 40, new music, reggae and hardcore. "It's not necessarily meant to be an alternative music station," she said.

Hayden said SAB would like to help Radio Free Lexington out "wherever possible, if possible." He said so far SAB has only helped in a small capacity, such as the support of the Radio Aid concert, a benefit to support Radio Free Lexington's effort.

"Radio Aid was great," Urch said. "The six local bands that performed, despite having to play very short sets, all put on an incredible show." She also said the band personnel was very enthusiastic.

About 230 people attended Radio Aid, and 150 people responded to her column in the Kernel about a new campus radio station, Urch said.

The issue of a student-run college radio station has come up several times in the past, Urch said. "Students in the past have found an uncooperative attitude from the administration and WBKY, but on this issue we hope that we can work it out," she said.

She said Herbert Drennon, dean of the College of Communications, was "quoted as saying something to the effect that 'there is a lot more to it than having a radio station that plays your music.' We realize that and are quite willing to put out the effort to get this type of station on the air."

Grill opens bakery to meal card customers

By ANNE GALLOWAY
Staff Writer

You probably never thought a meal card punch would be the open sesame to European-style cafe treats.

But then you probably never expected to see baklava, New York cheesecake and exotic coffees in the Wildcat Grill, either.

The new Student Center coffee shop — located next to the ice cream counter in the grill — has only been open a week, but students have apparently already gotten the message.

Robert Braun, assistant director of food services, said, "Considering it hasn't been publicly announced, the response has been overwhelming."

Richard Clark, manager of the Wildcat Grill, said, "We sell a loaf and a half of banana and pumpkin breads a day. For Christmas and Thanksgiving, the bakery will have special seasonal things that they'll make."

"This is the first time we've had a full-blown bakery case," Braun said. "It's a way of reaching out to people who normally would come to take an afternoon break, eat a pastry and drink a cup of coffee."

Most of the baked goods are purchased from Del Coto's in Zandale Shopping Center and the coffees from John Conti Gourmet Coffee in Louisville.

The day-old sweet rolls and turnovers are sold at a much reduced price and if you want the taste of espresso, you can sprinkle cinnamon or chocolate in your regular coffee. The six varieties of coffees, ranging from cappuccino to chocolate almond, are served in elegant aluminum plastic mugs for 45 to 65 cents. The elaborate gold and copper coffee machine gives that de rigueur whiff of European cafes.

There are several dozen varieties of pastry. The baklava — with layers of filo leaves, nuts and a sugar sauce that leaves your hands dripping — costs $1.25, the cheesecake, 90 cents; cream horns and chess squares sell for 65 cents.

Faculty appointed to council

Two professors give state advice on mental health programs

By DAN HASSERT
Contributing Writer

The Governor's Advisory Council for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services will be getting the perspectives and expertise of two UK faculty members.

Robert Clayton, a sociology professor, and Nate Sullivan, an associate professor in social work, were selected for their work in substance abuse.

Since coming to UK in 1977, Sullivan said he has concentrated on teaching and treating individuals with substance abuse problems. Clayton said most of his experience has been in the field of research.

Gov. Martha Layne Collins appointed them to the council in early October. The council is a 15-member citizens advisory body, which reports to the Kentucky Cabinet for Human Resources on programs in mental health, mental retardation and substance abuse.

Sullivan will serve for three years; Clayton will serve for one. Both said their background work will influence their goals as members of the council.

"One of the issues I'm very concerned about... is the availability of treatment and services for low-income persons who have problems with alcohol and drugs," Sullivan said.

"There is very little out there for them... and what there is, is very costly — only available to people who have good insurance," he said.

He attributed this deficiency to a trend "to let private industry do it," resulting in "basically profit-making programs."

He said these programs "have to be provided by agencies of government or they will not be done."

Clayton, who has been at UK since 1970, said his emphasis is on determining the extent and consequences of alcohol and drug abuse in the population.

"We don't know how many people have alcohol and drug problems," Clayton said. "Nobody's ever done a study... on the statewide level."

"I want to help provide the state with a better understanding of how many people have these problems and what these problems are," he said. "Until we know this, we can't effectively and efficiently treat these problems."

Clayton said he is also interested in finding out how many people have both substance abuse and mental problems, a statistic he said is necessary to determine proper treatment.

Clayton is currently involved in two nationwide studies. One is a 10-year follow-up study of the long-term effects of chronic marijuana use. The study interviewed nearly 3,000 people who were surveyed as drug users in 1974-75.

The other study is the Eighth Annual Household Survey on Drug Abuse. Clayton said more than 8,000 people 12 years and older were surveyed to "find out the extent and

Benson, Rylee pull off surprise doubles victory

By KRISTOPHER RUSSELL
Staff Writer

UK freshman tennis players Richard Benson and Kenny Rylee pulled off the biggest surprise of the fall season Sunday as they won the doubles title of the Region III Indoor Championship in Athens, Ga.

If any UK team was expected to win the championship, it was Pat McGee and Greg Van Emburgh, winners of two major championships this fall and the No. 4 seed in the tournament.

However, the unseeded team of Benson and Rylee stormed through the draw to win the prestigious event.

With the win, Benson, a native of Ogden, Utah, and Rylee, a native of Richardson, Texas, get an automatic berth to the National Indoor Championship in Houston Feb. 6-10.

"I'm awful proud of Richard and Kenny," UK coach Dennis Emery said. "They were playing only their second tournament as a team and they beat two of the best teams in the country."

Benson and Rylee won their first two matches, including a three-set match over Alabama's top team, but it was their quarterfinal match that opened a few eyes. In that match, Benson and Rylee beat the No. 1 seeds Andrew Burrow and Steve Kennedy of Miami 0-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Rylee said the victory over Burrow and Kennedy was the turning point. "After we knocked off the No. 1-seeded team we felt we could win."

In the semifinals Benson and Rylee won easily over Georgia's T. J. Middleton and Steve Ennochs 6-2, 6-3.

This set up a final between the UK freshmen and the No. 2 seeds, Ville Jansson and Peter Jetzel of Northeastern Louisiana. Jansson and Jetzel are ranked No. 16 in the nation. That seemed to motivate Benson and Rylee as they fought off two match points to win the match 4-6, 7-5, 7-6.

McGee and Van Emburgh advanced to the quarterfinals before losing.

Van Emburgh advanced to the singles quarterfinals and beat Burrow, ranked No. 16 in the nation in singles, in the second round.

'Tim' a rowdy romp; Simple Minds stumble

By STEVE DRIESLER
Staff Writer

Tim The Replacements
Sire/Warner Bros. Records

You've got to love any '80s band with the audacity to name an album Let It Be or silly enough to name one Tim. You've just gotta.

Okay, so The Replacements have a sense of humor, but can they rock 'n' roll?

One listen to Tim, their fifth album but first on a major label, should answer that question. The Replacements are not only a great band, they show flashes of being the best rock 'n' roll band in America. The Replacements are four high school dropouts from Minneapolis, who have decided to do their nose-thumbing with guitars and drums. The results are some of the most honest and touching songs about growing up ever recorded.

Their sound is an eclectic mixture of garage rock, hardcore, pop, rhythm and blues and country shuffle. Things have been cleaned up and toned down a little for their major label debut, but the band's boisterous spirit still pervades every song.

This record isn't going to make Billboard's Top 100 chart anytime soon. But alienated teens in search of cult heroes take note.

Tim's two finest moments are indicative of the wide diversity in the way the band approaches its subjects.

"Waitress in the Sky," a rowdy romp about being snubbed by stewardesses, sounds like it's being banged out on pots and pans.

"Here Comes a Regular," on the other hand, is a haunting ballad about the sad underside of the "Cheers" mystique. "Well, a person can work up a mean, mean thirst. After a hard day of nothing much at all."

It's truly amazing that a band can be as obnoxious and as sensitive as The Replacements are. Other standouts include "Hold My Life," "Bastards of Young" and "Little Mascara," but in all honesty every song is worthy of repeated listenings.

Once Upon a Time Simple Minds
A&M Records

"Don't You (Forget About Me)" reaffirmed that a song can have muscle and still be danceable — a lesson that most of the white disco-techno-drive bands coming out of the woodwork in Great Britain could certainly stand to learn. That hit single from "The Breakfast Club" also gave Scotland's Simple Minds the recognition they had been seeking in vain for seven records.

SIMPLE MINDS' 'ONCE UPON A TIME'

Unfortunately, Once Upon a Time lacks that hit's vibrancy and drive, despite a few good songs that will probably get plenty of airplay.

Once Upon a Time's first single, "Alive and Kicking," is by far the best song on the record. The song is given a surreal quality by Michael MacNeill's keyboards, while vocalist Jim Kerr chants a lover's challenge.

'Prairie' book sells; Beatle exhibit flops

The Associated Press

CLAREMONT, Calif. — Satirist Garrison Keillor, who turned his American Public Radio humor into the best-selling book, Lake Wobegon Days, hasn't let his new-found riches cost him his humor.

"What will you do when the book stops selling?" a reporter asked him before a performance at Claremont College's Bridges Auditorium over the weekend.

Replied Keillor: "When the book is a dead item, we plan to use 250,000 unsold copies to insulate the World Theater in St. Paul," where his show, "A Prairie Home Companion," is based.

Keillor's book, which costs $17.95, is in its 13th printing with 925,000 copies off the presses.

In addition, sweatshirts emblazoned with the name of Lake Wobegon, a mythical Minnesota village that is the foil for Keillor's humor, are selling for $18.50 each, and they're just one of the items for sale in a 32-page catalog of collectibles from the program.

LIVERPOOL, England — A museum containing more than 1,000 pieces of Beatles memorabilia will be moved to London after proving a flop in the rock group's hometown of Liverpool, the museum's owner said yesterday.

Since it opened in this economically depressed port city in April 1984, the $2.9 million exhibition called "Beatle City" has failed to make a profit and has drawn fewer than 200,000 visitors, according to its owner, the independent radio station Radio City.

Radio City managing director Terry Smith said the museum has been sold to an undisclosed buyer, who has pledged to move the exhibition to London early next year. Until then, the museum will open only on weekends.

Radio City said an estimated $94,250 was lost on the sale.

"I am personally extremely sorry it is leaving Liverpool," Smith said. "But it needs to be in a place where there is more tourist activity."

Among the exhibits are the bus from the Beatles' film "Magical Mystery Tour," Ringo Starr's customized Mini Cooper car, John Lennon's certificate of marriage to his first wife, Cynthia Powell, guitars and stage clothing spanning 20 years, posters and world tour photographs taken by members of the band.

Tobacco sales down on opening day

While tobacco sales were brisk on the opening day of the 1985 market season in the eight-state burley belt yesterday, prices remained close to the federal price-support levels. The statewide average price was $1.59 per pound, down 28.2 cents from opening day 1984, on volume of slightly more than 19.5 million pounds, the Federal-Market News Service reported.

Schroeder marks first anniversary quietly

LOUISVILLE — Artificial heart patient William Schroeder, showing slight improvement from his third stroke, quietly marked his first anniversary with a Jarvik-7 pump yesterday, a spokeswoman said.

The heart has beaten roughly 40 million times since it was turned on by Dr. William C. DeVries in a 6½ hour operation.

There were no special events planned for Schroeder at Humana Hospital Audubon, but his wife, Margaret, held a reception for members of the medical staff who had helped him during the year.

Doctors said Schroeder had spoken a few single-syllable words in the past week and was moving his limbs, said Donna Hazle, Audubon's director of public affairs.

Plane carrying Iowa team crashes, kills 4

DES MOINES, Iowa — A twin-engine plane carrying members of the Iowa State University women's cross-country team crashed and burst into flames in a residential neighborhood yesterday, killing at least four people aboard and knocking out power to about 1,600 homes, authorities said.

The Aero Commander crashed in a freezing drizzle shortly before 6 p.m., and missed a house by 50 feet, said Sgt. Bill Mullins.

The charred wreckage lay crumpled at the base of a tree on a sloping street.

"It's a tragedy, but it could have been three or four times as bad," Mullins said.

The cross-country team and members of its coaching staff were flying back from an NCAA championship meet in Milwaukee, where it finished second behind Wisconsin.

Public can listen to lift-off, landing

WASHINGTON — Space buffs will be able to listen in this week as the crew of the space shuttle Atlantis sets up a construction site more than 200 miles above the Earth.

Dial-a-shuttle, a telephone service of the National Space Institute, will begin operating two hours before the 7:29 p.m. EST lift-off today and continue through landing and a post-flight news conference a week later.

Listeners in the United States will be charged 50 cents for the first minute and 35 cents for each additional minute.

The telephone number is 900-410-6272.

Police searching for suspects in bombing

By NESHA STARCEVIC Associated Press

FRANKFURT, West Germany — Two men believed to be carrying Moroccan passports became prime suspects yesterday in the hunt for those who bombed a U.S. military shopping center. West German authorities reported.

Sunday's car bombing wounded 35 people, almost all of them U.S. civilians and servicemen. Three remained hospitalized yesterday, one a serviceman who had been listed in serious condition but was upgraded to good condition yesterday.

Officials have refused to release the names of the injured.

Authorities first had said the attack looked like the work of West German leftist terrorists. Later they said foreigners might have been responsible, and federal police issued a statement saying the silver-blue metallic BMW 525 sedan in which the explosives were packed had been bought Saturday by two men "apparently carrying Moroccan passports."

Authorities issued descriptions and composite pictures of the pair and asked possible witnesses to report any sightings of the men, described as being in their 30s.

"They may be Arabs," the statement said, adding that both were definitely foreigners and that only one spoke any German. One man's name appeared on his passport as "Azuz Mohsen."

Police said the two told the automobile dealership they were taking the BMW to Rabat, the Moroccan capital, where they said they resided.

The same secondhand car dealership, outside Frankfurt, also sold the car that was used in the Aug. 8 bombing at the U.S. Air Force Rhein-Main Air Base, which killed two Americans and injured 20 people.

The left-wing Red Army Faction terrorist group claimed responsibility for that attack, but there was no immediate assertion of responsibility for Sunday's blast.

Police said one of the men was between 30 and 35, with short black hair and a black mustache. The other was between 35 and 40 years old. His head was covered, concealing the color of his hair and part of his face, police said.

U.S. announces reward for leads on hijackers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States yesterday offered a reward of up to $250,000 for information leading to the apprehension, prosecution and punishment of Mohammed Abbas, a Palestine Liberation Organization leader, accused of masterminding the hijacking of the Achille Lauro cruise ship on Oct. 7.

State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman said reward money could also be paid to those with information leading to the arrest and prosecution of others who were involved in the hijacking but have not been arrested.

Abbas was in Italian custody briefly after the hijacking, but authorities in Italy permitted him to leave the country even though the United States had sought his extradition. Several other Palestinians are awaiting trial in Italy on criminal charges stemming from the seizure of the boat.

Italian prosecutors subsequently acknowledged that Abbas was involved in the capture of the cruise ship in which the crew and passengers were held hostage and one of the 14 Americans aboard, Leon Klinghoffer, was killed.

Last year, Congress appropriated $2 million to give rewards that might help bring terrorists to justice. The maximum amount that can be granted in connection with an individual case is $500,000.

World must be united for peace, speaker says

By SEAN ANDERSON
Staff Writer

Achieving peace is an ongoing process that must take into account the oneness of all mankind in order to be attained, said a speaker at the Baha'i Association meeting last night.

Marianne Geula, a blood pressure technician at the Sanders-Brown Research Center, said Baha'is, followers of Baha'u'llah from Persia who preached world peace through the unity of man, look at the world as a global community.

The first step toward achieving peace in the world is for all societies to recognize each other as belonging to the same family, she said. However, peace extends beyond mere disarmament and an end to war.

She said more than peoples' minds must change — there needs to be a change in their hearts and attitudes as well. This involves the elimination of racial and social prejudice and a recognition of the equality that exists between different societies, she said.

Geula said that while there will always be class differences within a society, the great extremes between the rich and poor will be overcome when people recognize they are all members of the same family and refuse to allow others to live in poverty.

"The roots of poverty can be eliminated when society focuses on the well-being of all," she said.

While some religions, such as Christianity, teach that man is born in "original sin," Baha'is believe mankind is basically noble and has a "tremendous capacity for justice and love and trust," Geula said. Mankind may choose to be evil but is not born that way, she said.

Geula said unity among the nations of the world does not mean everyone will be uniform in thought or action. Diversity is encouraged and it is the combination of these diverse elements in an atmosphere of mutual respect that will bring peace, she said.

"Distinctions among nations like 'Third World' and 'underdeveloped' are a hindrance to accepting other societies as equal, she said, adding that even though a society lacks some technological advances they may possess some other technological or materialistic nations don't recognize as having value.

AED offers students guidance

Pre-health honorary helps make admissions process easier

By SAILAJA MALEMPATI
Senior Staff Writer

As competition for admission into the health professional schools increases, students may find the application process a nerve-racking ordeal.

Alpha Epsilon Delta, a pre-health professional honorary, has helped reduce some of the tension among students entering the health professions by providing a less competitive and more social environment for them to interact.

Although "pre-meds tend to be very competitive," said Roger Humphries, treasurer of the organization, there is no competition among the members of AED.

AED's main purpose is to promote student insight into the health professions and give them information for admission into the professional schools.

"It mainly radiates toward the medical field, but pre-pharmacy, dental and physical therapy students are also involved," said Marytrea Berry, the organization's vice president.

The honorary brings in speakers from various health fields to give students an idea of what the various professions entail, Berry said.

"The speakers are really interesting to listen to," said Tony Barnes, a chemistry junior and a member of the organization. "They have given me a lot of insight into the medical profession and reinforced my desire to enter the medical field."

Another advantage AED offers pre-health professional students is an opportunity for members to learn from each other's experiences.

"AED is a library of knowledge," Berry said. "You learn from people that have gone through what you must go through."

Because the upperclassmen can help the underclassmen, Berry encourages freshmen and sophomores to get involved. She said the older students can advise the underclassmen about the application process: "It helps lessen the stress and anxiety involved with getting into the professional schools.

"I couldn't have gotten where I am without it," she said. "I wouldn't have known the time schedules (for applying), and I wasn't aware of the classes that are required."

Barnes said AED can add to one's social life as well. "You meet a lot of people with the same interests," he said. And "the people there are oriented to help you, rather than hurt you."

To become a member of AED, students should complete an application that will be reviewed by the organization's officers. Applicants are required to have a 3.0 cumulative grade point average as well as a 3.0 science GPA.

American arrested for selling U.S. secrets to Soviet Union

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A former National Security Agency communications specialist, originally implicated by turnabout defector Vitaly Yurchenko, told the FBI he sold U.S. secrets to the Soviet Union and became yesterday the fourth American arrested on espionage charges in five days.

Early yesterday at an Annapolis, Md. hotel, the FBI arrested Ronald William Pelton, 44, who worked from 1965 to 1979 for the super-secret NSA, which spies on foreign communications and breaks codes.

In a court affidavit, FBI agent David Faulkner said Pelton told the FBI in an interview Sunday that he met with KGB officer Anatoly Slavov on several occasions from January 1980 through January 1983. Pelton admitted receiving cash from Slavov several times, including a $15,000 payoff as a result of a trip to Vienna, Austria, in January 1983, according to the affidavit.

A federal source, who requested anonymity, said Pelton had been fined by the NSA for reasons not linked to the charges against him.

Several sources said Pelton was the second former U.S. intelligence official whose work for the Soviets was disclosed by Vitaly Yurchenko, the KGB general-designate who defected to the West on Aug. 3 and returned to the Soviet Union three months later.

The FBI said Pelton went to the Soviet Embassy in Washington in January 1980 to offer to spy for the Soviets in return for cash. On that occasion, the FBI said, he provided information about "a United States intelligence collection project targeted at the Soviet Union."

Pelton had serious financial troubles at about the time he allegedly decided to begin his espionage activities, having filed for bankruptcy in April 1979, the affidavit said.

The Pelton arrest came on a day replete with spy developments in the capital.

— The United States concluded a spy swap with Ghana, allowing Michael A. Soussoudis, 39, a cousin of Ghana's military leader Lt. Jerry Rawlings, to return to Ghana while close to 10 Ghanaians "of interest to the United States" were allowed to fly to an unidentified African country.

Soussoudis pleaded no contest to charges under the espionage act and was sentenced to 20 years in prison, but that was reduced to time served since his arrest July 10.

His former lover, Sharon M. Scragge, 29, a former clerk in the CIA's Ghana station, who pleaded guilty to revealing the identities of CIA informants to Soussoudis, was sentenced yesterday to five years in prison.

— Israeli officials, who demanded anonymity, said their government was investigating whether someone at their Washington embassy overstepped his authority in buying classified U.S. documents from Jonathan J. Pollard.

Pollard, 31, was a Navy civilian counter-terrorism analyst who was charged last Thursday with selling secrets to a foreign power identified by U.S. sources as Israel.

frequency of the use of all kinds of drugs."

Although the responsibility of the council is largely advisory, Sullivan said it "can have a considerable amount of influence." He said the "composition of the committee is very good. Clayton has done some really good work; I'm interested in learning firsthand about his research."

As members of the advisory council, Clayton and Sullivan have attended a briefing on legislation to be brought before the General Assembly.

"I'm really happy to be appointed to the council," Sullivan said. "I have worked in the state Office of Alcoholism several years ago and this will allow me to again be involved in influencing policies and programs."

Anti-apartheid protests continue one year later

By DEBORAH MESCE
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Three men, two in business suits and one wearing worn sneakers and jeans, locked arms and raised their voices in an off-key rendition of "We Shall Overcome."

After the customary three warnings from police, the men were carried away in a paddy wagon, following a script that has been replayed every working day for more than a year outside the South African Embassy.

What began as a three-person sit-in on the eve of Thanksgiving, Nov. 21, 1984, to protest the South African government's holding of 13 black labor leaders became a daily staging of anti-apartheid demonstrations in which thousands have been arrested.

Among those taken into custody have been the Rev. Jesse Jackson; musician Stevie Wonder; comedian Dick Gregory; feminist Gloria Steinem; singer Harry Belafonte; former President Carter's daughter, Amy; Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn.; and 18 members of Congress.

Leaders of the protests concede they have not achieved all they had hoped, "but we've accomplished more in the last 12 months than we've been able to accomplish in seven years of traditional lobbying," said Cecile Counts, legislative liaison for TransAfrica, a lobby group that organized the demonstrations.

As of yesterday morning, 2,961 people had been arrested since the protests began, police said. The charges — demonstrating within 500 feet of an embassy — have been dropped against all of them.

Randall Robinson, head of the TransAfrica, says the demonstrations and arrests stimulated media coverage of events in South Africa and its system of racial separation.

And, he said, they put pressure on Congress to adopt economic sanctions against the country.

But Robinson acknowledges that momentum also was provided by events in South Africa and its system of apartheid, which puts the nation's 22 million blacks under the control of 4.5 million whites.
